DEATH OFF JOB

Mrs. Anna Hahn Receives Death Verdict

Death taking a holiday is portrayed graphically in these split-second photographs taken during a hill-climbing race near Buxton, England. Both the driver and a woman passenger escaped unhurt when the car hit a bank on steep Jenkins Chapel hill and overturned, trapping them beneath it.

WINDSOR TO DROP HIS TOUR UNTIL LABOR CRITICISM IN U. S. SUBSIDES

Trips To Other Countries, As Well As America, Cancelled Temporarily

SAYS CONTINUATION OF STUDIES 'IMPRACTICAL'

Duke Says Reply From Secretary Ickes Regarded As 'Perfunctory'

PARIS, Nov. 6.—(AP)—The Duke of Windsor decided tonight to drop his survey of world working conditions until the storm raised by American labor criticism of his trip to the United States subsided.

After a day of indecision during which Windsor considered an immediate trip to Soviet Russia to balance his tour of Nazi Germany and prove to the world he plays no politics, persons close to him said he and the duchess would remain in Paris a week before leaving for a rest.

Friends said the duke hoped to pave his way for his postponed study of American labor conditions with possible trips to Russia, Scandinavia and Europe's "neutral countries" after the "misconceptions" over his motives had been cleared.

Windsor felt, they said, the current controversy made present continuation impractical.

JURORS CONVICT BLONDE MOTHER IN SLAYING OF JACOB WAGNER

Will Be First Woman In Ohio To Be Executed If Edict Fulfilled

NO FORMAL DATE FIXED FOR IMPOSING SENTENCE

Chief Defense Counsel Announces He Will Seek To Obtain New Trial

By Wayne Adams
CINCINNATI, Nov. 6.—Eleven women and a man decreed today that Mrs. Anna Hahn, 31-year-old mother, die in the electric chair for the poison-murder of Jacob Wagner, 18, one of four men she allegedly killed for her money.

The jury's verdict, after deliberations of two and a half hours, did not recommend mercy for the accused "mass-murderess" and automatically condemned her to death.

Apparently unmoved and unconcerned during most of her four-week trial, Mrs. Hahn heard the verdict with head slightly bowed and nervously twisting a handkerchief between her fingers.

She blinked reddened eyes and stared at Judge Charles S. Bell as he thanked the jurors for a "verdict four-square with the circumstances." Then she was hurried to her jail cell where, Chief Deputy Sheriff George J. Heitzler said, she threw herself on a bed and sobbed.

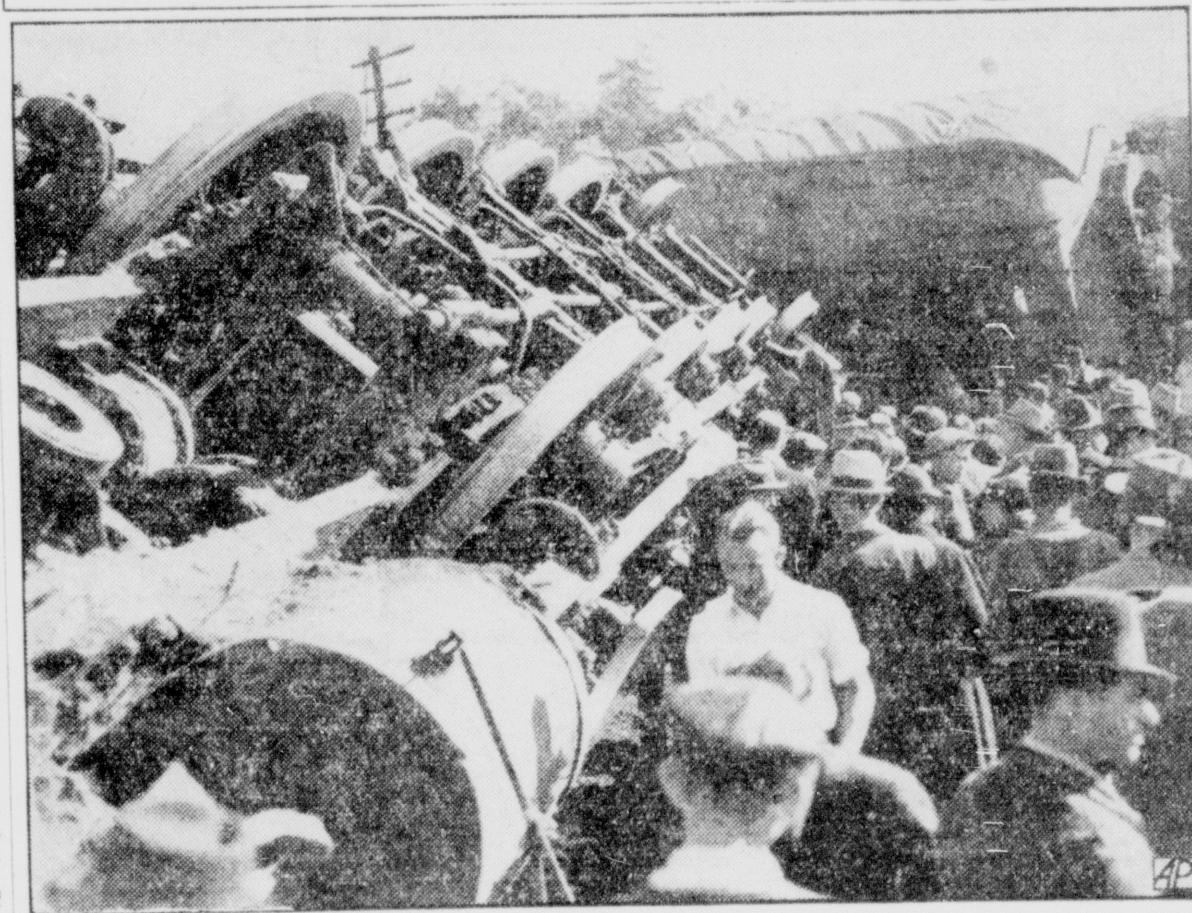

"Get me out quick, get me out quick," Heitzler quoted her as saying, as he aided her from the room. No date has been set for formal sentencing. Chief Defense Counsel Joseph H. Hoodin said he would seek a new trial and appeal to the state supreme court if necessary.

No woman has ever been electrocuted in Ohio. Mrs. Julius Maude Lowther was sentenced to the electric chair for killing another woman at Ashtabula, O., in 1931, but won a new trial, pleaded guilty and is now serving a life term in the Marysville reformatory.

Jurors disclosed their second ballot produced the verdict; one woman

'SOUTHLAND' WRECKED—THREE IN TRUCK KILLED

Three persons in a truck were killed in a grade crossing collision at Lovejoy, Ga., that wrecked the "Southland," Central of Georgia passenger train en route from the west coast of Florida to Cincinnati and the middle west. Engineer D. S. Wall of Atlanta and Fireman Jim Henry of Macon were buried under the pile of wreckage shown here. Henry was rescued alive after a few hours. Wall could be seen in the cab as rescue work progressed and railway officials said he was dead.

ROLL CALL DRIVE BEGINS TOMORROW

Committees Will Start Canvass Which Ends Thanksgiving Day

A complete canvass of Ouachita parish in the interests of the local chapter of the American Red Cross is planned in connection with the annual roll call campaign, which begins tomorrow, it was announced Saturday by E. C. Gibson, the roll call chairman.

Committees have been formed to cover every phase of the campaign, which will continue until Thanksgiving day. The special gifts committee, under Willis H. Anders, will start its activities Monday morning, and from that time until the "great American feast day," Thursday, November 25, different groups will be actively engaged in enlisting the public cooperation on behalf of the Red Cross activities in this parish for the coming year.

Chairman Gibson gave out the following information concerning the division of effort amongst the committees: "The Y's Men's club, at its regular meeting the past week, assumed responsibility for the membership solicitation in the downtown area of Monroe to cover the office buildings and business firms employing less than five people. Bill Mathews was designated as chairman for the club and the full membership of this organization enlisted under his direction.

"George Weeks, Jr., and W. R. Patrick will direct the campaign in this same area in an effort to secure as nearly as possible 100 per cent enrollment in the membership drive, working amongst firms and business houses who employ more than five people in their organization. A meeting of this committee has been called for 4 p.m. Monday, November 8, to meet in the office of the Red Cross building, located in the old Central Bank building for LOVEJOY, Ga., Nov. 6.—(AP)—A train-truck collision killed four persons, injured four and derailed the Southland Limited of the Central of Georgia railroad here today.

James Allen, 28, his wife and two-year-old son, all of Rex, Ga., were instantly killed when the train demolished their light truck at a grade crossing and Veteran Engineer D. S. Wall, 61, of Atlanta, died in the wreckage of his locomotive.

Fireman Jim Henry was pinned under the cab and had to be cut free by acetylene torches. His left arm and leg were broken and he was reported in grave condition at an Atlanta hospital.

In addition to the engine, the tender, mail car, baggage car, an empty Pullman and one passenger coach were derailed.

Superintendent M. B. Smith of the Central of Georgia said the passengers injured were Mrs. J. M. Williams, 60, of Chicago, head injuries; Mrs. A. J. Lamar, 38, Montgomery, Ala., sprained back, and Lucy Loving, 38, of Louisville, Ky., leg injuries.

The northbound fast train struck the truck about 8:20 a.m., eastern time.

Flower Boy May Die But Mother Comforts Him

NEW YORK, Nov. 6.—(AP)—Tommy, the flower boy, may die, but what ever destiny holds for him, they at least knew tonight who he was.

For more than a year he has been just Tommy, Tommy selling flowers to Greenwich village drunks, Tommy wandering through the village night spots pleading with carmine-faced ladies and dissipated men, with young girls and down-lipped youths to buy his faded posies.

The night of October 27 a booze-befuddled man, angry perhaps at the flower boy's plea, struck him brutally, fracturing his skull.

Since then he has lain in Bellevue hospital, with death stroking his brow. Nobody cared. Nobody even knew, for that matter, he was just a kid. He was just Tommy. He probably lived somewhere. A kid has to live somewhere. Maybe in the subway.

RUSSIA DEFIES TRIPLE ALLIANCE

Says German, Italian And Japanese Workmen Will Revolt Against Capitalism

MOSCOW, Nov. 6.—(AP)—The Communist International defied a triple alliance of Germany, Italy and Japan tonight on the eve of the 20th anniversary of the Bolshevik rise to power in Russia.

The Communist international communist organization centering in Moscow, warned the three powers that their workers, inspired by 20 years of socialism in Russia, would use the next war for a revolution against capitalism.

A defiant Communist manifesto was issued as an estimated 1,000,000 Russians made ready to parade through

PLANS MADE FOR JOBLESS CENSUS

Committee Named To Assist Monroe Postal Officials In Obtaining Data

A committee to assist Monroe postal authorities in carrying out their part of the national unemployment census, November 16-20, inclusive, has been appointed by Mayor Arnold Bernstein.

The committee, which includes representatives of labor, business, religious groups, women's clubs, welfare organizations, veterans' organizations, civic clubs, the two local school systems, the two daily newspapers and the radio broadcasting station here, was appointed by the mayor at the request of John D. Biggers, administrator of the census of partial employment, unemployment and occupations.

Similar committees have been organized or are being selected throughout the nation. The municipal executive of each community, by virtue of his office, is chairman of the committee in his municipality.

In his communication with Mayor Bernstein, Mr. Biggers wrote: "As you know, congress has decreed, and the president has outlined a plan for taking a national census of the unemployed and partly employed."

"This census, calculated to give a quick and accurate picture of unemployment conditions in the United States, will be conducted through the distribution of blanks to all of the 31,000,000 American homes on November 16 and 17. The unemployed and partly unemployed are expected to fill out these blanks and return them to their local postmaster by midnight November 20, after which the post office representatives will conduct further checks so as to eliminate duplication."

"It is our intention, as soon as this census information is compiled, to forward to all executives of cities of 10,000 population and over, a report of the unemployment situation in those communities, which we feel will

DOOR LEFT OPEN TO NIPPONESE ON PLACE TO HOLD PROPOSED MEET

New Missive Expresses Regret Over Absence At Brussels Parley

ACCEPTANCE OF PLAN OR FLAT AID REJECTION SEEN

China And Japan Deny Suggesting Hitler As Mediator Or Umpire

BRUSSELS, Nov. 6.—(AP)—The powers seeking to end the Far Eastern war asked Japan tonight if she would confer with a smaller group of nations on peace with China.

The note, sent in English, specified that such an "exchange of views" would be within the framework of the nine-power treaty under which the Brussels conference was convened. Neither the site of the possible meeting nor the participating nations were designated, however, leaving the door open to Japan to express her wishes on the matter.

The new peace bid, expressing regret at Japan's absence from Brussels, took cognizance of Japanese "misgivings" at the presence at Brussels, of so many powers with varying interests in the Far East but expressed belief such misgivings could be allayed.

Delegates to the Brussels conference expressed belief Japan would find it hard to reject their plea if peace with China is really her intention. The message virtually offered to sacrifice the meeting called under the agreement to respect China's territorial integrity if that is what Japan wants.

The note, in reply to Japan's refusal to attend the conference, left the way open, delegates said, for Japan to choose her own road to peace. In her answer, delegates declared, Japan must either flatly reject all outside help and imply that the war must take its course, or agree to one of the proposals made by the note.

Japan, by inference, was asked to work with the conference, with a committee of the conference, with a few powers like the United States or

The HUMAN SIDE Of The News

By EDWIN C. HILL
(Copyright, 1937, by King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

MEMORABLE in "escape" literature was the late Frederick O'Brien's book, "White Shadows on the South Seas." It leapt into popularity after the war when everybody wanted to forget reality for obvious reasons, and drift away in fancy to a hula-hula Eden.

In spite of its moribund title, Lawrence Griswold's "Tombs, Travel and Trouble," just published, may prove nepenthe for stock market heebie-jeebies, anemic business and a world gone generally hay-wire.

Mr. Griswold tells many a grisly tale of his treks through jungles and deserts in Central and South America, Mexico, Africa and Tibet. Some of it is pretty strong medicine—the technique of shrinking human heads, beheadings, decapitations, fights with bushmasters and cobras, the lurking menace of fang and venom in far-away sinks of misery amid the slime and detritus of the centuries.

There is a sort of macabre fascination in the book. It makes one feel that, after all, this little oasis in time, which we euphemistically call civilization, is rather a tidy little spot, in spite of war talk and Wall Street neurosis.

MR. GRISWOLD, 38 years old, is a native of Quincy, Mass., an alumnus of Harvard who got himself quite foot-loose the minute he got his sheepskin and has been moving ever since in the

ARMISTICE DAY TO BE OBSERVED

Mayors Of Monroe And West
Monroe Proclaim November 11 As Holiday

A joint proclamation designating Armistice day a holiday within the corporate limits of Monroe and West Monroe and calling upon the residents of the two cities to join in honoring both the living and dead World war soldiers and sailors of the United States, was issued yesterday by Mayor Arnold Bernstein of Monroe and Mayor C. C. Bell of West Monroe.

Suspension of business and industrial activities between the hours of 10:30 and 11:30 a.m. November 11 in order to allow workers to attend memorial services and other exercises planned by the Ouachita Parish Veterans' council at Temple B'nai Israel, is especially urged in the proclamation. The municipal executives also requested citizens of Monroe and West Monroe to cooperate in every way with the American Legion, Veterans of Foreign Wars, United American War Veterans and Disabled American Veterans in commemorating the anniversary.

Dionne Quintuplets' Song Drifts Out Across Fields

By Mary Elizabeth Plummer
CALLANDER, Ont., Nov. 6.—(AP)—Through thin, frosty air today, across a field dotted with little spruce trees, drifted one of the most enchanting sounds in the British empire—the sound of the Dionne quintuplets singing.

Down the wide road, a radio blared in the hot dog and souvenir store operated by Papa Dionne, where you can buy anything from holy pictures to winter underwear or a birch bark canoe with toy trappers in it.

Papa Dionne, so busy and so baffled by the whole situation he has dropped farming—he has an income now anyway from the store, and a percentage of the quint's revenue—was away in New York to buy Christmas toys for all of his children.

In complexity, in charm intermingled with pathos, the set-up around the Dionne quintuplets has no counterpart. Nature played a biological trick on the universe, dumped a large set of problems in the lap of an emaciated, puzzled young couple beyond average human ability to cope with it all. She further complicated things by winning everybody's hearts with five babies, who look now as if they'll live to hearty old age.

Some things about the quintuplet scene border on the fantastic. Look, for example, at the visitors who take home pebbles from the nursery grounds. There's a legend—

CENTER'S SPECIAL HITS AUTOMOBILE

NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 6.—(AP)—Lucille Pattillo, 23, University of Alabama student, was brought to a hospital here today for treatment of a broken leg following a railroad crossing accident last night at Hammond, La.

She and three other young women and a man were driving from Tulsa, Okla., to New Orleans for the Tulane-Alabama football game.

Hammond officers said their automobile side-swiped a special train bringing 250 students of the L. S. U. Northeast Center back to Monroe, La., after last night's game with Southeastern at Hammond.

Names of the others in the car, none seriously injured, were not obtained. Their automobile was wrecked.

Two years ago another Northeast Center football special hit a car on a return trip from Hammond near here and seriously hurt two men.

FRANKLIN PARISH OFFICER ACCUSED

Police Juror Faces Trial For Alleged Forgery And Misappropriation

WINNSBORO, La., Nov. 6.—(Special)—Accused of forgery and misappropriation of parish funds, W. M. Fussell, 33-year-old Franklin parish police juror and farmer from ward nine, will go on trial in fifth district criminal court here next week.

Fussell, serving his first term on the police jury, will face the forgery charge here Tuesday, according to the present court schedule, and will go on trial Friday on the other charge. The indictments against Fussell were two out of the 41 secured by District Attorney J. Vernon Sims at the recent session of the grand jury.

After the grand jury, of which W. L. Harper of Crowleyville was foreman, had indicted Fussell for alleged "extortion in office," District Attorney Sims filed a bill of information charging the juror with forgery and he was also indicted on that charge.

The forgery charge resulted from Fussell's alleged cashing of a check which has been intended for a parish employee. The state will contend, District Attorney Sims revealed, that Fussell received a check for $2.25 from the police jury secretary which was intended for Less Woods, through an unintentional error the check was made out to a Less Walls instead, it was said, and Fussell took the check to Woods. Woods allegedly refused the check because it was not made out in his correct name.

In order of taking the check back to the police jury secretary to right the error, the state claims, Fussell went

SCHOOLS OBSERVE EDUCATION WEEK

Special Programs Planned In Celebration Of National Event

Public schools of Monroe will this week observe "American Education Week" with special programs in all of the schools. Themes for these programs, as suggested by the National Education association, are those which will be observed throughout the nation. The general subject is "Education and Our National Life." Daily topics under this general theme are:

Monday—"Buying Educational Service."
Tuesday—"The Horace Mann Centennial."
Wednesday—"Our American Youth Problem."

Friday—"School Open House Day."
Saturday—"Lifelong Learning."

Neville High school P.T. A. will have a special program Monday afternoon in harmony with the observance. Fred Williamson, managing editor of the World and News-Star, will deliver an address on "Standards of Conduct in Today's World." The meeting will begin at 4 o'clock.

In connection with the observance of "American Education Week," local school teachers and officials have emphasized the new departure in making out monthly report cards, in harmony with the new trends in education.

No longer do children in the elementary grades carry home cards showing "excellent," "good," "poor" or "failing." Instead, their cards merely say, "Working efficiently," or "Not working efficiently." Promptness, initiative, courtesy and self-control figure in the scholastic ratings.

The new method has been hailed by both teachers and parents, according to local educators.

Many schools throughout the country are adopting the new report card, it was stated Saturday by one of the educational supervisors.

Not only does the new system reduce Junior's chances of being taken to the woodshed or its modern counterpart for failing to receive high grades, but it eliminates "nagging" by parents—an important factor, it is asserted, in keeping the morale of the home on a high level.

It also eliminates the denial of certain privileges because of low marks, regardless of the child's ability to do school work.

It does away with the constant fear of some children to bring home report cards because the grades are not what the parents expect, in spite of the fact the children may be doing their very best.

The morale of the home will also be improved by the elimination of the critical and unsympathetic attitude on the part of many parents toward the difficulty their children faced under the old report card system, according to educators.

Blank sheets of paper bound with the report card are used by the teacher to make explanations and suggestions concerning the child's difficulties, progress, habits and attitudes.

Marking children simply "satisfactory" or "unsatisfactory" minimizes the overemphasis that is often placed upon report card grades, it was said.

Many children suffer unjustly by comparisons with their brothers and sisters, who happen to be favored with superior ability to do academic work and therefore naturally receive much higher grades.

If the slow-learning child, for example, is constantly forced to compete with the report card grades of children who have little or no difficulty with their academic work, he is likely to develop a hopeless attitude and lose all interest in his school work.

"This is particularly true when he constantly puts forth his best efforts, but still finds his grades far below those of other children."

Likewise the brighter child who receives an "A" or "B" with very little effort, tends to develop a "superiority complex."

According to estimates, alligators are only two feet long when they are 15 years old.

Distinguished Veteran Of War Is Week-end Visitor To Monroe

Major David A. L'Esperance, a distinguished veteran of the World war, was a visitor to Monroe over the week-end, and was a guest while here of State Senator James A. Noe, who served as a lieutenant under Major L'Esperance with the famous 369th infantry overseas.

The major, who now makes his home in Los Angeles, Calif., was on his way to New York, to participate in the observance of the 20th anniversary of the departure of the 369th for France. That anniversary comes on Armistice day, because of the coincidence that the regiment embarked from New York on November 11, 1917.

Major L'Esperance is taking with him to the anniversary celebration a case full of medals and decorations given him for distinguished service in France. One of the decorations is the coveted medal of chevalier of the French Legion of Honor, an award made by the French government only for the most conspicuous gallantry.

Another is the croix de guerre with palms, bestowed by the French military commander. Others include the United States citation for valor, the New York state distinguished service medal and the medal given by the French government for those volunteers of the American Expeditionary Force who served with the French army. The 369th was integrated with the French forces on their arrival in France.

The major modestly disclaimed any personal credit in the bestowal of the medals and decorations.

"They came to me as the senior officer of my command," he said. "They were won by the brave officers who served under me, men like Lieutenant Noe and the others who distinguished themselves throughout the entire campaign in which we served."

Major L'Esperance plans to present the regimental officers at the anniversary celebration in New York next Thursday. "That is where they belong," he said, "in the custody of the regiment as a permanent record of achievement by the men who led the 369th throughout the war. The regiment originally was the 15th National Guard of New York. It was given designation as the 369th infantry when it was incorporated with the expeditionary forces going overseas."

The distinguished visitor, who was making his first visit to north Louisiana, was loud in his praises of this section of the state and Monroe in particular. He came from Los Angeles by automobile, and was much impressed with "the wonderful system of highways, the evidences of prosperity and orderliness manifest all along the way across the state, from the Texas line to Monroe."

"You have a wonderful country here," he said, "one that you can be highly proud of."

He made the journey to Monroe especially to renew contact with Senator Noe, whom he had not seen in 15 years.

Major L'Esperance is a prominent lawyer in California, where he is serving as a deputy district attorney for Los Angeles county, having especial charge of cases involving business frauds. Before going to California he served for many years as an assistant United States attorney for the southern district of New York, a position to which he was appointed by President Harding. Virtually every officer of the 369th infantry has won distinction in various fields of service in the United States since returning from the World war, the major said. Lieutenant George A. Noble, now occupying a high post in Kansas, was one of the select few of the entire expeditionary force who were awarded the congressional medal of honor.

OIL AND GAS NEWS

NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 6.—(P)—The state conservation department reported today that only eight permits for oil drilling in Louisiana had been issued during the week ending Friday. Fifteen new wells were completed.

Department attaches said that although drilling operations ordinarily decline in the fall, the decrease in permits issued was unusually sharp. Thirty had been issued the previous week.

The Rodessa field led in number of completions with four.

The field, name of producer, name of well and initial daily production of each producer follow:

Evangeline, Acadia parish, Superior Oil company, Jennings-Heywood No. 4, 342 barrels; Gibson, Terrebonne parish, Shell Petroleum corporation, Pelican No. 3, 995; Iberia, Iberia parish, three wells—William Helis, Bullock No. 5, 631.80; the Texas company, J. P. Duhe No. 4, 739.68; the Texas company, Celeste Cralino et al., No. 3, 346.

LaFite, Jefferson parish, the Texas company, State-Bayou Norman No. 1, 1,817; Lisbon, Claiborne, Magnolia Petroleum company, F. Corbin No. 2, 913; Scout Oil company and Red Iron Drilling company, J. T. Bean No. 1, 264.

North Crowley, Acadia parish, Humble Oil and Refining company, Anton Chlenforst No. 1, 765.87; Rodessa, Caddo parish, four wells—Gulf Refining company, M. G. Campbell No. 2, 46; Standard Oil Company of Louisiana, J. E. McCoy No. 3, 1,200; Surf Oil company, L. O. Allison No. 1, 40; and Ralph G. Trippett et al., Davis-McKinney No. 1, 168.

White Castle, Iberville parish, Shell Petroleum corporation, White Castle Lumber company No. 5, 642; Zwolle, Sabine parish, Hunter company, Bowman-Hicks Lumber company No. 1, 216.

The conservation department estimated for the week ending October 30

LEAD A HORSE TO WATER—

It must be a sea horse, police concluded after futile efforts to induce Dobbin to emerge from the pool on the Carl Elder estate at Sea Cliff, L. I., where pranksters "stabled" him. The pool was drained and a ramp built, but Dobbin refused to budge until a derrick lifted him out. Yes, you can lead a horse to water, but you can't always be sure what he'll do after he gets there.

a daily average production of 167,750 barrels in the Louisiana gulf coast region and 76,265 barrels in north Louisiana.

One permit for drilling operations was issued to each of the following applicants:

LOTT GOIN CHAPTER PLANS BIG PARADE

Armistice day will be celebrated with a parade and a morning and night program November 11 by Lott Goin chapter, negro unit of Disabled American Veterans of the World War.

The parade will leave Monroe College High school, where the programs will later be presented, at 10 o'clock in the morning and, in returning to its point of origin after traversing other thoroughfares, will pass through DeSiard street.

The morning program will start at 11 o'clock. Sponsored by the women's auxiliary of the chapter, it will be featured by an address by Mrs. W. C. Holstein, executive secretary of the Ouachita parish chapter of the American Red Cross.

The night program, beginning at 7:30 o'clock, will be climaxed with an address by Dr. S. E. Dodd of Shreveport, who will be introduced to the assemblage by C. E. McKenzie, commander of Barkedull Faulk post of the American Legion. Other numbers on the program include a scripture reading, prayers, talks and songs. The songs will be given by members of the choir of Martin Temple.

Rev. P. E. Pierce will act as master of ceremonies at all of the events. L. Davis is commander of Lott Goin chapter.

SCHOOLS OBSERVE EDUCATION WEEK

Special Programs Planned In Celebration Of National Event

Public schools of Monroe will this week observe "American Education Week" with special programs in all of the schools. Themes for these programs, as suggested by the National Education association, are those which will be observed throughout the nation. The general subject is, "Education and Our National Life." Daily topics under this general theme are:

- Monday—"Buying Educational Service."
- Tuesday—"The Horace Mann Centennial."
- Wednesday—"Our American Youth Problem."
- Friday—"School Open House Day."
- Saturday—"Lifelong Learning."

Neville High school P-T. A. will have a special program Monday afternoon in harmony with the observance. Fred Williamson, managing editor of the World and News-Star, will deliver an address on "Standards of Conduct in Today's World." The meeting will begin at 4 o'clock.

In connection with the observance of "American Education Week," local school teachers and officials have emphasized the new departure in making out monthly report cards, in harmony with the new trends in education.

No longer do children in the elementary grades carry home cards showing "excellent," "good," "poor" or "failing." Instead, their cards merely say, "Working efficiently" or "Not working efficiently." Promptness, initiative, courtesy and self-control figure in the scholastic ratings.

The new method has been hailed by both teachers and parents, according to local educators.

Many schools throughout the country are adopting the new report card, it was stated Saturday by one of the educational supervisors.

Not only does the new system reduce Junior's chances of being taken to the woodshed or its modern counterpart for failing to receive high grades, but it eliminates "nagging" by parents—an important factor, it is asserted, in keeping the morale of the home on a high level.

It also eliminates the denial of certain privileges because of low marks, regardless of the child's ability to do school work.

It does away with the constant fear of some children to bring home report cards because the grades are not what the parents expect, in spite of the fact the children may be doing their very best.

The morale of the home will also be improved by the elimination of the critical and unsympathetic attitude on the part of many parents toward the difficulty their children face under the old report card system, according to educators.

Blank sheets of paper bound with the report card are used by the teacher to make explanations and suggestions concerning the child's difficulties, progress, habits and attitudes.

Marking children simply "satisfactory" or "unsatisfactory" minimizes the overemphasis that is often placed upon report card grades, it was said.

Many children suffer unjustly by comparisons with their brothers and sisters, who happen to be favored with superior ability to do academic work and therefore naturally receive much higher grades.

If the slow-learning child, for example, is constantly forced to compete with the report card grades of children who have little or no difficulty with their academic work, he is likely to develop a hopeless attitude and lose all interest in his school work.

"This is particularly true when he constantly puts forth his best efforts, but still finds his grades far below those of other children."

Likewise the brighter child who receives an "A" or "B" with very little effort, tends to develop a "superiority complex."

According to estimates, alligators are only two feet long when they are 15 years old.

MILK TRUCK HALTED BY DAIRY FARMERS' BARRAGE

Rotten eggs and over-ripe tomatoes are the ammunition used by striking dairy farmers of New York state in their war to force recognition of the Dairy Farmers' union and higher prices for milk from dealers supplying New York City. A group of strikers above lay down a barrage of produce to halt a milk truck at Potsdam, N. Y.

Distinguished Veteran Of War Is Week-end Visitor To Monroe

Major David A. L'Esperance, a distinguished veteran of the World War, was a visitor to Monroe over the week-end, and was a guest while here of State Senator James A. Noe, who served as a lieutenant under Major L'Esperance with the famous 369th infantry overseas.

The major, who now makes his home in Los Angeles, Calif., was on his way to New York to participate in the observance of the 20th anniversary of the departure of the 369th for France. That anniversary comes on Armistice day, because of the coincidence that the regiment embarked from New York on November 11, 1917.

Major L'Esperance is taking with him to the anniversary celebration a case full of medals and decorations given him for distinguished service in France. One of the decorations is the coveted medal of chevalier of the French Legion of Honor, an award made by the French government only for the most conspicuous gallantry. Another is the croix de guerre with palms, bestowed by the French military commander. Others include the United States citation for valor, the New York state distinguished service medal and the medal given by the French government for those volunteers of the American Expeditionary Force who served with the French army. The 369th was integrated with the French forces on their arrival in France.

The major modestly disclaimed any personal credit in the bestowal of the medals and decorations.

"They came to me as the senior officer of my command," he said. "They were won by the brave officers who served under me, men like Lieutenant Noe and the others who distinguished themselves throughout the entire campaign in which we served."

Major L'Esperance plans to present the entire collection of decorations to the regimental officers at the anniversary celebration in New York next Thursday. "That is where they belong," he said, "in the custody of the regiment as a permanent record of achievement by the men who led the 369th throughout the war. The regiment originally was the 15th National Guard of New York. It was given designation as the 369th infantry when it was incorporated with the expeditionary forces going overseas."

The distinguished visitor, who was making his first visit to north Louisiana, was loud in his praises of this section of the state and Monroe in particular. He came from Los Angeles by automobile, and was much impressed with "the wonderful system of highways, the evidences of prosperity and orderliness manifest all along the way across the state, from the Texas line to Monroe."

"You have a wonderful country here," he said, "one that you can be highly proud of."

He made the journey to Monroe especially to renew contact with Senator Noe, whom he had not seen in 15 years.

Major L'Esperance is a prominent lawyer in California, where he is serving as a deputy district attorney for Los Angeles county, having especial charge of cases involving business frauds. Before going to California he served for many years as an assistant United States attorney for the southern district of New York, a position

TECH GIRL SECRETARY OF STATE BAPTIST STUDENTS

RUSTON, La., Nov. 6.—(Special)—Eunice Renfrow, student at Louisiana Tech from Tallulah, has been named the new Baptist Students union secretary for the state of Louisiana. Miss Renfrow accompanied about 60 other students from this college to New Orleans for the annual state conference. Those from Tech who had prominent parts on the program were Ardis Fowler, Ruston; Lomis Stewart, Gibsland, and William Anders, Arcadia, all of whom sang at the convention. Miss Elizabeth Thompson, local B. S. U. secretary, spoke to the group of students who came from all parts of the state. Baptist students will meet at Memphis next year for a south-wide convention. This general meeting will take the place of the individual state gatherings, it was announced.

RESERVE OFFICERS MEET SCHEDULED FOR MONDAY

"The Siege of Vicksburg" will be the subject for study at a conference of reserve officers of the Monroe area, to be held Monday night at 7:30 o'clock at the American Legion home in Forsythe park, according to an announcement made by Colonel William S. Woodruff of Shreveport, district instructor of reserve officers. Captain Jefferson E. Kidd will conduct the study of the subject.

Deeds Mean More Than Words

"How can you tell when a person is a Christian?" one man inquired, meaning one who is upright in character and devoted to righteous principles.

"Ask him," was the advice.
You never need to ask a person whether or not he is a righteous, high-principled man. His behavior will always speak for him.

It is never necessary to ask a man whether he is a gentleman, or a woman whether she is a lady. Whenever you hear a man bragging that he is a perfect gentleman, or a woman that she is a perfect lady, you can know just what to expect. We have never heard a man insisting he was sober who was not drunk.

What a man is, will make so much noise that it is not necessary for him to say anything.

But how can we distinguish a so-called Christian from one who is a non-Christian? We can't. There are many non-Christians who as a matter of fact are far superior to many so-called Christians—to persons who merely called themselves Christians. Often the so-called Christians may be more harmful to religions than those who are frankly irreligious.

A study of the great religions of the world offers convincing testimony that the greatest of all is Christianity. But one must practise Christianity to make it effective—not merely profess it as so many so-called Christians do.

From the beginning of religious history schemers have seized control of spiritual movements and manipulated them for selfish purposes; that same deplorable condition is found today in many religious groups in the United States.

Christianity has magnificent opportunities and possibilities, but before it can really go places the tricksters who use churches for personal profit as they use business, social and political organizations will have to be ousted from the amen corners.

Get men's hearts right and they will get their heads right and work out their problems together. There is no agency comparable to the church for getting men's hearts right; but clever plotters whose thirst is to prey on their fellows, confuse them, mislead them, anesthetize them, do not want men's hearts and heads to be right; they are afraid of men with right heads and hearts. So with sanctimonious faces, ingratiating ways, plausible phrases, they seize the machinery of spiritual enterprises. All through history that crime of the ages has been going on and it is still going on.

PARENTAL RIGHTS, DUTIES

That the "sacred rights of parenthood" are accompanied by equally sacred duties is graphically illustrated by the recent litigation concerning custody of Freddie Bartholomew, child movie star.

Freddie's parents sought to have set aside the previous court order by which his aunt, Miss Mylicent Bartholomew, had adopted him. Offhand, one might suppose that their plea was no more than right; after all, do not a boy's mother and father have first claim on his affections, and are they not the people who can best be trusted to look after his interests?

But it developed that Freddie was given into the care of his aunt when he was 3 years old, and that he had remained with her since. He testified that his parents "are strangers to me." He had grown to give his aunt the trust and affection that a boy ordinarily gives to his mother.

This being the case, it is hard to quarrel with the court decision that his aunt's custody of him is to remain undisturbed.

WHEN TO STOP DRIVING

Six years ago a Cleveland business man went to the state penitentiary for automobile manslaughter, his auto having killed a young cyclist. The business man fled after the accident, but was caught by police. In addition to going to prison, he paid out $24,000 in damages in civil suits, two other boys having been injured in the same accident.

He served 14 months and came out of prison, one would suppose, a sadder and wiser man. But just the other day he was arrested again, charged with having driven away with his lights turned out after his car hit and critically injured a pedestrian.

Wouldn't you think that such a man would give up driving for life? On the evidence, it seems fairly clear that he has precious little business behind a steering wheel.

Machines don't prove us superior to the ancients. They also could have pushed a button on a fool-proof machine.

It's a fortunate thing for the fond fathers who dress up as Santa Claus, that Christmas doesn't come in summer.

If a new depression arrives in 1939, as General Dawes predicts, how will they connect this with Hoover?

It has happened at last. A refrigerator salesman has sold an icebox to an Eskimo.

Lucky stiff: Any rich guy who worked harder than you are willing to work.

RHYME AND REASON

By ANNE CAMPBELL

THE HAPPY HOME OF LONG AGO

The happy home of long ago
Is standing as before,
No children scamper to and fro;
No friends knock at the door.
There are no laughing voices now
Beneath the gnarled snow apple bough,
And there is rust upon the plow
My father wields no more.

The happy home of long ago
Is twined with memories.
I can still see November glow
Upon the maple trees.
I smell the heaping red leaves burn,
And see the wild geese wheel and turn.
It is in autumn that I yearn
For sights and sounds like these.

The happy home of long ago,
With friendly, homely walls;
The sprawling old front porch built low

CODE OF VALOR

By BRUCE CATTON

Armies change from age to age and the generals are all different, but the men who get in there and do the fighting are pretty much the same, now and always.

Like the cavaliers in Tennyson's poem, their job is comparatively simple—to do and/or die; and down through the centuries they have had an implicit and whole-hearted admiration for fellow members of their craft who display special skill at the grim business.

So that little story about the Chinese "suicide squadron" at Shanghai, and the hit it made with the European soldiers who stood on the sidelines, is a revealing bit of history.

This suicide squadron consisted of a hundred or so Chinese soldiers who had taken cover in a ruinous warehouse along Szechow creek to dispute the advance of the Japanese. They got in there and stayed for more than two days, subjected to heavy fire throughout, going woefully short on sleep and food, and facing nothing but certain death if they didn't retreat—which they grimly refused to do.

Across the creek, in the international defense sector, was a detachment of British regulars—Royal Welsh Fusiliers. And the stout fighting qualities shown by these Chinese soldiers somehow got under the hides of these Britishers. So after a while, when the Japanese attempted a coup to drive out the Chinese, the British Tommies came to the rescue—unofficially, unneutrally, but effectively.

The Japanese came up the stream in two naval launches mounting light guns. The banks of the river were lined with the innumerable little boats called sampans, which are part of every Chinese waterfront. And what did the Royal Welsh Fusiliers do but show the Chinese how to mass these sampans together across the stream, tying them together with cables, so as to block the path of the launches? That done, they led them to construct a similar barricade farther down the stream, so that the Japanese launches were neatly trapped.

Nor is that all. The brass hats felt the same sort of soldierly admiration for the dauntless Chinese. A British brigadier general and an American brigadier general joined in sending a telegram to Chiang Kai-shek himself, begging him to order the heroic soldiers to withdraw and save their lives. It was none of their business, of course; apparently the whole business just naturally got to them.

For that is the way it is, with soldiers. Fighting men are a class apart. They live by their own rules and are bound by their own code. They may not often inquire what the fighting is all about, but they frequently grow infinitely weary of the fighting itself—but they never fail to give their admiration wholeheartedly to men of their own calling who show unmistakably that they have what it takes.

A BOOK REVIEW

VALIANT PIONEERS OF SOD-HOUSE ERA

They settled on a choice prairie claim one day and a speculative squatter jumped on it the next. They turned up the tough range sod, cut it into long strips and built a rudimentary home. And it rained and the sod bogged down and the roof caved in and ruined everything. So they doggedly set about building anew.

Life was like that on the prairie lands of the middle west in those incomparable decades from 1854 to 1890 and Everett Dick has caught the mighty sweep of it all in his lively chronicle, "The Sod-House Frontier." Here is a story that should go far to supplement one of the great dramatic chapters of our history.

For American histories for the most part have concerned themselves with the trends, the political maneuverings, the cause and effect of these pioneer eras; Professor Dick has gone a bit deeper and routed out the pioneers themselves.

His book is a remarkable recounting of these exciting years. Set against the background of territorial Kansas, Nebraska and the two Dakotas, "The Sod-House Frontier" is the saga of new towns and a new democracy, of how the settlers traveled and worked and amused themselves, how they handled the outlaws, claim-jumpers, and horse thieves. (A horse thief was something more than an outlaw then.)

Hostile Indians, droughts, blizzards and grasshoppers, prairie fires, dust storms—these were part and parcel of the new emigrants' lot as well and Mr. Dick has covered all. From old letters, diaries, newspapers, records, and old settlers themselves, Mr. Dick drew his material first-hand. The result is about the most humanly intimate picture of those times we are likely to see for a long while.—P. G. F.

PURRRRI!

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McINTYRE

I talked the other day with a gentleman who spent four days with the Duke and Duchess of Windsor in Austria recently. A bit prejudiced, being of English parentage, by the abdication he completely reversed his opinion and came away singing praise.

Especially was he convinced that their love affair is one rarely existing save in the story books. He found the duchess lively, witty and with an answer for everything. He compared her repartee to Dorothy Parker although with less of a sting. He says the duke sits adoringly when she talks and as a rule she dominates every conversation, especially at meal time. There is no lovey-dovey stuff between them even among closest friends. He is more the well-mannered courtier in her presence.

About the only show of affection outwardly between them is when they start off for the golf course or on one of their daily long walks. At such times she slips her arm into his and bestows a few quick squeezes and he invariably turns and smiles at her. It seems to be a gesture understood between them.

Now and then she will tilt the duke when she thinks he is oversteering, but in a bantering manner, and he immediately slows down. There are moments when the duke seems lost in a sort of reverie. Naturally, everybody has an idea about what he is thinking. But the duchess will not permit such vagaries long. She knows how quickly to joust him out of a daze—if it is one. My informant believes the marriage will endure because of all the wives he had ever seen she seems to be the most accomplished in diverting her husband.

He believes that they will not go back to England for a year or so and that there is a chance their visit to America will be more extended than has been announced.

Those earnest young zealots who mount the flag-decorated step ladder around Union square and on West 52nd street to howl grievances and slyly whip over a few choice ideas from Moscow are being heckled far more than a few months ago, when they got away with some unbelievable sneers for America and the constitution. People then listened to their propaganda without protest. But now they have grown resentful and fire embarrassing questions. And there is always the brass fellow to call out: "If you don't like this country why don't you go back where you came from?" Also groups of young self-appointed hecklers are forming and now and then the police have had to step in.

Sheila Barrett's expensively engraved invitation to a recent cocktail party read: "Listen you mug—I'm throwing" a swell brawl up at that there swanky joint. The Rainbow room. It's for cocktails (glugs to you) on Sunday. (Old Cow-hand Sheila (Boots and Girdle) Barrett."

Not since the days of heated personal journalism and pistols for two has there been anything like Heywood Brown's "letter to a publisher" in a recent issue of The New Republic. Brown opened up facetiously with the announcement he was referring to no such living persons, and then proceeded to release what seems to be a long-pent-up dislike for the works of his employer, Roy Howard.

While the tenor of the letter tried to make it appear all in good fun, it had some venomous thrusts, and the newspapers are wondering what next.

I have noticed suburbs, such as Yonkers and Forest Hills, have ice cream parlors, those cherry holdovers of a gallant past. There are marble topped tables and the ice cream is served in saucers with slices of home made cake. There are no dim-lit side booths, no jazz, just old-fashioned free-handed sociability. Everything is in the open. The ice cream parlors are run mostly by widows trying to send daughters to finishing schools.

A Bronx poetical cheer for Tommy Manville: Tommy is fond of flocks of blondes And the blondes are fond of dough; So everywhere that Tommy goes The blondes are sure to go. But Tommy, alas, he now depends, For his stock of blondes is low; For when you lose your stocks and bonds, The blondes are sure to go.

The freedom from Mike might of the ordinary person met along the highways is illustrated by the vox pop program so ably conducted by Parks Johnson and Wally Butterfield. I am told it is the favorite tune-in of Mayor LaGuardia. The microphone is set up in various parts of town and passers-by, unhesitatingly, are asked to step up and talk about this, that and the other. Very seldom does a voice flutter or is there any other show of nervousness.

STAMP NEWS

By I. S. Klein

FULL descriptions, dates and places of first-day sale for the Alaskan, Puerto Rican and Virgin Islands commemorative postage stamps have been announced by Postmaster General James A. Farley.

The Alaskan stamp will go on sale in Juneau, Nov. 12; the Puerto Rican issue at San Juan, Nov. 25, and the Virgin Islands stamp at Charlotte Amalie on Dec. 15. General sales at post-offices throughout the United States will start the following day or as soon thereafter as distribution can be arranged.

The three stamps, each of the 3-cent denomination, will be arranged horizontally and printed in purple ink in sheets of 50 on rotary presses.

The Alaska stamp will have as its central design a view of snow-capped Mt. McKinley, while the foreground will depict an Alaskan rural scene. A reproduction of the old Governor's Palace, known as "La Fortaleza," will feature the central design of the Puerto Rican issue. The central motif of the Virgin Islands stamp will be a view of the city of Charlotte Amalie with the outlying harbor and sugar loaf mountains in the distance.

Stamp collectors desiring first-day cancellations of the new stamps at the respective territorial capitals should address their covers in care of the postmasters at Juneau, San Juan and Charlotte Amalie. This should be done without delay.

The new French stamp commemorating the United States Constitution is a 1.75 franc light blue. The central design depicts La Belle France and Columbia clasping hands against a background of the Stars and Stripes and the French Tricolor.

Elaine Rawlinson of New York won the national stamp design contest sponsored by the U. S. government. Charles Bauer of East Orange, N. J., captured the second award. (Copyright, 1937, NEA Service, Inc.)

YOUR HEALTH

By Dr. Morris Fishbein

Editor, Journal of the American Medical Association, and of Hygiene, the Health Magazine

Cold sores occur most commonly around the lips, but they may occur anywhere on the body. Usually they cause burning or tingling of the skin, after which the group of blisters will appear.

Their appearance has been related with an attack of fever, prolonged exposure to wind, or sun, and the eating of certain foods. Many women have them regularly just before or during periodic functions.

Most physicians are convinced that herpes or cold sores are due to a filterable virus—an organism so small that it cannot be seen through an ordinary microscope. It is believed that this organism affects the nervous system.

Other physicians are convinced that the sores are wholly of nervous origin. The exact cause has not been absolutely established and there may be multiple causes. Fortunately, herpes or cold sores usually disappear within a week. They may, however, recur.

There are many different treatments, most of them involving substances of a drying character. Certainly it is important to keep the area clean because any tissues damaged by blisters which break are likely to be subject to secondary infections.

The ordinary drugstore cure involves camphor, alcohol, alum and similar agents, one seeming to work about as well as another.

A physician may use stronger remedies, depending of course on the state of the blisters at the time he first sees them.

Few people consult a doctor about cold sores unless they happen to be secondarily infected or so many in number that they are a serious annoyance.

The cold sore should not, however, be confused with an attack of the shingles, which is also called herpes. The cold sore is called herpes simplex. The shingles are called herpes zoster.

CLAIBORNE FARM BUREAU HAS MEMBERSHIP OF 500

HOMER, La., Nov. 6.—(Special)—The Claiborne parish farm bureau organization a month ago now has a membership of 500. Plans are being made for a booster meeting of the organization to be held here at the city hall on November 19.

Atkins Bailey, president of the organization, has invited the following persons to address the forthcoming assembly: Governor Richard Leche, J. G. Lee, Jr., J. W. Bateman and F. W. Spencer, of the extension division of Louisiana State university; and Harry Chalkey, Jr., of Lake Charles, president of the Louisiana farm bureau.

The parish farm bureau is designed to improve agricultural conditions in the parish, to provide an exchange of ideas between members, and to draft suggestions for legislation favoring farm interests.

STUDENTS ORGANIZING BAND AT QUITMAN HIGH

QUITMAN, La., Nov. 6.—(Special)—Students of the Quitman High school are organizing a band to be directed by Mike Kelly of Jonesboro. A box supper was given recently and the proceeds went for the purchase of a drum and bass horn. Other instruments have been ordered and practice will begin in a few days.

The school's harmonica and rhythmic band is being directed by Miss R. V. Clayton, music advisor of the school.

TO CONDUCT MISSION

LAKE PROVIDENCE, La., Nov. 6.—(Special)—Rev. Thomas J. S. McGrath of Shreveport, will begin an eight-day mission here at St. Patrick's Catholic church Sunday morning at 10 o'clock. Father F. J. Plutz is priest of the local church.

BEHIND THE SCENES IN WASHINGTON

WASHINGTON—President Roosevelt is asked about revision of the surplus profits and capital gains taxes. He replies that the New Deal's chief objective is more purchasing power for the underprivileged "one-third" and that his wage-hour program and the new crop control program will be aimed at that.

This reflects the president's mind fairly accurately, according to many who have been talking with him earnestly. The reflection depresses some of his advisers and elates others.

It is now certain that the heat which has been turned on Roosevelt in the effort to persuade him to ask corporate surplus and capital gains tax revision will have to become much hotter if the president's brand of "revision" is to satisfy the business groups and conservative advisers who have been urging him.

Stock Slump Not Alarming

Roosevelt, if some of his intimates interpret him correctly, is convinced that the business slump causes the worst of the stock market drop—not vice versa, and that the two chief causes are the same.

Industry's stocking heavy inventories at high prices last spring. Industry's raising prices higher than the market would accept. Such a view obviously minimizes any adverse effect of higher wage scales.

Although the administration has its quota of Cassandras, in general it is not seriously disturbed by the threat of a business tail-spin. The business situation will smooth itself out, it's believed in high places.

And if it doesn't, the government thinks that it possesses important remedial powers. The president's warning against soaring prices had a very definite effect on commodity markets last spring. It is claimed, and the federal reserve board's recent margin requirements changes started the stock market going up again.

More Spending Ahead

Roosevelt's remark that the government in the last year had reduced its direct contribution to the national income by $2,000,000,000 may turn out to be more significant than it appeared.

Despite announcement that they would be liquidated, the spending and lending machinery of PWA and RFC are being kept oiled and ready for possible crisis. (That's supposed to be a secret.) One recovery assurance that the spending program will be resumed "if needed." It seems impossible to tell just how many, if any, fingers Roosevelt has crossed when he talks of balancing the budget, but his general philosophy creates doubts as to whether he really thinks he can do it without more taxation in case the national income isn't materially boosted before long.

Despite many recent pleas to him, Roosevelt says he doesn't think the secret of national economic success is in relieving "the rich man" or helping him make more money. He holds that poor man's recovery must come rapidly than rich men, that the dollars of poor people thus accelerate increase in national income much faster than dollars of rich people and that it consequently is best to feed poor people as many dollars as possible.

Consequently, relief from the capital gains tax, which has been urged so long, is likely to be confined to rich men who will invest money in housing construction.

No Concessions

As to the corporate surplus profits tax, the president thus far sticks to the principle that investors rather than corporate managements should decide whether corporate profits should be distributed, invested in expansion or stored away. He won't accept the New York view that the tax is wrecking the capital market. Apparently, however, he does realize that the tax is hard on small business, which has no real access to the capital market.

No hint whatever appears that Roosevelt would be willing to modify the SEC act or his power policy—or abandon any of his congressional program.

SPECIAL MUSICAL PROGRAM PLANNED

An innovation in musical programs will be given Monday evening at 8 p.m., when members of the Fine Arts club will sponsor a Hebrew hymn festival at Temple B'nai Israel.

Old Hebrew melodies will be presented by the chorus and the audience will be invited to join in the singing. Several special numbers will be presented on the program, including a violin solo, "Cavallera Rusticana," by Fred Rosenbaum; a vocal selection, "Prayer Perfect," by Mrs. Paul Newman, and an organ solo, "Prelude," by Leon Hammond.

The program is being given under the direction of Leon Hammond and Mrs. Charles Ganshell. The public is invited.

FORTY AND EIGHT PLANS BIG 'WRECK'

A "wreck" or initiation, for a large number of candidates for membership in the Forty and Eight, American Legion fun society, will be conducted by the Monroe veterans at the Legion Memorial home in Forsythe park tomorrow night. It was announced yesterday by Jesse DeArmond, chief de gate of the local unit.

Candidates to be initiated reside in Bastrop, Ruston, Farmerville, Rayville and other communities in northeast Louisiana, as well as in Monroe and West Monroe.

All members of the local veterans have been urged to attend the "wreck."

BISHOP TO OFFICIATE

LAKE PROVIDENCE, La., Nov. 6.—(Special)—Rev. James Craig Morris, D. D., Episcopal bishop of Louisiana, will deliver a sermon and conduct holy communion here at Grace Episcopal church next Friday night.

Deeds Mean More Than Words

"How can you tell when a person is a Christian?" one man inquired, meaning one who is upright in character and devoted to righteous principles.

"Ask him," was the advice.
You never need to ask a person whether or not he is a righteous, high-principled man. His behavior will always speak for him.

It is never necessary to ask a man whether he is a gentleman, or a woman whether she is a lady. Whenever you hear a man bragging that he is a perfect gentleman, or a woman that she is a perfect lady, you can know just what to expect. We have never heard a man insisting he was sober who was not drunk.

What a man is, will make so much noise that it is not necessary for him to say anything.

But how can we distinguish a so-called Christian from one who is a non-Christian? We can't. There are many non-Christians who as a matter of fact are far superior to many so-called Christians—to persons who merely called themselves Christians. Often the so-called Christians may be more harmful to religions than those who are frankly irreligious.

A study of the great religions of the world offers convincing testimony that the greatest of all is Christianity. But one must practise Christianity to make it effective—not merely profess it as so many so-called Christians do.

From the beginning of religious history schemers have seized control of spiritual movements and manipulated them for selfish purposes; that same deplorable condition is found today in many religious groups in the United States.

Christianity has magnificent opportunities and possibilities, but before it can really go places the tricksters who use churches for personal profit as they use business, social and political organizations will have to be ousted from the amen corners.

Get men's hearts right and they will get their heads right and work out their problems together. There is no agency comparable to the church for getting men's hearts right; but clever plotters whose thirst is to prey on their fellows, confuse them, mislead them, anesthetize them, do not want men's hearts and heads to be right; they are afraid of men with right heads and hearts. So with sanctimonious faces, ingratiating ways, plausible phrases, they seize the machinery of spiritual enterprises. All through history that crime of the ages has been going on and it is still going on.

PARENTAL RIGHTS, DUTIES

That the "sacred rights of parenthood" are accompanied by equally sacred duties is graphically illustrated by the recent litigation concerning custody of Freddie Bartholomew, child movie star.

Freddie's parents sought to have set aside the previous court order by which his aunt, Miss Mylicent Bartholomew, had adopted him. Offhand, one might suppose that their plea was no more than right; after all, do not a boy's mother and father have first claim on his affections, and are they not the people who can best be trusted to look after his interests?

But it developed that Freddie was given into the care of his aunt when he was 3 years old, and that he had remained with her since. He testified that his parents "are strangers to me." He had grown to give his aunt the trust and affection that a boy ordinarily gives to his mother.

This being the case, it is hard to quarrel with the court decision that his aunt's custody of him is to remain undisturbed.

WHEN TO STOP DRIVING

Six years ago a Cleveland business man went to the state penitentiary for automobile manslaughter, his auto having killed a young cyclist. The business man fled after the accident, but was caught by police. In addition to going to prison, he paid out $24,000 in damages in civil suits, two other boys having been injured in the same accident.

He served 14 months and came out of prison, one would suppose, a sadder and wiser man. But just the other day he was arrested again, charged with having driven away with his lights turned out after his car hit and critically injured a pedestrian.

Wouldn't you think that such a man would give up driving for life? On the evidence, it seems fairly clear that he has precious little business behind a steering wheel.

Machines don't prove us superior to the ancients. They also could have pushed a button on a fool-proof machine.

It's a fortunate thing for the fond fathers who dress up as Santa Claus, that Christmas doesn't come in summer.

If a new depression arrives in 1939, as General Dawes predicts, how will they connect this with Hoover?

It has happened at last. A refrigerator salesman has sold an icebox to an Eskimo.

THE HAPPY HOME OF LONG AGO

The happy home of long ago
Is standing as before.
No children scamper to and fro;
No friends knock at the door.
There are no laughing voices now
Beneath the gnarled snow apple bough,
And there is rust upon the plow
My father wields no more.

The happy home of long ago
Is twined with memories.
I can still see November glow
Upon the maple trees.
I smell the heaping red leaves burn,
And see the wild geese wheel and turn.
It is in autumn that I yearn
For sights and sounds like these.

The happy home of long ago,
With friendly, homely walls;
The sprawling old front porch built low
Upon the ground, the halls
So quaint and narrow, the dear roof,
That sheltered us; these are the proof
That Heaven never is aloof,

Not since the days of heated personal journalism and pistols for two has there been anything like Heywood Brown's "letter to a publisher," in a recent issue of The New Republic. Brown opened up facetiously with the announcement he was referring to no such living persons, and then proceeded to release what seems to be a long-pent-up dislike for the works of his employer, Roy Howard. While the tenor of the letter tried to make it appear all in good fun, it had some venomous thrusts, and the newspapers are wondering what next.

I have noticed suburbs, such as Yonkers and Forest Hills, have ice cream parlors, those cheery holdovers of a gallant past. There are marble topped tables and the ice cream is served in saucers with slices of home made cake. There are no dim-lit side booths, no jazz, just old-fashioned free-handed sociability. Everything is in the open. The ice cream parlors are run mostly by widows trying to send daughters to finishing schools.

A Bronx poetical cheer for Tommy Manville: Tommy is fond of flocks of blondes And the blondes are fond of dough; So everywhere that Tommy goes The blondes are sure to go. But Tommy, alas, he now desponds, For his stock of blondes is low; For when you lose your stocks and bonds The blondes are sure to go.

The freedom from mite fright of the ordinary person met along the highways is illustrated by the vox pop program so ably conducted by Parks Johnson and Wally Butterfield. I am told it is the favorite tune-in of Mayor LaGuardia. The microphone is set up in various parts of town and passers-by, unheeded, are asked to step up and talk about this, that and the other. Very seldom does a voice flutter or is there any other show of nervousness.

STAMP NEWS

By I. S. Klein
FULL descriptions, dates and places of first-day sale for the Alaskan, Puerto Rican and Virgin Islands commemorative postage stamps have been announced by Postmaster General James A. Farley.

The Alaskan stamp will go on sale in Juneau, Nov. 12; the Puerto Rican issue at San Juan, Nov. 25, and the Virgin Islands stamp at Charlotte Amalie on Dec. 15. General sales at post-offices throughout the United States will start the following day or as soon thereafter as distribution can be arranged.

The three stamps, each of the 3-cent denomination, will be arranged horizontally and printed in purple ink in sheets of 50 on rotary presses.

The Alaska stamp will have as its central design a view of snow-capped Mt. McKinley, while the foreground will depict an Alaskan rural scene. A reproduction of the old Governor's Palace, known as "La Fortaleza," will feature the central design of the Puerto Rican issue. The central motif of the Virgin Islands stamp will be a view of the city of Charlotte Amalie with the outlying harbor and sugar loaf mountains in the distance.

Stamp collectors desiring first-day cancellations of the new stamps at the respective territorial capitals should address their covers in care of the postmasters at Juneau, San Juan and Charlotte Amalie. This should be done without delay.

The new French stamp commemorating the United States Constitution is a 1.75 franc light blue. The central design depicts La Belle France and Columbia clasping hands against a background of the Stars and Stripes and the French Tricolor.

Elaine Rawlinson of New York won the national stamp design contest sponsored by the U. S. government. Charles Bauer of East Orange, N. J., captured the second award.

YOUR HEALTH

By Dr. Morris Fishbein
Editor, Journal of the American Medical Association, and of Hygiene, the Health Magazine

Cold sores occur most commonly around the lips, but they may occur anywhere on the body. Usually they cause burning or tingling of the skin, after which the group of blisters will appear.

Their appearance has been related with an attack of fever, prolonged exposure to wind, or sun, and the eating of certain foods. Many women have them regularly just before or during periodic functions.

Most physicians are convinced that herpes or cold sores are due to a filterable virus—an organism so small that it cannot be seen through an ordinary microscope. It is believed that this organism affects the nervous system.

Other physicians are convinced that the sores are wholly of nervous origin. The exact cause has not been absolutely established and there may be multiple causes. Fortunately, herpes or cold sores usually disappear within a week. They may, however, recur.

There are many different treatments of most of them involving treatments of a drying character. Certainly it is important to keep the areas clean because any tissues damaged by blisters which break are likely to be subject to secondary infections.

The ordinary drugstore cure involves camphor, alcohol, alum and similar agents, one seeming to work about as well as another.

A physician may use stronger remedies, depending of course on the state of the blisters at the time he first sees them.

Few people consult a doctor about cold sores unless they happen to be secondarily infected or so many in number that they are a serious annoyance.

The cold sore should not, however, be confused with an attack of the shingles, which is also called herpes. The cold sore is called herpes simplex. The shingles are called herpes zoster.

CLAIBORNE FARM BUREAU HAS MEMBERSHIP OF 500

HOMER, La., Nov. 6.—(Special)—The Claiborne parish farm bureau, organized a month ago, now has a membership of 500. Plans are being made for a booster meeting of the organization to be held here at the city hall on November 19.

Atkins Bailey, president of the organization, has invited the following persons to address the forthcoming assembly: Governor Richard Leche, J. G. Lee, Jr., J. W. Bateman and F. W. Spencer, of the extension division of Louisiana State university; and Harry Chalkey, Jr., of Lake Charles, president of the Louisiana farm bureau.

The parish farm bureau is designed to improve agricultural conditions in the parish, to provide an exchange of ideas between members, and to draft suggestions for legislation favoring farm interests.

STUDENTS ORGANIZING BAND AT QUITMAN HIGH

QUITMAN, La., Nov. 6.—(Special)—Students of the Quitman High school are organizing a band to be directed by Mike Kelly of Jonesboro. A box supper was given recently and the proceeds went for the purchase of a drum and bass horn. Other instruments have been ordered and practice will begin in a few days.

The school's harmonica and rhythmic band is being directed by Miss R. V. Clayton, music advisor of the school.

TO CONDUCT MISSION

LAKE PROVIDENCE, La., Nov. 6.—(Special)—Rev. Thomas J. S. McGrath of Shreveport, will begin an eight-day mission here at St. Patrick's Catholic church Sunday morning at 10 o'clock. Father F. J. Plutz is priest of the local church.

BEHIND THE SCENES IN WASHINGTON

WASHINGTON—President Roosevelt is asked about revision of the surplus profits and capital gains taxes. He replies that the New Deal's chief objective is more purchasing power for the under-privileged "one-third" and that his wage-hour program and the new crop control program will be aimed at that.

This reflects the president's mind fairly accurately, according to many who have been talking with him earnestly. The reflection depresses some of his advisers and elates others.

It is now certain that the heat which has been turned on Roosevelt in the effort to persuade him to ask corporate surplus and capital gains tax revision will have to become much hotter if the president's brand of "revision" is to satisfy the business groups and conservative advisers who have been urging him.

Stock Slump Not Alarming

Roosevelt, if some of his intimates interpret him correctly, is convinced that the business slump causes the worst of the stock market drop—not vice versa, and that the two chief causes were:

Industry's stocking heavy inventories at high prices last spring.

Industry's raising prices higher than the market would accept. Such a view obviously minimizes any adverse effect of higher wage scales.

Although the administration has its quota of Cassandras, in general it is not seriously disturbed by the threat of a business tail-spin. The business situation will smooth itself out, it's believed in high places.

And if it doesn't, the government thinks that it possesses important remedial powers. The president's warning against soaring prices had a very definite effect on commodity markets last spring, it is claimed, and the federal reserve board's recent margin requirement changes started the stock market going up again.

More Spending Ahead

Roosevelt's remark that the government in the last year had reduced its direct contribution to the national income by $2,500,000,000 may turn out to be more significant than it appeared.

Despite announcement that they would be liquidated, the spending and lending machinery of PWA and RFC are being kept oiled and ready for possible crisis. (That's supposed to be a secret.) One receives assurances that the spending-lending program will be resumed "if needed." It seems impossible to tell just how many, if any, fingers Roosevelt has crossed when he talks of balancing the budget, but his general philosophy creates doubts as to whether he really thinks he can do it without more taxation in case the national income isn't materially boosted before long.

Despite many recent pleas to him, Roosevelt says he doesn't think the secret of national economic success is in relieving "the rich man" or helping him make more money. He holds that poor men spend money much more rapidly than rich men, that the dollars of poor people thus accelerate increase in national income much faster than dollars of rich people and that it consequently is best to feed poor people as many dollars as possible.

Consequently, relief from the capital gains tax, if Roosevelt has his way, is likely to be confined to rich men who will invest money in housing construction.

No Concessions

As to the corporate surplus profits tax, the president thus far sticks to the principle that investors rather than corporate managements should decide whether corporate profits should be distributed, invested in expansion or stowed away. He won't accept the New York view that the tax is wrecking the capital market. Apparently, however, he does realize that the tax is hard on small business, which has no real access to the capital market.

No hint, whatever appears that Roosevelt would be willing to modify the SEC act or his power policy—or abandon any of his congressional program.

SPECIAL MUSICAL PROGRAM PLANNED

An innovation in musical programs will be given Monday evening at 8 p.m., when members of the Fine Arts club will sponsor a Hebrew hymn festival at Temple B'nai Israel.

Old Hebrew melodies will be presented by the chorus and the audience will be invited to join in the singing. Several special numbers will be presented on the program, including a violin solo, "Cavallera Rusticana," by Fred Rosenbaum; a vocal selection, "Prayer Perfect," by Mrs. Paul Newman, and an organ solo, "Prelude," by Leon Hammonds.

The program is being given under the direction of Leon Hammonds and Mrs. Charles Gausheil. The public is invited.

FORTY AND EIGHT PLANS BIG 'WRECK'

A "wreck," or initiation, for a large number of candidates for membership in the Forty and Eight, American Legion fun society, will be conducted by the Monroe vulture at the Legion Memorial home in Forsyth park tomorrow night. It was announced yesterday by Jesse DeArmond, chief de gare of the local unit.

Candidates to be initiated reside in Bastrop, Ruston, Farmerville, Rayville and other communities in northeast Louisiana, as well as in Monroe and West Monroe.

All members of the local vulture have been urged to attend the "wreck."

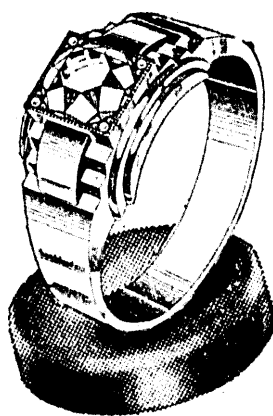

BISHOP TO OFFICIATE

LAKE PROVIDENCE, La., Nov. 6.—(Special)—Rev. James Craig Morris, D. D., Episcopal bishop of Louisiana, will deliver a sermon and conduct holy confirmation here at Grace Episcopal church next Friday night.

WINDSOR TO DROP HIS TOUR IN U. S.

tion of his labor studies impractical. The storm arose when the Baltimore Federation of Labor condemned his American guide and friend, Charles E. Bedaux, as an "arch-enemy of labor for his invention of the work system they call 'the stretch-out'."

A member of Windsor's suite said today the "stretch-out" was a Washington official to his labor study contributed to the sudden decision to postpone the trip yesterday less than 15 hours before he was to start.

They said a reply from Secretary of the Interior Ickes to the duke's request for advice on his American itinerary had been regarded as "perfunctory."

On Washington, Ickes said he had sent Bedaux, as an individual, a list of American housing and reclamation projects but had had no correspondence "perfunctory or otherwise" with Windsor.

(The state department preparations for his visit here were made in accordance with those customary for royalty traveling in an unofficial capacity.)

When the former monarch announced last October 3 that he was embarking on a study of working and housing conditions, stung in Germany and the United States, a source close to the duke said he received invitations to visit several countries which he may now accept.

Another possibility being debated by Edward was a world tour aboard the German liner Bremen, the ship on which he had planned to go to the United States. The Bremen leaves New York City next January 2 for a cruise including Rio de Janeiro, Buenos Aires and South Africa.

A member of the duke's entourage said he inquired about the itinerary, indicating he may complete his European survey and proceed to the United States in time to catch the Bremen in New York.

U. S. S. R. BECKONS DUKE OF WINDSOR

(By Associated Press)

The U. S. S. R. beckoned the Duke of Windsor today.

His royal highness, cancelling present American tour plans because of "grave misconceptions" of his motives, remained in Paris among his packed trunks, mulling the future.

Some said he would go to Russia instead. Having already been to Germany, the Russian trip would leave him with no political ties, such as some folks in America had hinted about his tour here.

Washington had no comment. London thought the duke did the right thing.

Charles Bedaux, inventor of a system in industry which laborers have scored as a "speed up" said in New York the duke had a "hearty welcome" here. Labor's criticism was against Bedaux and not the duke, Green said.

FLOWER BOY MAY DIE BUT MOTHER COMFORTS HIM

Maybe in the park. There's not much profit in flowers.

Mrs. Adelaide Lee, who moved with her family to New York from San Francisco seven years ago, called at the hospital today. She had a boy. His name was Tommy, too. A year ago Tommy, then 15, had told her he wanted to live his own life. He'd look after himself, he said.

"He got in with bad boys," Mrs. Lee said. "And we never saw him again."

"I guess I'm just a worried mother," she went on, "but I read in the papers that you had a Tommy down here. It could really be my Tommy—it doesn't hurt to see, does it?"

They led her to where the flower boy lay. It was Tommy—her Tommy. She dropped beside his bed and softly cried his name.

His eyes, staring from the bandage, said as plainly as words: "Gee, I've been missing you, mom."

Gone was the boy who was going to live his own life.

He was just a kid now—a darned sick kid—lying there with his head smashed in—hurting plenty—wondering, maybe, if he hadn't been a little dumb—and that if he got well he'd make it up—he'd hunt up that drunk and knock the daylight out of him.

Emergency rations of corned beef and hardtack are part of the standard equipment of every United States marine.

(Copyright, 1937, by King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

lands that God forgot—lands which he must have wanted to forget, from the way Mr. Griswold pictures their manifold miseries of mud, muck, fever, thirst, cannibals and goggle-eyed monsters.

He is a certified explorer, bringing in a balance brought forward of Maya, Quicha, Aztec and other lost civilizations but this book is mainly a swiftly-paced travel and adventure yarn, with just an occasional aside touching on archaeological or anthropological details.

Mr. Griswold writes well, in competent journalistic style with no pretense to literary distinction. He's a bucko lad, a thorough-going extrovert wasting no penny afterthoughts on the black man he had to drill with his revolver at short range, three times before he stopped, and who died standing up. One gathers that this kind of explorer is no business for old people and cripples.

A good random sample is the story of his ringside seat at a dragon-fight, in the island of Komolo in the Pacific, where survive the monsters of Conan Doyle's "Lost World." And this mind you, is fact, not fiction. These twentieth century dragons are as real as your old dog Shep.

The two dragons faced each other sullenly. Their long, flickering tongues were in constant motion, bright yellow in the sunlight, and each emitted an extraordinary sound, rather like the growling hiss of highly compressed air. They hugged the ground closely, each apparently fearing to expose the tender undersides of its body to the teeth of the other. Each played cautiously in changing position and the hissing approaches the volume of a roaring blast furnace.

"SUDDENLY, simultaneously, they rise on their hind legs and spring. There is a glancing shock and both whirl, dropping again to the ground. One of them has nearly lost a foreleg and behind it a large patch of flesh and hide from the shoulder is trailing on the stubby grass. The hissing had stopped during the charge, but now it begins anew, while the two again shift positions in quick, nervous hitches.

"The injured dragon is a little hampered. He has only three legs and seems to realize his tactical disadvantage. For he unexpectedly rears and springs. It is his last mistake. His opponent merely makes a rapid scrambling rush to meet him and, with a slashing grip, tears the belly wide open and throws himself to one side in the next motion.

"The victor watched the helpless struggles of the dying dragon for a moment and then, the incident completely forgotten, went back to reclaim his deer. This battle probably lasted only three minutes."

The dragons are from fifteen to twenty feet long—hideous, gully creatures, judging from Mr. Griswold's photographs. They probably are at least a collateral descendant of some prehistoric carnivorous suarian," he writes.

"They can stand on their hind legs and run in an erect position, moving incredibly fast for short distances, not exceeding thirty or forty feet. They are voracious, depositing their eggs in the sand for the sun to hatch out. They are strictly carnivorous, feeding on deer, pig and wild kerbau, although our specimens became effete and learned to demand eggs and connoisseurs while on shipboard. They use the tongue instead of the mouth for the sense of smell and we can certainly vouch for the excellence of their hearing."

Full justice to Mr. Griswold's book would touch on more of the exciting adventure stories. He describes adventure as "a piece of extremely bad luck which barely misses a fatal ending." That's going on all the way through the tale, and you know at the end that Mr. Griswold must have an unfailing talisman. Again, it's a swell book to get your mind off your troubles.

Red square tomorrow before Joseph Stalin to commemorate the 1917 revolutionary anniversary.

Spanish workers "inspired by the victories of toilers the Union of Socialist Soviet Republics" the manifesto said were already fighting for "a new type of democratic republic" with the proletariat as "the driving force."

It added "the example of the great socialist revolution is reinforcing the national consciousness of the Chinese people" while "even in Germany, Italy and Japan, forces of the anti-Fascist struggle are growing incessantly."

(Italy joined the German-Japanese anti-Comintern pact today in a protocol signed by the three powers in Rome pledging to keep one another informed concerning Comintern activities.)

The Soviet union's readiness for war was proclaimed anew by Marshal Klement Voroshilov, war commissar, in anniversary orders to the Red army saying that "Fascism is threatening all peoples of the world with bloody war."

"Historical Fascists, without cause, often threaten Bolsheviks and Red Moscow and boast of their strength and courage. That is one of the manifestations of the raging but impotent fury of our class enemies who day and night are preparing to attack the country of the workers, our fatherland," he said.

"We have replied and will reply again to the howling and plotting of war incendiaries: we do not want war but we do not fear war, and are ready for war."

Soviet citizens danced and drank on the eve of their great national holiday while huge new ruby-red stars blinked from the Kremlin's austere spires. Red banners with portraits of Lenin, Stalin and other communist leaders looked down on the people who, five weeks hence, will elect a new supreme Soviet by direct secret ballot for the first time.

Among achievements which the press boasted was the seven-fold expansion of Russian industrial output since 1913, the collectivization of agriculture and cultural development largely due to the spread of education through an illiterate nation.

FASCISTS OF THREE NATIONS WARN WORLD

(By Associated Press)

ROME, Nov. 6.—(AP)—Fascists warned the world tonight that the military forces of Italy, Germany and Japan were prepared to back the tri-power anti-Communist pact signed today.

They intimated that the brief agreement, which makes Italy a charter member of the German-Japanese anti-Bolshevik front, binds the three powers to a "collaboration" which goes beyond even the fight on Communism.

At the same time, officials emphasized that the pact was not directed against any country—not even Russia, "which may have all the communism it wants as long as she keeps it at home."

Italian writers interpreted the agreement in terms of the military forces of the three powers. Vittorio Gayda, leading commentator, said the 2,000,000 tons of warships and 200,000,000 men are now at the disposal of the anti-Communist front. Newspapers glowingly described Japan's naval strength. The agreement contains no military clauses but binds the signatories to full exchange of information on the world spread of Communism and the means necessary to combat it. The brief protocol signed today affirmed the unity of the three powers and brought Italy into the pact as though she had been an original signatory.

FRANKLIN PARISH OFFICER ACCUSED

to the J. Kiper store here where he cashed the check and pocketed the money.

District Attorney Sims said several charges of "misuse of parish funds in general" had been made against Fustell and a bill of particulars was being prepared in that case.

Two other cases in which capital punishment is the penalty are also scheduled. They are those of Lucy Bates, negro woman, accused of murdering another negro woman on the John H. Baker plantation; and Earl Lambert, white man, charged with rape.

Lambert was indicted for rape here six months ago but was not tried in the following term of court. Soon after his first indictment he is accused of attacking another girl and fleeing to Mississippi where he was arrested. He was recently indicted on a second charge of rape. Both occurrences were said to have involved different girls.

William S. Collette, of Monroe, charged with violating the parish liquor law, pleaded guilty, when arraigned for the purpose of setting a date for his trial, and was fined $100 or 90 days in jail. Collette, operating a beer truck for a Monroe concern, was accused of selling beer outside the corporate limits of any town of the parish in violation of a recently passed prohibition law which banned the sale of liquors within the parish and outside the corporate limits of its towns. No law has been passed to prohibit sale within the towns.

Two other persons pleaded guilty at the time and were given penitentiary sentences. They were George Hurt, operating an automobile while drunk, six months in the state prison; and Frank Taylor, breaking and entering in the night time, five years in the penitentiary.

SONG OF DIONNE QUINTS HEARD

scooped at but secretly cherished by some visitors—that these pebbles are good luck charms against sterility.

Look at the refreshment and souvenir shops down the road from the nursery.

They are a charming combination of general store and amusement park concession. They sell stamps, wooden keys called "the key of quint-land," pine needles called "whiffs of the woodland," postcard pictures of a Montreal monk, headed bedroom slippers, busts of King George and sundries.

The buildings smell of pine inside. Each has a poster of the king and queen, saying, "Long May They Reign."

Down the road, the British flag waves over another sign:

"Madame Label (midwife of the Dionne quintuplets) extends to you a personal welcome, and will be pleased to answer questions and autograph."

This store offers, in addition to "typical French Canadian products," and a picture gallery of the quintuplets, a glimpse of "the original basket the babies were placed in after birth," and our observation platform."

Dr. Alban R. Dafeo, the country doctor, says there are now three baskets on display in various places.

Life in the Dionne home has not changed vastly. The little house has a new front porch, and has been shingled with slate, but it still has no plumbing, although Mama Dionne enjoys hearing the faucets run in the quint's nursery.

There is more canned food on the table than there used to be, for the Diones, when they were hard-working farmers, thought canned food a luxury.

They go to see the quintuplets whenever they like, and many of the quint's clothes and toys are handed on to the other children.

The country doctor, who is the quint's medical guardian, spends his free time in his little brick house, brooding among his books.

There's a fireplace, a dog, a cat, a canary in a cage, a row of pines and a picture of his late wife in her bridal dress. There are 28 albums filled with quintuplet pictures.

Sensible and philosophical, Dr. Dafeo has shaved off many a false step. He believes young married people should have children, and is likely to ask visitors: "Have you any children? No? Then you'd better come to Ontario."

voted for a mercy recommendation on the first. They received the case last night but were locked up after an hour.

Resuming deliberations this morning, the jurors requested reading of testimony by two women who said Mrs. Hahn asked about "ole men" residing in the building where Wagner lived. Less than an hour after that, the verdict was read.

Prosecutor Dudley M. Outcalt pictured Mrs. Hahn, in final arguments, as "the most heartless, cool, greedy person that has come into the scope of our lives" and demanded jurors "show no mercy."

Against the state's 56 witnesses, many of the state's best laboratory experts, the defense matched only three: Mrs. Hahn, her son, Oscar 12, and a chemist.

The arrest of Mrs. Hahn August 10 for theft of diamond rings belonging to a Colorado Springs, Colo., hotel keeper disclosed, police said, that she had accompanied George Obendorfer, into custody at Ruston, La., but denied the murder.

Kirby said the trio stopped Dollman when their own automobile ran out of gasoline. An argument started, he said, and Read struck Dollman on the head with the butt of a pistol. Then they threw the body in a rear seat of the car, siphoned out the gasoline and put it in their machine, set fire to Dollman's automobile and drove away.

The three were subsequently accused of the kidnapping of a Charleston banker and the slaying of a Silver Springs, Md., farmer.

Gingell and Kirby received 18-year terms for the Dollman slaying and later were sentenced to life terms for the abduction.

They repudiated their confession and twice Read won stays of execution but Governor Homer A. Holt refused a third for an appeal to the United States supreme court. Two appeals to the state supreme court and plea for commutation of the death sentence were unsuccessful.

Father M. J. Coghlan, Catholic chaplain at the prison, said funeral services would be held today for Read and burial would be made in a Mountville cemetery.

nervousness, R. Jessie replied, "Yes, I did."

The next question pertained to the events leading to the fatal shooting.

R. Jessie told of quarrels preceding the shooting Monday.

In telling of the shooting, R. Jessie said she did not know when she pulled the trigger the first time, but she remembered firing three or four shots.

When questioned, the witness was able to give a graphic account of the firing of the last shot. R. Jessie said that Mary Elvin had continued to approach despite the warnings and had grappled with her. As the last shot was fired Mary Elvin was pulling R. Jessie's hair, and the gun was placed against the body of Mary Elvin, at about the center of the stomach. R. Jessie pointed to her own stomach to illustrate.

Proceeding the defendant to the stand was Marie Shaffer, 17, a mutual friend to both R. Jessie and Mary Elvin Allen. She testified that neither of the girls had been affected by the bitter quarrels and threats made by the families for two years and both girls had been friends "until the go about Mary Elvin going away 'to have a baby' had been started. Miss Shaffer said she did not know where the gossip had started, and could give no reason for its being blamed on R. Jessie.

BANKERS ATTACK FEDERAL TAXES

Investment Association Members Blame Slump Partly On Levies

By Claude A. Jagger
WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS, W. Va., Nov. 6.—(AP)—The Investment Bankers Association of America today blamed the autumn slump in the securities markets partly on federal tax laws and heard a former New Deal treasury under-secretary condemn administration spending policies as "destructive of self government and contrary to welfare and happiness of the people."

In his first public address since he left his treasury post in February, 1936, Thomas Jefferson Colledge asserted that the apportioning of huge government funds by a "Washington bureaucracy" was causing a "centralization of power in remote government" which was "exactly what our ancestors tried to prevent through the constitution."

The Boston banker urged "that the federal government at once give up the direction of all this varied welfare work having to do with the individual, and turn the full responsibility back to the states and local governments."

He said it could be done "without financial difficulties" and suggested that the federal government apportion certain of its revenues among the states on a population or over-fixed basis.

The association adopted resolutions advocating "repeal or substantial modification" of both of the capital gains and undistributed profits taxes.

The resolution of the capital gains levy said, "in the opinion of the association, among other harmful effects, this tax has been in part responsible for the impairment of values which has lately taken place upon the public securities markets in this country with the resultant adverse influence upon the ability of the business of the country to procure further new capital needed for productive industry."

A second resolution said "the undistributed profits tax has weakened the current financial position of many corporations, resulting in a less favorable credit standing and consequent necessity of curtailing expenses and reducing the number of employees."

Elsworth C. Alford, Washington lawyer and special assistant to the secretary of the treasury during the Hoover administration, raised hopes of the bankers for early action in congress on the capital gains tax.

"It seems to be generally agreed by tax and financial authorities both within and without the administration—that the present method of taxing capital gains must be scrapped," Alford said.

Alford said the "tragedy of Mayerling" was the "tragedy of the tax law" and that it should be returned to the states at low rates.

CATHOLIC RESIDENTS TO DECORATE GRAVES

In observance of the Feast of All Souls, Catholic residents of Monroe and West Monroe will today decorate the graves of dead relatives.

Here, for years, the decorating and blessing of graves have taken place the Sunday nearest the Feast of All Souls, which fell this year on the past Tuesday, but due to the fact that last Sunday was the concluding day of a week's mission at St. Matthew's Catholic church, the observance was postponed until today.

Observance of the feast will center at the Catholic cemetery, at Twelfth and Broad streets, where ceremonies in connection with the day will start at 2 p.m. They will consist of blessing of the graves, recitation of the Rosary and a sermon by Father N. F. Vandegate, pastor of St. Matthew's.

After the decorating and blessing of graves, the feast was observed on the day proper with masses at both St. Matthew's and at the chapel in the Catholic cemetery.

It is the custom here to decorate graves with candles as well as flowers.

Belgian Princess Breaks Silence After Many Years

Stephanie Spikes Tales That Her Husband Didn't Commit Suicide

VIENNA.—(AP)—Princess Stephanie of Belgium, the woman cheated by fate out of a chance to be empress of the Austro-Hungarian empire, has broken a silence of many years to talk about "the tragedy of Mayerling."

The princess said she knew that her first husband, the dashing and impetuous Crown Prince Rudolf, first born of Kaiser Franz Josef, committed suicide at Mayerling.

The world has made a romantic mystery of events which occurred in a hunting lodge at the edge of the little village, near Vienna, in 1889.

An official explanation related that the crown prince and the beautiful and youthful Baroness Vetsera were found, one morning, shot to death in a little building in which numbers of the royal family were usually kept.

The princess said she had never seen the body of her husband, who had been shot to death in the hunting lodge, and she had never seen the body of the crown prince, who had been shot to death in the hunting lodge.

It was the greatest "crime story" in the history of the old empire. There was a flood of speculation, which the four old emperors couldn't stop. Books and plays, seemingly without number, based on the "tragedy of Mayerling" were produced. The stream of books hasn't stopped to this day.

One supposition, which gained some currency last century and which has been revived by some writers this year, was that Rudolf did not take his own life; that the body of an unknown man was placed beside that of Baroness Vetsera and that the crown prince fled from stuffy responsibilities of the court to lead a life of adventure in South America.

It was this version that caused Princess Stephanie, a 75-year-old woman now living quietly in Hungary, to break her long silence.

"In informed quarters in Europe there isn't any more a mystery about the 'tragedy of Mayerling,'" she told the Associated Press in a conversation on the estate of her present husband, Prince Elmer von Lounay.

"The crown prince committed suicide, there is no mistake about that," she said. "There was no possibility of an error of identification, or substitution of bodies. I know. I saw the crown prince's body frequently in the Capuchin church in Vienna, where it lies today. Frequently, even now, I send flowers."

Stephanie, destined to live many years after the tragedy of her first marriage, was known for many years as "Europe's unhappiest princess."

That description doesn't fit today. Slender, mentally alert, busy, the woman who almost was empress of Austria-Hungary, today assists her husband in the management of an 8,000-acre estate which lies in the corner of Hungary which juts up into the triangle formed by the Austrian and Czechoslovakian borders.

Her home is a 110-room castle, her chief occupation the care of extensive, formal gardens which surround the building. Gardeners hustle about carrying out her instructions.

From the gothic windows of the castle she can see the Danube. It's the same old river down which a braided boat, one of the most sumptuously decorated steamers which ever floated on the Danube, brought her to Vienna and Rudolf in 1881.

"The river sometimes awakens memories," she said. "They are living memories, very real to me. But they don't hurt any more."

"They used to call me 'Europe's unhappiest princess.' Now I am surely Europe's happiest princess. For these brighter years following the heartaches of my youth I am indebted to my second husband, Prince Lounay. We have been married 37 years."

"Aloud, in the world, empires have collapsed and there has been much distress in the period of my second marriage. But within these walls all has been tranquil. Perhaps I am more fortunate than I might have been as empress."

The meat of the Byrd South Polar expedition had to be thawed out for two days before it could be cooked. So slowly was it frozen that it would splinter if dropped.

CHURCH TO HOLD ANNUAL CARNIVAL

St. Matthew's Congregation Will Stage Entertainment November 16-18

Prizes, games, good food and entertainment will feature a three-day carnival which commences November 16 and continues through November 18 under the auspices of the congregation of St. Matthew's Catholic church.

The annual carnival is the principal activity of the church members to raise funds for the church and a general invitation to the residents of Monroe and surrounding territory to attend has been issued by the organizers of the carnival.

At a recent meeting the following chairmen of committees were appointed: Fancy work, Mrs. J. Williams; crocheted bedspread, Mrs. A. Kutz; Mrs. Harry Westlake; kitchen, Mrs. J. B. Filkins; dining room, Mrs. L. V. Tarver; Miss Evelyn Ammon; crocheted banquet cloth, Miss Mayme Campbell; hot dogs and hamburgers, Mrs. J. Dubois; cold drinks, Mrs. V. C. Spatafora; soliciting, Mrs. J. J. Devereux and Nick Bruno; fishing pond, Mrs. Charles Reid; Mrs. Charles Guerrero; candy, Mrs. A. M. Guerrero; ham and grocery booth, Mr. and Mrs. E. Keane; publicity, Miss Ella Rose Crawford; building committee, Mrs. L. V. Tarver, Mrs. T. L. Morris; lounge, Walter Savage; registration, Miss Tina Collins, Mrs. T. L. Morris.

Besides the above chairmen, the following organizations have been appointed to take charge of the following booths: games, in general, Knights of Columbus; novelty booth, St. Matthew's church; preparation of the linen chest which is to be awarded as grand prize, after society coffee hours, St. Anne's circle.

It has been announced that entrance prizes will be awarded each night and on the last night of the carnival a substantial cash prize will be given.

Those desiring to make donations for the carnival are asked to get in touch with Mrs. J. J. Devereux.

The selection of the place where the carnival will be held will be announced within a few days, it was reported.

Edward May Set Some New Styles---And He May Not

NEW YORK, Nov. 6.—(AP)—The Duke of Windsor may set the lot of men's styles on his trip to America, and then again he may not.

A lot of headlines have run off the presses since people here last followed him around to see what kind of a handkerchief he was carrying, etc., etc. He fooled everybody when he came here in 1924.

Stylists who rallied by the dozen were horrified to learn that on shipboard en route the prince had appeared in only two very unspectacular business suits.

After landing in New York, he went out to Long Island and played polo in an old brown sweater. The stylists gasped and figured his several tons of baggage must have been delayed.

But on succeeding days of his stay, the plot thickened. The prince's sartorial restraint continued and, with squads of detectives screening his rapid movements, the fashion boys didn't get much of a look-in. The prince's visit was a flop, stylistically.

From the time of his investiture as the Prince of Wales Edward has been the greatest style-setter of the age.

To him are credited such major developments as the popularity of the double-breasted suit and golf knicker, turn-down brims on felt and Panama hats, colorful breast-pocket handkerchiefs, and the custom of wearing the bottom vest button unbuttoned.

His dynamic influence on public taste even popularized trips in England. And the day after he commented that you don't have time at a dance to smoke a whole cigarette, London tobacconists came out with half-size cigars and modest cigarette cases.

In 1922 he started wearing Fair Isle woolen sweaters, and the citizens of Fair Isle basked in a financial bonanza. The clothes Edward wore here on a trip in 1919 were estimated to have influenced the cut of a million American suits.

In 1931 he sailed into the harbor of San Francisco, wearing a light gray suit and a straw hat. San Francisco was a stronghold of dark suits and formal hats, but the next day the stores were doing smash business in straw hats and the customers were selling for light suits.

The next year he appeared in London wearing a red and white polka-dot scarf and there was another run on the haberdashers.

All of Edward's sartorial stunts haven't clicked, though. There was the time he wore trousers with cuffs with a morning coat at the Ascot races. London tailors were only shocked.

Once he carried two hats, one stiff and one floppy, on the golf links. He wore one while making shots and the other while walking. Nobody took up the idea.

And his enthusiasm for American stiff straw hats never was emulated in England, probably because the plethora of wind and rain is too great even for sartorial admiration.

As for his present trip, there are several indications that it may disprove his abdication of the fashion throne.

He's lost some of his authority in that back in England he's been supplanted in the style spotlight by his brother, the king.

Real Estate Transfers

The following real estate transactions were recorded yesterday in the clerk's office:

R. D. Kellogg et al sold to Keith Moore, lot 2 of Kellogg's subdivision of lot 1 of block 2 of Riverside Realty company's subdivision in sections 66 and 67-18-3 east, the consideration being $500.

G. K. Holladay sold to Charles Verner Collier, lot 1 of block 5 of Shoreline Park addition, the price being $3,100.

G. O. Doolley sold to E. V. Hemphrey, a lot in section 5-17-4 east, for $100.

NEGRO'S CHECKS STOLEN

Fred Lee, negro farmer of Holly Ridge, yesterday reported to the Monroe police department the loss of two checks which he said represented payment on cotton he had sold, and which he reported were stolen from him at a negro night club.

The checks were for $17.96 and $15.07 and had been drawn by the firm of Cleghorn and Franklin on the Bayville State bank. In his report of the robbery the negro told police he had been drinking and went to sleep at the Little Dixie "night club" and when he awoke he discovered the checks had been taken from his inside coat pocket.

GRAFTS STARTED IN TUNG GROVES

Expected To Increase Yields Greatly In Louisiana And Mississippi

NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 6.—(AP)—Bud-grafting projects which are expected greatly to increase potential yield have been started in Louisiana and Mississippi tung groves.

One of the largest projects is being undertaken on the plantings of the L. O. Crosby interests near Pecayune, Miss., under supervision of Marshall G. Carlton, horticulturist with several years' experience on Liberian rubber plantations.

Mr. Carlton is applying the same methods which he says tripled the yield of the Firestone rubber plantings.

Mr. Carlton said that of the several million tung trees in America, practically all have been grown from seeds without grafting.

"It is a horticultural law," he said, "that one-third of such trees are just about useless, one-third are average and one-third are good bearers."

Bud-grafting offers a means of bringing all trees into the upper group.

In the process a bud from a proven tree is grafted to the stem of a poorer producer. Out of the bud a new trunk grows, and the resulting tree is presumably of the same quality as that from which the bud came.

Mr. Carlton's aim is to develop groves with 40 trees to the acre, which he considers the ideal spacing, with an average yearly production of over 200 pounds of fruit per tree.

Bud-grafting has been tried already north of Covington, La., on plantings of W. H. Wagner, Maurice Keen and Captain Conrad Brite. These trees, some of them three years old, have proved early producers and unusually hardy.

State bank. In his report of the robbery the negro told police he had been drinking and went to sleep at the Little Dixie "night club" and when he awoke he discovered the checks had been taken from his inside coat pocket.

BANKERS ATTACK FEDERAL TAXES

By Claude A. Jagger
WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS, W. Va., Nov. 6.—(AP)—The Investment Bankers association of America today blamed the autumn collapse in the securities markets partly on federal tax laws and heard a former New Deal treasury under-secretary condemn administration spending policies as "destructive of self government and contrary to welfare and happiness of the people."

In his first public address since he left his treasury post in February, 1936, Thomas Jefferson Colledge asserted that the apportioning of huge government funds by a "Washington bureaucracy" was causing a "centralization of power in remote government" which was "exactly what our ancestors tried to prevent through the constitution."

The Boston banker urged "that the federal government at once give up the direction of all this varied welfare work having to do with the individual, and turn the full responsibility back to the states and local governments."

He said it could be done "without financial difficulties" and suggested that the federal government apportion certain of its revenues among the states on a population or over-fixed basis.

The association adopted resolutions advocating "revel or substantial modification" of both of the capital gains and undistributed profits taxes.

The resolution of the capital gains levy said, "in the opinion of the association, among other harmful effects, this tax has been in part responsible for the impairment of values which has lately taken place upon the public securities markets in this country with the resultant adverse influence upon the ability of the business of the country to procure further new capital needed for productive industry."

A second resolution said "the undistributed profits tax has weakened the current financial position of many corporations, resulting in a less favorable credit standing and consequent necessity of curtailing expenses and reducing the number of employees."

Ellsworth C. Alvord, Washington lawyer and special assistant to the secretary of the treasury during the Hoover administration, raised hopes of the bankers for early action in congress on the capital gains tax.

"It seems to be generally agreed—by tax and financial authorities both within and without the administration—that the present method of capital gains must be changed," he declared. Alvord said he did not favor abolition of the tax, but that it should be retained with "relatively low rates."

CATHOLIC RESIDENTS TO DECORATE GRAVES

In observance of the Feast of All Souls, Catholic residents of Monroe and West Monroe will today decorate the graves of dead relatives.

Here, for years, the decorating and blessing of graves have taken place the Sunday nearest the Feast of All Souls, which fell, this year on the past Tuesday; but due to the fact that last Sunday was the concluding day of a week's mission at St. Matthew's Catholic church, the observance was postponed until today.

Observance of the feast will center at the Catholic cemetery, at Twelfth and Beaudry streets, where ceremonies in connection with the day will start at 3 p.m. They will consist of blessing of the graves, recitation of the Rosary and a sermon by Father N. F. Vandegaren, pastor of St. Matthew's.

Aside from the decorating and blessing of graves, the feast was observed on the day proper with masses at both St. Matthew's and at the chapel in the Catholic cemetery.

It is the custom here to decorate graves with candles as well as flowers.

The ancient Incas of Bolivia refused to be parted from their loved ones after death. The living and dead remained together in dark, windowless dwellings.

Belgian Princess Breaks Silence After Many Years

Stephanie Spikes Tales That Her Husband Didn't Commit Suicide

VIENNA.—(AP)—Princess Stephanie of Belgium, the woman cheated by fate out of a chance to be empress of the Austro-Hungarian empire, has broken a silence of many years to talk about "the tragedy of Mayerling."

The princess said she knew that her first husband, the dashing and impetuous Crown Prince Rudolf, first born of Kaiser Franz Josef, committed suicide at Mayerling.

The world has made a romantic mystery of events which occurred in a hunting lodge at the edge of the little village, near Vienna, in 1889.

An official explanation related that the crown prince and the beautiful and youthful Baroness Vetsera were found, one morning, shot to death in a little building in which hunters of the royal family occasionally slept.

Besides the above chairmen, the following organizations have been appointed to take charge of the following activities: games in general, Knights of Columbus; novelty booth, St. Matthew's choir; preparation of the linen chest which is to be awarded as grand prize, altar society; coffee hours, St. Anne's circle.

It has been announced that entrance prizes will be awarded each night and on the last night of the carnival a substantial cash prize will be given. Those desiring to make donations for the carnival are asked to get in touch with Mrs. J. J. Devereux.

The selection of the place where the carnival will be held will be announced within a few days, it was reported.

Edward May Set Some New Styles---And He May Not

NEW YORK, Nov. 6.—(AP)—The Duke of Windsor may set a lot of men's styles on his trip to America, and then again he may not.

A lot of headlines have run off the presses since people here last followed him around to see what kind of a handkerchief he was carrying, etc., etc. He fooled everybody when he came here in 1924.

Stylists who rallied by the dozen were horrified to learn that on ship-board en route the prince had appeared in only two very unspectacular business suits.

After landing in New York, he went out to Long Island and played polo in an old brown sweater. The stylists gasped and figured his several tons of baggage must have been delayed.

But on succeeding days of his stay, the plot thickened. The prince's sartorial restraint continued and, with squads of detectives screening his rapid movements, the fashion boys didn't get much of a look-in. The prince's suit was a flop, stylistically.

From the time of his investiture as the Prince of Wales Edward has been the greatest style-setter of the age.

To him are credited such major developments as the popularity of the double-breasted suit and golf knickerbockers, turn-down brims on felt and Panama hats, colorful breast-pocket handkerchiefs, and the custom of wearing the bottom vest button unbuttoned.

His dynamic influence on public taste even popularized trips in England. And the day after he commented that you don't have time at a dance to smoke a whole cigarette, London tobaccoists came out with half-size gaspers and midget cigarette cases.

In 1922 he started wearing Fair Isle woolen sweaters, and the citizens of Fair Isle basked in a financial boom.

The clothes Edward wore here on a trip in 1919 were estimated to have influenced the cut of a million American suits.

In 1931 he sailed into the harbor of Santiago, Chile, wearing a light gray suit and a straw hat. Santiago was a stronghold of dark suits and formal hats, but the next day the stores were doing smash business in straws and the customers were yelling for light suits.

The next year he appeared in London wearing a red and white polka-dot scarf and there was another run on the haberdashers.

All of Edward's sartorial stunts haven't clicked, though. There was the time he wore trousers with cuffs with a morning coat at the Ascot races. London tailors were only shocked.

Once he carried two hats, one stiff and one floppy, on the golf links. He wore one while making shots and the other while walking. Nobody took up the idea.

And his enthusiasm for American stiff straw hats never was emulated in England—probably because the plethora of wind and rain is too great even for sartorial admiration.

As for his present trip, there are several indications that it may disclose his abdication of the fashion throne.

He's lost some of his authority in that back in England he's been supplanted in the style spotlight by his brother, the king.

Real Estate Transfers

The following real estate transactions were recorded yesterday in the clerk's office:

R. D. Kellogg et al sold to Keith Moore, lot 2 of Kellogg's subdivision of lot 1 of block 2 of Riverside Realty company's subdividing in sections 66 and 67-18-3 east, the consideration being $500.

G. K. Holladay sold to Charles Verner Collier, lot 1 of block 5 of Sherouse Park addition, the price being $3,100.

G. O. Dooley sold to E. V. Hemperley, a lot in section 5-17-4 east, for $100.

NEGRO'S CHECKS STOLEN

Fred Lee, negro farmer of Holly Ridge, yesterday reported to the Monroe police department the loss of two checks which he said represented payment on cotton he had sold, and which he reported were stolen from him at a negro night club. The checks were for $17.98 and $15.47 and had been drawn by the firm of Cochran and Franklin on the Rayville

GRAFTS STARTED IN TUNG GROVES

Expected To Increase Yields Greatly In Louisiana And Mississippi

NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 6.—(AP)—Bud-grafting projects which are expected greatly to increase potential yield have been started in Louisiana and Mississippi tung groves.

One of the largest projects is being undertaken on the plantings of the L. O. Crosby interests near Picayune, Miss., under supervision of Marshall G. Carlton, horticulturist with several years' experience on Liberian rubber plantations.

Mr. Carlton is applying the same methods which he says tripled the yield of the Firestone rubber plantings.

Mr. Carlton said that of the several million tung trees in America, practically all have been grown from seeds, without grafting.

"It is a horticultural law," he said, "that one-third of such trees are just about useless, one-third are average and one-third are good bearers."

"Bud-grafting offers a means of bringing all trees into the upper group."

In the process, a bud from a proven tree is grafted to the stem of a poorer producer. Out of the bud a new trunk grows, and the resulting tree is presumably of the same quality as that from which the bud came.

Mr. Carlton's aim is to develop groves with 40 trees to the acre, which he considers the ideal spacing, with an average yearly production of over 200 pounds of fruit per tree.

Bud-grafting has been tried already north of Covington, La., on plantings of W. H. Wagner, Maurice Keen and Captain Conrad Brode. These trees, some of them three years old, have proved early producers and unusually hardy.

State bank. In his report of the robbery the negro told police he "had been drinking and went to sleep at the Little Jim 'honkey-tonk' and when he awoke he discovered the checks had been taken from his inside coat pocket."

THAT SCORELESS TIE

"What was the matter with North-Center?"

That was the query on all sides yesterday, following the Indiana 0-0 deadlock with "Red" Swanson's Southeastern Louisiana college eleven at Hammond Friday night.

The answer is: Nothing. The Indians merely ran up against a team that's just about as good as they are. In addition, the Lions were playing an inspired brand of football that just couldn't lose. They had been pointing for that one all season.

It was one of the best games we've ever seen. For thrills, the crowd saw both teams in scoring position several times, with the opposing club mustering enough strength to spike every threat. The kicking was great and those who watched the defense, rather than the offense, saw plenty to rave about.

Southeastern has an excellent line, plus four backs who can go with the best of 'em. In Carlin, Swanson has a boy who stacks up with the best kickers in the business. In the third quarter his out-of-bounds boots in the coffin corner set the Indians back on their heels repeatedly. His passing wasn't quite up to par Friday night but he demonstrated that he's a triple-threat by ripping off several long gains in a running attack. Sanchez is a fine line plunger and Morton, a Tallulah boy, is fast and shifty.

The Indians had a real scoring opportunity in the fourth period, but Southeastern was there in the pinch to turn 'em back. With the ball on the eight yard line and four tries to reach the pay-off stripe, the Tribe picked up five yards on three thrusts at the line. They elected to pass on fourth down, and the play was broken up in the end zone. We heard some criticism of that strategy yesterday but some fans probably would have found fault if they'd tried the line again and failed. We were all disappointed when the Indians didn't score, but thousands of Southeastern supporters likewise were disappointed when the Lions were unable to capitalize on their scoring opportunities.

Northeast Center's blocking wasn't quite up to par. We believe the Indians would have scored at least one touchdown if they had blocked as they did against Copiah-Lincoln a week ago. And we're not taking a thing away from Southeastern's defense when we say that. Undoubtedly Tony Veranda was missed. Tony is a great blocker and he might have turned a tie into victory if he had been there.

It's easy to second guess a football game. However, from this angle, it was a great battle and neither team.

DARTMOUTH WINS FROM PRINCETON

Indians, Bitten By Rose Bowl Bug, Roll Up 33-9 Triumph Over Tigers

PRINCETON, N. J., Nov. 6.—(AP)—Dartmouth's slick running green Indians, already bitten by the Rose Bowl bug, convinced their followers today that they were one of the nation's topmost teams by slamming Princeton around 33 to 9 before 38,000 spectators.

It wasn't until the alert Princetonians had taken advantage of a pair of breaks to score a touchdown and a field goal that the bouncing boys from New Hampshire rolled up their sleeves and started taking the Tigers apart. But once they started the only thing that kept them inside the playing field at all was a stout wire fence at the open end.

Sixty yards they went for their first touchdown just before the half, a long pass, Hollingworth to Davis, eating up the last 23. They tore down the green turf 80 yards, then 76 yards for two more in the third period. Their fourth climaxed a parade of 50 yards early in the final heat, and Colby Howe, a slippery substitute, reeled off a punt return of 70 yards to set up the last one.

Bill Hutchinson and Bob MacLeod were a touchdown threat every time they handled the ball and but for the grand backing-up of the porous Princeton line by Jack White the score would have mounted much higher.

BULLDOG SQUAD EN ROUTE HOME

Tech Attracts Considerable Attention As Result Of Win Over Tampa

TALLAHASSEE, Fla., Nov. 6.—(Special)—The Louisiana Tech Bulldogs, tired but happy because of their impressive victory over Tampa university Friday night, passed through here tonight en route home. The Bulldogs expect to arrive at Ruston Sunday night.

Coach Eddie McLane said his team came through the battle with Tampa without injuries and added that the team apparently had returned to their blocking form of last year. The Bulldogs showed their best blocking of the year in the Tampa game last night. Louisiana Tech's stock hit a new high in Florida with its lopsided triumph over the strong Tampa eleven. Tampa previously had defeated Miami, which team earlier had held the undefeated Bucknell eleven to a tie.

The Bulldogs stopped here for a short rest before continuing on their journey toward Louisiana by bus. Following their arrival at Ruston Sunday night, the Techmen will start work Monday devising ways and means to stop Johnny Cain's great Southwestern Louisiana team in a game to be played at Ruston next Friday night. It will be conference game for the Bulldogs, who realize that they've got to continue their present pace if they expect to get by the south Louisiana team.

AUBURN UPSETS TENNESSEE, 20-7

Fast-Charging Plainsmen Line Features Alabamans' Surprising Victory

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Nov. 6.—(AP)—A rampant Auburn line demolished a favored Tennessee football team here today as the Tigers came through with a 20 to 7 victory before 20,000.

The Auburn forwards dominated the play from the opening minute, but several desperate goal-line stands averted touchdowns, and prevented the contest being turned into an utter rout.

Paced by Jimmy Fenton and George Kenmore, a pair of lethal backs, the Tigers ran up 19 first downs and 235 yards on running plays in driving for touchdowns in the second, third and fourth periods.

For Tennessee, George Cafego streaked back 83 yards with an Auburn kickoff to place the ball on the Tiger 11, and then rammed it over for the Vol marker.

After Tennessee repelled four Auburn drives, Kenmore broke the scoring ice with a 20-yard run over his right tackle. Fenton added the point. The second Auburn marker followed Tennessee's first real threat. The Vols went to Auburn's 10 on Duncan's 51-yard kickoff return, and a 25-yard pass, but Kenmore intercepted a pass in the end zone.

After an exchange of punts, with Fenton gaining for Auburn, the Tigers drove 44 yards for the score. Kenmore tossing a 7-yard pass to Walker for the final yards. Fenton again converted.

Auburn's third touchdown came on a 36-yard march, with a 15-yard dash by Billy Hitchcock taking the ball to the four, and Pelham Sitz driving far into the end zone on a fourth down line smash.

TIGERS CHALK UP LOPSIDED SCORE IN HOMECOMING

Twenty Thousand See Maroons Kept Busy Defending Goal In Bruising Game

BATON ROUGE, La., Nov. 6.—(AP)—An offensive brilliant for the first time this season gave Louisiana State university a 41 to 0 victory today over Mississippi State before a homecoming crowd of approximately 23,000 fans.

Governors Richard Leche of Louisiana and Hugh White of Mississippi saw the defending Southeastern conference champions play an alert, bruising brand of football that kept Mississippi State busy defending its goal line during most of the colorful battle.

Half a dozen Mississippians were carried from the field as L. S. U. played its best game of the year.

L. S. U.'s versatile halfback, Pinky Robm, led the scoring parade with a dazzling 58-yard run near the end of the first period.

From then on, Louisiana State went about its business of running up a score in workmanlike fashion.

The lighter second team went into the game at the end of the first period and added two touchdowns in quick order. Young Bussey, stocky curly-headed halfback, subbing for Robm, stepped back in midfield to loop a pass to Ken Kavanaugh, who caught the ball over his head and stumbled across the goal line. Bussey's short passes jockeyed L. S. U. into position for a third touchdown on a triple pass. Anderson to Bussey to Stell.

L. S. U.'s first-string guards scored both touchdowns in the third period. Smith grabbed up a fumble and ran 24 yards for one and Clark scooped up a blocked punt near the Mississippi State goal for the other. King of L. S. U. blocked the punt beautifully, as Scott of Mississippi tried to kick out of trouble.

The sensational Bussey-to-Kavanaugh passing combination gave L. S. U. its last touchdown near the end of the game. Bussey threw the ball 46 yards to Kavanaugh on Mississippi State's 27-yard line and then tossed to Stell for the touchdown.

Mississippi State threatened twice near the end of the game. Ward, subbing for Hight, ran and passed to the L. S. U. 25 and then to the 10 but the Tigers held for downs on both occasions.

Louisiana State university's homecoming provided a colorful celebration at today's football game.

The smartly dressed Mississippi State band spelled "Tigers" and "State" while marching and playing its school anthem. It was followed on the field by the 208-piece L. S. U. band which spelled "Maroons" while playing the Star Spangled Banner.

"Mike," L. S. U.'s full-grown Bengal Tiger mascot, paced his cage furiously as nearly a score of L. S. U. students and co-eds, dressed in riding tops with gay kerchiefs, rode about the field on horseback.

LATE RICE SCORE BEATS RAZORBACKS

HOUSTON, Tex., Nov. 6.—(AP)—Ernie Lain, a sophomore, put Rice institute at the top of the heap in the Southwest conference football race today as the Owls downed the University of Arkansas 26-20.

The big sophomore for the third straight Saturday passed Rice to victory.

Nazarian, Layden Booked For Stadium Main Event

Lopez To Meet Lee Myers In Semi-Final Of Wednesday Mat Program

Another card of light-heavyweight wrestlers, which promises to equal the last program last week, has been booked for the weekly wrestling show at Twin City stadium Wednesday night. Promoter Charlie Brusato announced yesterday.

In the main event Charlie Layden, the former Texas university football star, will meet Mike Nazarian, rough Syrian miner of Pennsylvania, at catch weights in the main event. In the semi-final, Raul Lopez, the Mexican who wrestled Nazarian last week, will tangle with Lee Myers, a clever grappler from Texas.

Layden wrestled a one-hour draw with "The Dragon" last week and his showing gave him a chance to meet Nazarian in the feature of this week's show. Nazarian also showed here last week, being disqualified when he continued to rough Lopez after repeated warnings from the referee.

Layden made a big hit with the fans last Wednesday night by his clever work against his opponent. He used his famous drop kick to win a fall from "The Dragon" but neither could gain the decision before the time limit caught them in the third and deciding stanza. Charlie can get as rough as the next one and if Nazarian starts getting tough, he's likely to find himself with more than he can handle.

Layden isn't as tall as most of the light heavies but he weighs as much and his power is packed in his massive shoulders and arms.

Myers, who meets Lopez in the semi-final, is said to be one of the leading contenders for the light-heavyweight championship. According to Brusato, he's the same type of wrestler as was Ernest Kelly, long a favorite with local fans, and the promoter believes he will be as popular as Kelly here.

Both matches will be best two out of three falls, with the main event limited to two hours and the semi-final having a one-hour time limit. C. C. Scharff will referee both bouts.

ARMY NOSES OUT HARVARD, 7 TO 6

Outplayed During Most Of Game, Cadets Score In Last Four Minutes

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Nov. 6.—(AP)—Army's courageous Cadets, outplayed by Harvard for the first time since 1928, gained their sixth straight victory over the Crimson by the tight margin of 7-6 today before 47,000 at the stadium.

Although forced to start without four of their stalwarts, the well-drilled Harvard forces scored early and held the upper hand until the last four minutes of play.

At that late stage, Army's demon halfback, John Ryan, a quarterback replacement, recovered his second Harvard fumble in as many minutes on the Crimson's 30.

Then, for the first time, the Cadets' attack clicked. They ran and passed to within a foot of the goal line and Ryan plunged through center to tie the score. The same soldier, from Cherokee, Iowa, also placekicked the Army's seventh and winning point.

It was a heart-breaker for Harvard to lose after gaining its only major victory under Coach Dick Harlow at Princeton last week. It outtrushed Army 13 first downs to 5 and 194 yards to 63.

The Crimson's makeshift lineup scored on the 12th play of the game when Austin Harding drove over from the Cadets' five yard line to clinch a stirring 62-yard drive. The momentum of his push was supplied by the battering tactics of substitute Fullback Ralph Pope and Frank Foley's 20-yard pass to Bob Green, which was the most valuable of the five heaves Harvard completed in 18 tries.

Harding, however, was unable to produce the seventh point, which would have been the tying marker, when called upon to place kick.

GOING PLACES

Rob Smith, above, is called the finest high school player ever developed in West Virginia. A senior in the backfield of Beaver High of Bluefield, the 18-year-old Smith's punts in seven games this season averaged 33 yards from the line of scrimmage. Running Rob's average return of punts is 41 yards, and he has averaged nine yards at rushing. The youngster weighs 160 pounds and stands 5 feet 11.

NEBRASKA HELD TO 13-13 TIE BY KANSAS

LINCOLN, Neb., Nov. 6.—(AP)—Kansas, the expected soft spot on Nebraska's football schedule, turned out today to be just soft enough to mire the Cornhuskers in a 13-13 tie and put a sharp crimp in their plans to march to a third consecutive Big Six championship.

Undaunted by the Huskers' impressive record, which included four victories and a tie, the Kansans asked no quarter and gave none as they shot into a six-point lead in the first six minutes of play, saw Nebraska tie it up in the same quarter, took a seven-point lead in the second period and held it until a desperate Husker running and passing attack in the fading minutes brought the final deadlock, after an 80-yard march.

WATCH OUR NEW KERRICK KLEANER

Wash Your Car Cleaner Than Ever Before

- Accustomed as you are to seeing your car lambasted by a stinging high-pressure spray and brush-scoured with a mixture of gritty mud and water, you'll marvel at the gentle but incomparably thorough cleaning action of our remarkable new Kerrick Kleaner.
- A spray as fine as mist dissolves and floats away every trace of dirt and grease with astonishing speed. The grit of road dirt is not driven into the finish or bearings. The cleaning action is gentle and harmless. Yet the stubbornest deposits of hard-caked oil and grease on wheels, brake drums and springs melts away to an absolutely clean, dry surface.
- Our Kerrick Kleaner reaches every hidden crevice, cleaning everything spic-and-span as new. You don't know what "clean" is until we have "Kerrick-Kleaned" your car. You'll find, too, that it stays clean and retains the beauty of its finish longer. It's more for your money ... a lot more!

FIELD GOAL IN LAST 2 MINUTES WINS FOR TIDE

Battling Greenies Hold Lead Until Last Quarter Of Hard Fought Game

By Kenneth Gregory

NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 6.—(AP)—Alabama's Crimson Tide, thanks to a thrilling, heroic field goal in the waning minutes, rolled on undefeated and untied today with a 9 to 6 conquest over a scrapping Tulane Green Wave.

It was the seventh straight victory for the Red Regiment from Tuscaloosa, which continued its Southeastern conference championship drive and Rose Bowl hopes before more than 31,000 spectators in Tulane stadium.

Battled to a 6 to 0 standstill for 58 minutes, in which the fighting Greenies staged a spectacular goal-line stand late in the fourth period, the Crimson Tide pulled victory out of the fire through the trusty toe of a gungling sophomore.

The big clock at the end of the field said two minutes remained to play. Alabama had the ball on Tulane's 23 and two long passes had failed. Coach Frank Thomas gambled on a field goal.

Into the fray rushed big Sandy Sanford, a 204-pound end from Adena, Ark. Field General Joe Kilgore called for the place-kick. Half-back George Zivich knelt, the ball came back and the Arkansas lad nonchalantly booted the ball across the uprights for the sensational victory margin.

The ball, kicked beautifully, barely kept its height to clear the cross-bar, but as it fell slowly across it marked the detonation of a wild uprising on the Alabama bench and handed defeat to a Tulane team that actually deserved no worse than a tie.

It was a rough and tumble game, with Tulane's gridgers, previously unconquered within the conference, scoring midway the first period after blocking an Alabama punt to get possession at the Tide 18. Line plays carried to the two, whence Fullback John Andrews lunged over for the score. Warren Brunner's try for the extra point was smothered.

Trailing by a touchdown as the third period opened, Alabama unleashed a sensational attack that produced a touchdown after an 86-yard drive, featuring the running of Kilgore, Zivich, Charley Holm, and the end-around dashes of Ends Person Shoemaker and Tut Warren.

After Warren had skittered end for 24 yards to place the ball on the Tulane nine, Shoemaker added six and Kilgore hit the line for a yard. On the next play Quarterback Vic Bradford crashed over for the touchdown. Kilgore barely missed the extra point.

MICHIGAN RALLIES TO SHADE CHICAGO, 13-12

ANN ARBOR, Mich., Nov. 6.—(AP)—Michigan's Wolverines rallied dramatically in the final four minutes of play today to score two touchdowns and defeat an inspired University of Chicago football team, 13 to 12. It was Michigan's third successive Western conference victory, all by one-point margins.

Danny Smick's toe provided the one-point victory margin after the first touchdown.

ALABAMA NOSES OUT TULANE IN THRILLER, 9-6

SPORTS CHATTER

By George V. Lofton

THAT SCORELESS TIE

That was the matter with North-Center?

That was the query on all sides yesterday, following the Indians' 0-0 deadlock with "Red" Swanson's Southeastern Louisiana college eleven at Hammond Friday night.

The answer is: Nothing. The Indians merely ran up against a team that's just about as good as they are. In addition, the Lions were playing an inspired brand of football that just couldn't lose. They had been pointing for that one all season.

It was one of the best games we've ever seen. For thrills, the crowd saw both teams in scoring position several times, with the opposing club mustering enough strength to spike every threat. The kicking was great and those who watched the defense, rather than the offense, saw plenty to rave about.

Southeastern has an excellent line, plus four backs who can go with the best of 'em. In Carlin, Swanson has a boy who stacks up with the best kickers in the business. In the third quarter his out-of-bounds boots in the coffin corner set the Indians back on their heels repeatedly. His passing wasn't quite up to par Friday night but he demonstrated that he's a triple-threat by ripping off several long gains in a running attack. Sanchez is a fine line plunger and Morton, a Tallulah boy, is fast and shifty.

The Indians had a real scoring opportunity in the fourth period, but Southeastern was there in the pinch to turn 'em back. With the ball on the eight yard line and four tries to reach the pay-off stripe, the Tribe picked up five yards on three thrusts at the line. They elected to pass on fourth down, and the play was broken up in the end zone. We heard some criticism of that strategy yesterday but some fans probably would have found fault if they'd tried the line again and failed. We were all disappointed when the Indians didn't score, but thousands of Southeastern supporters likewise were disappointed when the Lions were unable to capitalize on their scoring opportunities.

Northeast Center's blocking wasn't quite up to par. We believe the Indians would have scored at least one touchdown if they had blocked as they did against Copiah-Lincoln a week ago. And we're not taking a thing away from Southeastern's defense when we say that. Undoubtedly Tony Veranda was missed. Tony is a great blocker and he might have turned a tie into victory if he had been there.

It's easy to second guess a football game. However, from this angle, it was a great battle and neither team.

DARTMOUTH WINS FROM PRINCETON

Indians, Bitten By Rose Bowl Bug, Roll Up 33-9 Triumph Over Tigers

PRINCETON, N. J., Nov. 6.—(AP)—Dartmouth's slick running green Indians, already bitten by the Rose Bowl bug, convinced their followers today that they were one of the nation's topmost teams by slamming Princeton around 33 to 9 before 38,000 spectators.

It wasn't until the alert Princeton had taken advantage of a pair of breaks to score a touchdown and a field goal that the bouncing boys from New Hampshire rolled up their sleeves and started taking the Tigers apart. But once they started the only thing that kept them inside the playing field at all was a stout wire fence at the open end.

Sixty yards they went for their first touchdown just before the half, a long pass, Hollingworth to Davis eating up the last 23. They tore down the green turf 80 yards, then 76 yards for two more in the third period. Their fourth climaxed a parade of 50 yards early in the final half, and Colby Howe, a slippery substitute, reeled off a punt return of 70 yards to set up the last one.

Bill Hutchinson and Bob MacLeod were a touchdown threat every time they handled the ball and but for the grand backing-up of the porous Princeton line by Jack White the score would have mounted much higher.

BULLDOG SQUAD EN ROUTE HOME

Tech Attracts Considerable Attention As Result Of Win Over Tampa

TALLAHASSEE, Fla., Nov. 6.—(Special)—The Louisiana Tech Bulldogs, tired but happy because of their impressive victory over Tampa university Friday night, passed through here tonight en route home. The Bulldogs expect to arrive at Ruston Sunday night.

Coach Eddie McLane said his team came through the battle with Tampa without injuries and added that the team apparently had returned to their blocking form of last year. The Bulldogs showed their best blocking of the year in the Tampa game last night.

Louisiana Tech's stock hit a new high in Florida with its lopsided triumph over the strong Tampa eleven. Tampa previously had defeated Miami, which team earlier had held the undefeated Bucknell eleven to a tie.

The Bulldogs stopped here for a short rest before continuing on their journey toward Louisiana by bus. Following their arrival at Ruston Sunday night, the Techmen will start work Monday devising ways and means to stop Johnny Cain's great Southwestern Louisiana team in a game to be played at Ruston next Friday night. It will be a conference game for the Bulldogs, who realize that they've got to continue their present pace if they expect to get by the south Louisiana team.

Auburn Upsets Tennessee, 20-7

Fast-Charging Plainsmen Line Features Alabamians' Surprising Victory

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Nov. 6.—(AP)—A rampant Auburn line demolished a favored Tennessee football team here today as the Tigers came through with a 20 to 7 victory before 20,000.

The Auburn forwards dominated the play from the opening minute, but several desperate goal-line stands averted touchdowns, and prevented the contest being turned into an utter rout.

Paced by Jimmy Fenton and George Kenmore, a pair of lethal backs, the Tigers ran up 19 first downs and 255 yards on running plays in driving for touchdowns in the second, third and fourth periods.

For Tennessee, George Cafego streaked back 83 yards with an Auburn kickoff to place the ball on the Tiger 11, and then rammed it over for the Vol marker.

After Tennessee repelled four Auburn drives, Kenmore broke the scoring ice with a 20-yard run over his right tackle. Fenton added the point.

The second Auburn marker followed Tennessee's first real threat. The Vols went to Auburn's 10 on Duncan's 51-yard kickoff return, and a 25-yard pass, but Kenmore intercepted a pass in the end zone.

After an exchange of punts, with Fenton gaining for Auburn, the Tigers drove 44 yards for the score. Kenmore tossing a 7-yard pass to Walker for the final yards. Fenton again converted.

Auburn's third touchdown came on a 36-yard hitch, with a 15-yard dash by Billy Hitchcock taking the ball to the four, and Pelham Sitz driving far into the end zone on a fourth down line smash.

TIGERS CHALK UP LOPSIDED SCORE IN HOMECOMING

Twenty Thousand See Maroons Kept Busy Defending Goal In Bruising Game

By Norman Walker

BATON ROUGE, La., Nov. 6.—(AP)—An offensive brilliant for the first time this season gave Louisiana State university a 41 to 0 victory today over Mississippi State before a homecoming crowd of approximately 20,000 fans.

Governors Richard Leche of Louisiana and Hugh White of Mississippi saw the defending Southeastern conference champions play an alert, bruising brand of football that kept Mississippi State busy defending its goal line during most of the colorful battle.

Half a dozen Mississippians were carried from the field as L. S. U. played its best game of the year.

L. S. U.'s versatile halfback, Pinky Rohm, led the scoring parade with a dazzling 58-yard punt return near the end of the first period.

From then on, Louisiana State went about its business of running up a score in workmanlike fashion.

The lighter second team went into the game at the end of the first period and added two touchdowns in quick order.

Young Bussey, stocky curly-headed halfback, subbing for Rohm, stepped back to midfield to loop a pass to Ken Kavanaugh, who caught the ball over his head and stumbled across the goal line. Bussey's short passes jockeyed L. S. U. into position for a third touchdown on a triple pass, Anderson to Bussey to Stell.

L. S. U.'s first-string guards scored both touchdowns in the third period. Smith grabbed up a fumble and ran 24 yards for one and Clark scooped up a blocked punt near the Mississippi State goal for the other. King of L. S. U. blocked the punt beautifully, as Scott of Mississippi tried to kick out of trouble.

The sensational Bussey-to-Kavanaugh passing combination gave L. S. U. its last touchdown near the end of the game. Bussey threw the ball 46 yards to Kavanaugh on Mississippi State's 27-yard line and then tossed to Stell for the touchdown.

Mississippi State threatened twice near the end of the game. Ward, subbing for Hight, ran and passed to the L. S. U. 23 and then to the 19 but the Tigers held for downs on both occasions.

Louisiana State university's homecoming provided a colorful celebration at today's football game.

The smartly-dressed Mississippi State band spelled "Tigers" and "State" while marching and playing its school anthem. It was followed on the field by the 208-piece L. S. U. band which spelled "Maroon" while playing the Star Spangled Banner.

"Mike," L. S. U.'s full-grown Bengal Tiger mascot, pawed his cage furiously as nearly a score of L. S. U. students and co-eds, dressed in riding togs with gay kerchiefs, rode about the field on horseback.

LATE RICE SCORE BEATS RAZORBACKS

HOUSTON, Tex., Nov. 6.—(AP)—Ernie Lain, a sophomore, put Rice institute at the top of the heap in the Southwest conference football race today as the Owls overthrew the University of Arkansas 26-20.

The big sophomore for the third straight Saturday passed Rice to victory.

There were but 33 seconds left to play and Rice was trailing 19-20 when Lain pitched a perfect pass 35 yards into the arms of Ollis Cordill, another sophomore, for the score that beat Arkansas and virtually eliminated the Razorbacks from a chance at repeating as conference champions.

Three times during the game Lain threw touchdown passes and over on the other side of the line Jack Robbins of Arkansas duplicated the unusual feat, completing 10 out of 16 heaves while Lain completed 9 of 19 attempts. A total of 38 passes were hurled in the game.

The victory was the first for the lightly touted Aggies in Southwest conference play. In the opening moments of the second period, Stidger's punt arched into the waiting arms of Todd who raced to a touchdown behind perfect interference. He then split the uprights for the extra point.

Deep in his own territory in the fourth Stidger heaved a pass which Turner leaped to catch. He ran over the chalk line untouched. Todd again booted the point.

Nazarian, Layden Booked For Stadium Main Event

Lopez To Meet Lee Myers In Semi-Final Of Wednesday Mat Program

Another card of light-heavyweight wrestlers, which promises to equal the first program last week, has been booked for the weekly wrestling show at Twin City stadium Wednesday night. Promoter Charlie Bruscatto announced yesterday.

In the main event Charlie Layden, the former Texas university football star, will meet Mike Nazarian, rough Syrian miner of Pennsylvania, at catch weights in the main event. In the semi-final, Raul Lopez, the Mexican who wrestled Nazarian last week, will tangle with Lee Myers, a clever grappler from Texas.

Layden wrestled a one-hour draw with "The Dragon" last week and his showing gave him a chance to meet Nazarian in the feature of this week's show. Nazarian also showed here last week, being disqualified when he continued to rough Lopez after repeated warnings from the referee.

Layden made a big hit with the fans last Wednesday night by his clever work against his opponent. He used his famous drop kick to win a fall from "The Dragon" but neither could gain the decision before the time limit caught them in the third and deciding stanza. Charlie can get as rough as the next one and if Nazarian starts getting tough, he's likely to find himself with more than he can handle.

Layden isn't as tall as most of the light heavies but he weighs as much and his power is packed in his massive shoulders and arms.

Myers, who meets Lopez in the semi-final, is said to be one of the leading contenders for the light heavyweight championship. According to Bruscatto, he's the same type of wrestler as was Ernest Kelly, long a favorite with local fans, and the promoter believes he will be as popular as Kelly here.

Both matches will be best two out of three falls, with the main event limited to two hours and the semi-final having a one-hour time limit. C. C. Scharff will referee both bouts.

Rob Smith, above, is called the finest high school player ever developed in West Virginia. A senior in the backfield of Beaver High of Bluefield, the 18-year-old Smith's punts in seven games this season averaged 33 yards from the line of scrimmage. Rambling Rob's average return of punts is 41 yards, and he has averaged nine yards at rushing. The youngster weighs 160 pounds and stands 5 feet 11.

NEBRASKA HELD TO 13-13 TIE BY KANSAS

LINCOLN, Neb., Nov. 6.—(AP)—Kansas, the expected soft spot on Nebraska's football schedule, turned out today to be just soft enough to mire the Cornhuskers in a 13-13 tie and put a sharp crimp in their plans to march to a third consecutive Big Six championship.

Undaunted by the Huskers' impressive record, which included four victories and a tie, the Kansans asked no quarter and gave none as they shot into a six-point lead in the first six minutes of play, saw Nebraska tie it up in the same quarter, took a tie-up-point lead in the second period and held it until a desperate Husker running and passing attack in the fading minutes brought the final deadlock, after an 80-yard march.

Although forced to start without four of their stalwarts, the well-drilled Harvard forces scored early and held the upper hand until the last four minutes of play.

At that late stage, Army's demon half-back, John Ryan, a quarterback replacement, recovered his second Harvard fumble in as many minutes on the Crimson's 30.

Then, for the first time, the Cadets' attack clicked. They ran and passed to within a foot of the goal line and Ryan plunged through center to tie the score. The same soldier, from Cherokee, Iowa, also placekicked the Army's seventh and winning point.

It was a heart-breaker for Harvard to lose after gaining its only major victory under Coach Dick Harlow at Princeton last week. It outscored Army 13 first downs to 5 and 194 yards to 63.

The Crimson's makeshift lineup scored on the 12th play of the game when Austin Harding drove over from the Cadets' five yard line to climax a stirring 62-yard drive. The momentum of his push was supplied by the battering tactics of substitute Fullback Ralph Pope and Frank Foley's 20-yard pass to Bob Green, which was the most valuable of the five heaves Harvard completed in 18 tries.

Harding, however, was unable to produce the seventh point, which would have been the tying marker, when called upon to place kick.

FIELD GOAL IN LAST 2 MINUTES WINS FOR TIDE

Battling Greenies Hold Lead Until Last Quarter Of Hard Fought Game

By Kenneth Gregory

NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 6.—(AP)—Alabama's Crimson Tide, thanks to a thrilling, heroic field goal in the waning minutes, rolled on undefeated and untied today with a 9 to 6 conquest over a scrapping Tulane Green Wave.

It was the seventh straight victory for the Red Regiment from Tuscaloosa, which continued its Southeastern conference championship drive and Rose Bowl hopes before more than 31,000 spectators in Tulane stadium.

Battled to a 6 to 6 standstill for 58 minutes, in which the fighting Greenies staged a spectacular goal-line stand late in the fourth period, the Crimson Tide pulled victory out of the fire through the trusty toe of a gangling sophomore.

The big clock at the end of the field said two minutes remained to play. Alabama had the ball on Tulane's 23 and two long passes had failed. Coach Frank Thomas gambled on a field goal.

Into the fray rushed big Sandy Sanford, a 204-pound and from Adona, Ark. Field Gridders previously unneeded for the place-kick. Half-back George Zivich knelt, the ball came back and the Arkansas lad nonchalantly booted the ball across the uprights for the sensational victory margin.

The ball, kicked beautifully, barely kept its height to clear the cross-bar, but as it fell slowly across it marked the detonation of a wild uprising on the Alabama bench and handed defeat to a Tulane team that actually deserved no worse than a tie.

It was a rough and tumble game, with Tulane's gridders previously unneeded within the conference, scoring midway the first period after blocking an Alabama punt to get possession at the Tide 18. Line plays carried to the two, whence Fullback John Andrews lunged over for the score. Warren Brunner's try for the extra point was smothered.

Trailing by a touchdown as the third period opened, Alabama unleashed a sensational attack that produced a touchdown after an 86-yard drive, featuring the running of Kilgore, Zivich, Charley Holm, and the end-around dashes of Ends Perron Shoemaker and Tut Warren.

After Warren had skirted end for 24 yards to place the ball on the Tulane nine, Shoemaker added six and Kilgore hit the line for a yard. On the next play Quarterback Vic Bradford crashed over for the touchdown. Kilgore barely missed the extra point.

MICHIGAN RALLIES TO SHADE CHICAGO, 13-12

ANN ARBOR, Mich., Nov. 6.—(AP)—Michigan's Wolverines rallied dramatically in the final four minutes of play today to score two touchdowns and defeat an inspired University of Chicago football team, 13 to 12. It was Michigan's third successive Western conference victory, all by one-point margins.

Danny Smick's toe provided the one-point victory margin after the first touchdown.

WATCH OUR NEW KERRICK KLEANER Wash Your Car Cleaner Than Ever Before

● Accustomed as you are to seeing your car lambasted by a stinging high-pressure spray and brush-scoured with a mixture of gritty mud and water, you'll marvel at the gentle but incomparably thorough cleaning action of our remarkable new Kerrick Kleaner.

● A spray as fine as mist dissolves and floats away every trace of dirt and grease with astonishing speed. The grit of road dirt is not driven into the finish or bearings. The cleaning action is gentle and harmless. Yet the stubborn deposits of hard-caked oil and grease on wheels, brake drums and springs melts away to an absolutely clean, dry surface.

● Our Kerrick Kleaner reaches every hidden crevice, cleaning everything spot-and-span as new. You don't know what "clean" is until we have "Kerrick-Kleaned" your car. You'll find, too, that it stays clean and retains the beauty of its finish longer. It's more for your money... a lot more!

GENTS UPSET T. C. U.

CENTENARY BEATS HORNFROGS IN CLOSE GAME, 10-9

Field Goal In Waning Moments Sends Shreveport Eleven Out In Front

SHREVEPORT, La., Nov. 6.—(AP)—Centenary college Gents joined the ranks of the gridiron giant killers of 1937 Saturday afternoon, and in one of the most dizzy battles staged here in years, upset the Texas Christian eleven, 10 to 9.

Surprising the enemy with a cleverly executed pass that traveled only about five yards from Bynum to Hudleston but enabled the latter to sprint about 40 yards to a touchdown behind perfect interference, the Gents scored on the T. C. U. regular in the second quarter. They nursed this lead until the third period when the Frogs scored a touchdown on Davey O'Brien's 25-yard return of a punt from behind Centenary's goal line.

With the score 7 to 6 in favor of Centenary, O'Brien kicked a field goal in the first minute of the fourth period, making the score 9 to 7. Centenary then staged a 50-yard march, featured by a fumble by Bynum that gained 23 yards, in setting the stage for the field goal that won the game. After they had met stubborn line resistance on the 18-yard line the field goal was decided upon.

The game was witnessed by 8,500 fans.

FLORIDA UPSETS GEORGIA, 6 TO 0

Twenty Thousand See 'Gators Protect Early Lead With Dogged Defense

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Nov. 6.—(AP)—A blocked punt brought an end today to Georgia's six-year football supremacy over Florida.

Converted into a touchdown, it gave Florida a 6 to 0 victory in perhaps the most hotly contested game of a rivalry dating back to early in the century.

More than 20,000 persons, north Florida's largest sports crowd watched the 'Gators' beat off a desperate fourth period attack that once carried to the four-yard line.

The break came in the second period. With the ball on Georgia's 44, halfback Billy Munn attempted to kick Charles Krejler, Florida tackle, broke through the line and charged like a shot. The ball struck his stomach and bounded to the Georgia 25, where Clifford Whitford, Gator end, scooped it up. He broke loose from two tacklers and darted across the goal line standing up.

Clark Goff's placekick was low.

ILLINOIS CHALKS UP 6-0 WIN OVER NORTHWESTERN

EVANSTON, Nov. 6.—(AP)—A determined, fighting Illinois team pushed Northwestern all over DeSche stadium for 58 snail minutes today to score a smashing upset, 6 to 0 victory. A near capacity crowd of 42,000 saw the bruising struggle.

The Illini opened up with a 52-yard touchdown march in the closing minutes of the game to score.

Tony Maczika, who had been sitting on the bench all season, spurred through the Northwestern line for a surprising running attack that completely upset the Wildcats.

NEVILLE, HOMER PLAY THURSDAY

Two Undeclared Teams In Class A Circles Vie For Sectional Honors

The Tigers of Neville High school and Homer High schools played a Thursday night at Homer in north Louisiana's most important class A conference game of the week as the two eleven-men teams fought for the lead in the north Louisiana title race.

Neither the Tigers nor Pelicans have been beaten in class A this year and the game Thursday is their last regularly scheduled conference battle. The Coach Percy Brown's Pelicans are especially anxious to win the conference championship and realizing the importance of the game can be depended on to be playing their best.

We are going to about the work of Coach Brown said last night, and win or lose Homer will know the value of this battle. Neville and Homer were both winners over the past weekend. The Tigers barely keeping ahead of Ruston to stop the Bulldogs 27 to 26, and Homer coming from behind in the last quarter to down Minden 21 to 18.

The Pelicans should not count on an even match for Coach Brown's boys. The Hendersonville team, which defeated Neville in a conference game 17 to 6, was a 6-0 winner. Fair Park of Shreveport 7 to 6. The class AA Fair Park team was later was held by the Homer team to a 7 to 6 win.

Yesterday Coach Brown worked on a short while with his players. He was especially anxious to get the game and working out some plays. Several Tigers came through the line, but the Homer defense was too strong. The game was a close one, but the Homer defense was too strong.

Hurlan Beaumont, fast developing guard, and the rest of the Tigers' newer crop of linemen, line up well in the Ruston game despite a leg injury. Beaumont managed to hold his own at right guard despite the hand-drops and came out of the game with no further injury.

Michael, a red of the Homer backfield, a capable punter, center passer and ball carrier, will be Neville's biggest threat when they go against the Pelicans. Michael pulled victory out of defeat with his heady work against the Hendersonville team. He was expected to flash tricky combinations on the line. Kendrick, big fullback and northwest Louisiana heavyweight boxing champion last year, is another Homer mainstay, along with Kimbrow, end.

VANDERBILT TRIMS SEWANE, 41 TO 0

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Nov. 6.—(AP)—Orthodox football as executed by three complete teams gave Vanderbilt a crushing 41 to 0 victory over Sewanee today and their third Southern conference victory of the season.

A crowd of 1,600 spectators saw the regulars run up a comfortable lead in the first and second periods before retreating to the bench to give the reserves the spotlight.

Sewanee, although obviously outclassed, managed to drive several times within the Vanderbilt ten-yard line, but never could bring off the punch to get across the double stripes. The Tigers gained the distinction of running up 13 first downs against the victors, more than any other Vanderbilt foe has been able to register.

Baby Ray's recovery of a Sewanee fumble on the Tiger 35-yard line led the first score, Ford smashing through the line for the tally from the three-yard line.

The final tally came in the fourth period on a double pass when Keene going the 21 yards to the goal.

Baylor Defeated And Other Top-Ranking Teams Suffer Reverses

By Herbert W. Barker
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

It's still strictly a speculative and falling market on football favorites.

In another stunning series of positively daily results yesterday, Baylor Bears were removed from the undefeated and untied list by Dana Bible's much-troubled Texas Longhorns; Nebraska had to fight for its life to get a 13-12 draw with under-rated Kansas; California's previously unbeaten Golden Bears were held to a scoreless draw by Washington; and Ohio State and Northwestern both were victims of shocking Big Ten upsets.

The law of averages, however, is not second in its race to catch up with such eastern powers as Dartmouth, Dartmouth, Yale, Holy Cross, Villanova and Lafayette, as well as Alabama and Duke in the south. California in the Rocky Mountain section and Santa Clara and Montana in the far west.

Baylor, apparently headed for the national title without much competition, fell by a 9-6 count. Baylor's Texas coach, Hays, had a field goal from the 25-yard line in the waning minutes of play. Ohio State, needing only a tie to get past Indiana, lost by a 14-7 count. Baylor's Texas coach, Hays, had a field goal from the 25-yard line in the waning minutes of play. GEORGIA TECH NOSES OUT TIGHT CLEMSON TEAM, 7-0

ATLANTA, Nov. 6.—(AP)—Lacking the power to crumble a dogged Clemson defense, Georgia Tech turned to its offense to stage a 7-0 victory from the stadium. Tigers here today.

The Yellow Jackets immediately launched their touchdown drive from their 20 and went over 12 plays later on a six-yard pass from Happy Appleby to Dutch Koenigsmann. Sims added the point.

Tech outgained the Tigers 145 to 41 on the ground and 101 to 24 in the air but was unable to make only one other real threat and Clemson's line stopped that on the 15.

OUACHITA MEETS CHOUDRANT TEAM

Lions Return Home Thursday To Tackle Class B Title Contenders

The Lions of Ouachita Parish High school came home this week, after two disastrous games on successive weekends on the road, to meet the Choctawhatchee High school Aggies, strong contenders for the district Class B crown, at Southern Center of L. S. U. stadium today.

Ouachita's Lions had last night lost the first of the district games and now they will have to win the second to have a chance of winning the title.

The Choctawhatchee Aggies, who have a record of 10-0, are the only team in the district to have won all their games. They are the only team in the district to have won all their games.

EYSTON REACHES 310 MILES AN HOUR SPEED

POWELLVILLE, SALT FLATS, Utah, Nov. 6.—(AP)—Captain George E. T. Eyston today reached the fastest speed ever made in an automobile—310.7 miles per hour—again today to break the world's official land speed record because of one tire that wouldn't hold.

He must work fast on his gasoline "underfoot" if he is to suffer but Malcolm Campbell's record of 201.2 mph still stands because water is flowing in the salt flats.

On his trip east Eyston hit 208.8 mph through the narrow slot. He then hit 310.7 mph over the salt flats. He then hit 310.7 mph over the salt flats.

Apparently, our report work on the left clutch was not thorough enough. Eyston and his time well radically change it.

CHOUDRANT WINS FROM GILBERT AGGIES, 21 TO 6

CHOUDRANT, La., Nov. 6.—(AP)—The Choctawhatchee High school Aggies finished their season here today with a 21-6 victory over Choctawhatchee High school Aggies to feature Choctawhatchee's homecoming program over which Miss Nell Williams, senior, reigned as queen.

The locals scored a 14-0 intercept pass, by Eyston, scoring the initial touchdown after running back an intercepted pass. Jack Soderstrom scored again for the Lions on an almost identical play. Lou Campbell, big fullback, scored again through the line and "Red" Herman scored and 35 yards for another. Campbell kicked all tries for extra points.

A half-out pass, taken by Altho, Gilbert left end, gave the invaders their only score.

SHREVEPORT, La., Nov. 6.—(P)—Centenary college Gents joined the ranks of the gridiron giant killers of 1937 Saturday afternoon, and in one of the most dirty battles staged here in years, upset the dope by beating the highly touted Texas Christian eleven, 10 to 9.

Surprising the enemy with a cleverly executed pass that traveled only about five yards from Bynum to Hudnall but enabled the latter to sprint about 40 yards to a touchdown, behind perfect interference, the Gents scored on the T. C. U. regulars in the second quarter. They nursed this lead until the third period when the Frogs scored a touchdown on Davey O'Brien's 23-yard return of a punt from behind Centenary's goal line.

With the score 7 to 6 in favor of Centenary, O'Brien kicked a field goal in the first minute of the fourth period, making the score 9 to 7.

Centenary then staged a 30-yard march, featured by a fumble by Bynum that gained 23 yards, in setting the stage for the field goal that won the game. After they had met stubborn line resistance on the 18-yard line the field goal was decided upon.

The game was witnessed by 8,300 fans.

Dogged Defense

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Nov. 6.—(P)—A blocked punt brought an end today to Georgia's six-year football supremacy over Florida.

Converted into a touchdown, it gave Florida a 6 to 0 victory in perhaps the most bitterly contested game of a rivalry dating back to early in the century.

More than 20,000 persons, north Florida's largest sports crowd, watched the 'Gators beat off a desperate fourth period attack that once carried to the four-yard line.

The break came in the second period. With the ball on Georgia's 44, Halfback Billy Mims attempted to kick, Charley Krejcir, Florida tackle, broke through the line and charged like a shot. The ball struck his stomach and bounded to the Georgia 25, where Clifford Whiddon, 'Gator end, scooped it up. He broke loose from two tacklers and darted across the goal line standing up.

Clark Goff's placekick was low.

ILLINOIS CHALKS UP 6-0
WIN OVER NORTHWESTERN

EVANSTON, Nov. 6.—(P)—A determined, fighting Illinois team pushed Northwestern all over Dyche stadium for 58 snail minutes today to score a smashing upset, 6 to 0 victory. A near capacity crowd of 42,000 saw the bruising struggle.

The Illini opened up with a 52-yard touchdown march in the closing minutes of the game to score.

Tony Mazeika, who had been sitting on the bench all season, spurred through the Northwestern line for a surprising running attack that completely upset the Wildcats.

NEVILLE, HOMER PLAY THURSDAY

Two Undeclared Teams In Class A Circles Vie For Sectional Honors

The Tigers of Neville High school and Homer High school's Pelicans tangled Thursday night at Homer in north Louisiana's most important class A conference game of the week as the two eleven's fight it out for the lead in the north Louisiana title race.

Neither the Tigers nor Pelicans have been beaten in class A this year and the game Thursday is their last regularly scheduled conference battle. Both Coach Percy Brown's Bengals and Coach "Preacher" Roberts' Pelicans are especially anxious to win the conference championship and realizing the importance of the game, can be depended on to be playing their best.

"We are going to shoot the works," Coach Brown said last night, "and win or lose Homer will know they have been in a ball game."

Both Neville and Homer won wild games over the past week-end. The Tigers barely keeping ahead of Ruston to stop the Bearcats, 33 to 26; and Homer coming from behind in the last quarter to down Minden, 21 to 18.

The Pelicans should just about be an even match for Coach Brown's boys. The Haynesville aggregation, which defeated Neville in a non-conference game, 7 to 0, was defeated by Fair Park of Shreveport, 7 to 0. The class AA Fair Park aggregation later was held by the Homer aggregation to a 7 to 7 tie.

Yesterday Coach Brown worked out a short while with his charges, checking injuries received in the Ruston game and working out score muscles. Several Tigers came through the Bearcat battle bruised and battered with Jack Lanham, halfback, suffering a side injury; Vaughan Payne, quarterback, receiving an arm injury; and Ray Spicer, fullback, coming out of the scrap with a charley horse in his leg. Coach Brown said the injuries were not serious.

Hurlan Beaumann, fast developing guard, and the best of the Tigers' newer crop of linemen, bore up well in the Ruston game despite a leg injury. Beaumann managed to hold his own at right guard despite the handicap and came out of the game without further injury.

Michael, ace of the Homer backfield staff, a capable punter, stellar passer and ball carrier, will be Neville's biggest threat when they go against the Pelicans. Michael pulled victory out of defeat with his heady work against Minden's Greenies, and can be expected to flash tricky combinations on the locals. Kendrick, big fullback and northwest Louisiana heavyweight boxing champion last year, is another Homer mainstay, along with Kinabrew, end.

VANDERBILT TRIMS SEWANEE, 41 TO 0

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Nov. 6.—(P)—Orthodox football as executed by three complete teams gave Vanderbilt a crushing 41 to 0 victory over Sewanee today and their third Southeastern conference victory, of the season.

A crowd of 7,000 spectators saw the regulars run up a comfortable lead in the first and second periods before retiring to the bench to give the reserves the spotlight.

Sewanee, although obviously outclassed, managed to drive several times within the Vanderbilt 10-yard line, but never could bring out the punch to get across the double stripes. The Tigers gained the distinction of running up 13 first downs against the visitors, more than any other Vandy foe has been able to register.

Baby Ray's recovery of a Sewanee fumble on the Tiger 27-yard line led the first score, Ford smashing through the line for the tally from the three-yard line.

The final tally came in the fourth period on a double pass with Keene going the 23 yards to the goal.

SETBACKS HANDED FAVORED ELEVEN ON FOUR FRONTS

Baylor Defeated And Other Top-Ranking Teams Suffer Reverses

By Herbert W. Barker
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

It's still strictly a speculative and falling market on football favorites. In another stunning series of positively daffy results yesterday, Baylor's Bears were removed from the undefeated and untied list by Dana Bible's much-trampled Texas Longhorns; Nebraska had to fight for its life to get a 13-13 draw with underdog Kansas; California's previously unchecked Golden Bears were held to a scoreless draw by Washington; and Ohio State and Northwestern both were victims of shocking Big Ten upsets.

The law of averages, however, still ran second in its race to catch up with such eastern powers as Pitt, Fordham, Dartmouth, Yale, Holy Cross, Villanova and Lafayette, as well as Alabama and Duke in the south, Colorado in the Rocky Mountain section and Santa Clara and Montana in the far west.

Baylor, apparently headed for the southwest title without much argument, fell by a 9-6 count before Texas as Hugh Wolfe booted a field goal from the 25-yard line in the waning minutes of play. Ohio State, needing only to get past Indiana to gain an almost certain share in the Big Ten championship, found the Hoosiers entirely too tough and went down to decisive defeat, 18-0. Northwestern, a heavy popular choice, was outpointed by Illinois, 6-0.

Pitt, with a set of hard-running backs operating briskly behind a powerful line, buried Notre Dame under a three-touchdown barrage in the fourth period to win, 21-6. Fordham, one of the nation's strong teams, played its most impressive game in a 21-3 rout of Purdue. Dartmouth posted Princeton nine points and then went on to win, 33-9. Yale leisurely accounted for Brown, 19-0. Holy Cross spilled Colgate, 12-7; Villanova trounced Marquette, 25-7; and Lafayette spilled Rutgers, 12-6.

Alabama needed Sanford's field goal in the last two minutes to beat Tulane, 9-6, but Duke scored at will against Wake Forest, 67-0. Colorado kept its perfect record intact in a 17-7 victory over Utah.

Although Temple, previously unbeaten, bowed to Michigan State's fourth-quarter rally, 13-6, the east returned in winning form in inter-sectional combat.

Besides the Pitt, Villanova and Fordham triumphs, the Atlantic seaboard could point to Manhattan's upset 7-0 conquest of Detroit, Syracuse's 27-5 defeat of Western Reserve and Bucknell's somewhat unexpected 20-7 rout of Furman.

Carnegie Tech, which engineered one upset over Notre Dame earlier in the season, came up with another one in a 6-0 defeat of Duquesne. Army was badly outgained by Harvard but took advantage of a Crimson fumble in the final quarter to win, 7-6. Navy defeated Columbia, 13-6. Penn State took Penn over the hurdles.

Minnesota, now favored to gain undisputed possession of the Big Ten championship, wore down Iowa, 35-19, while Michigan had to score twice in the last four minutes to take a 13-12 decision from Chicago. Oklahoma won a Big Six encounter from Iowa State, 20-7. Missouri was spilled by St. Louis of the Missouri Valley conference, 14-7.

Rice went to the front in the Southeastern conference race by taking a hair-raising 26-20 decision from Arkansas. Texas A. and M. defeated Southern Methodist, 14-0. Texas Christian was spilled by Centenary, 10-9.

Auburn became a real threat to Alabama in the Southeastern conference chase by trouncing Tennessee, 20-7. Vanderbilt and Louisiana State each won by 41-0 counts from Sewanee and Mississippi State respectively, as Florida surprised Georgia, 6-0. Georgia Tech and Kentucky defeated Southern conference rivals, the former halting Clemson, 7-0, while Kentucky won from South Carolina, 27-7.

In the Southern conference, where Duke took sole possession of the lead, North Carolina spilled Davidson, 25-0, and North Carolina State walloped Citadel, 26-14.

Despite its tie with Washington, California remained the unquestioned Pacific Coast conference leader as Oregon defeated Washington State, 10-6, and Stanford won from Southern California, 7-6.

The two undefeated and untied far western independents, Santa Clara and Montana, won comfortably. Santa Clara defeated San Jose State, 23-2, and Montana stopped Gonzaga, 25-0.

BAMA HARD PRESSED

Sophomore End Sandy Sanford kicked a field goal in the last two minutes of play to salvage Alabama's perfect record of no ties and no defeats by giving the Tide a 9 to 6 victory over Tulane.

More than 30,000 persons saw the Alabama squad come from behind to engulf Tulane's surprisingly strong Green Wave.

Auburn, unbeaten within the Southeastern conference but tied, sprang a 20 to 7 upset victory over Tennessee with apparent ease while Florida stayed off a last quarter rally to nose out Georgia 6 to 0.

Louisiana State and Vanderbilt indulged in field day over Mississippi State and Sewanee respectively, both winning by scores of 41 to 0.

GEORGIA TECH NOSES OUT
TIGHT CLEMSON TEAM, 7-0

ATLANTA, Nov. 6.—(P)—Lacking the power to crumble a dogged Clemson defense, Georgia Tech turned to deception to snatch a 7-0 victory from the stubborn Tigers here today.

The Yellow Jackets immediately launched their touchdown drive from their 20 and went over 12 plays later on a six-yard pass from Happy Appleby to Dutch Konemann. Sims added the point.

Tech outgained the Tigers 147 to 47 on the ground and 104 to 24 in the air but was able to make only one other real threat and Clemson's line stopped that on the 15.

QUACHITA MEETS CHOUDRANT TEAM

Lions Return Home Thursday To Tackle Class B Title
Contenders

The Lions of Quachita Parish High school come home this week, after two disastrous games on successive week-ends on the road, to meet the Choudrant High school Aggies, strong contender for the district Class B crown, at Northeast Center of L. S. U.'s stadium Thursday.

Coach "Lefty" Haynes said last night that the time of the Choudrant game had not been set, but would be either in the afternoon or night of Armistice day.

Despite the fact that the Lions fell before the Byrd High school Yellow Jackets, 33 to 7, Friday night, the locals got satisfaction out of piling up just as many first downs as the Shreveport eleven, the count being 9 and 9.

The Byrd aggregation is bound to win the Class AA title in the opinion of Coach Haynes. "I don't see how anybody in the state is going to stop them. They've got the biggest high school aggregation I ever saw with a line averaging 195 pounds from end to end."

While the locals' losses to Haynesville and Byrd deprived them from any hope of a chance at the title, the Lions have two more Class AA games to play after the non-conference Choudrant game Thursday. They go to Lake Charles November 19 and return here for the season finale on Thanksgiving against Bolton of Alexandria.

Coach Haynes isn't expecting any set-up in facing the Class B Aggies who were in the minor conference title playoffs last season. The Choudrant eleven heads the parade at the present of northeast Louisiana Class B title contenders, after the 13 to 7 victory over Delhi's Bears, who had previously upset the Waterproof Tigers, north Louisiana B champions, and had held the Ouchita Lions to a 19 to 7 victory.

The Aggies have an exceptionally heavy eleven for the size of the school and boast a stellar combination of ball carriers, especially Lou Campbell, huge fullback and stellar Aggie boxing champion.

PITT ROMPS OVER
NOTRE DAME, 21-6Irish Score First But Panthers
Come From Behind With Devastating Power

SOUTH BEND, Ind., Nov. 6.—(AP)—Pittsburgh's Panthers touched off a last period blast of scoring dynamite that all but blew Notre Dame off the gridiron today in the climax game of one of college football's keenest inter-sectional rivalries.

Trailing for the first time this season, by a six-point margin resulting from a spectacular Notre Dame scoring pass, the Rose Bowl champions came back with an overpowering surge to score three touchdowns and turn the match into a rout. The final score was 21 to 6 as Pittsburgh kept its place among the nation's unbeaten teams and flung another challenge to the far west for post-season battle.

A crowd of 56,000 spectators, filling the Notre Dame stadium to capacity for the first time since it was dedicated seven years ago, saw the Panthers win.

Midway in the third quarter the Irish pulled a dazzling 49-yard touchdown play on a forward pass, Jack McCarthy to Andy Pupils, to capitalize a sudden kicking "break." Then came the big explosion.

Marshall (Biggie) Goldberg, spearhead of Pittsburgh's attack, set up the first Pittsburgh touchdown with the collaboration of Fabian Hoffman, substitute end, on a forward pass that netted exactly 50 yards. Two subsequent drives of 66 and 43 yards, in which terrifying power was mixed with subtle deception, produced additional touchdowns. Fullback Patrick twice crossed the Irish goal line and Bill Stebbins once while Frank Souchak, stellar Panther end, added the extra points with unerring place kicks.

MILLSAP TAKES 9 TO 6
WIN FROM SPRING HILL

JACKSON, Miss., Nov. 6.—(AP)—The Spring Hill Badgers said they could take it.

They took it again tonight. With more pluck than luck, the Mobile gridders dropped the second game of a football double header to Millsaps, 9 to 6.

It was the second loss in successive nights, eight straight for the season and probably puts Spring Hill in some sort of a tie with the Phillips or the Dodgers for sustained setbacks.

Through a schedule quirk, the Badgers found themselves playing Mississippi college at Mobile last night and Millsaps at Jackson tonight.

But the boys said they were equal to it. After all, they could only lose. And last night they did.

Mississippi college took their measure, 18 to 7, last night. The Badgers packed up their uniforms, wrapped up their wounded and traveled two hundred miles by bus to take another lacing.

A field goal in the first quarter was Millsaps' margin of victory, Cox booting the oval through the uprights from the 23-yard line.

KENTUCKY GAINS 27-7
WIN OVER GAMECOCKS

LEXINGTON, Ky., Nov. 6.—(AP)—Kentucky's rebounding Wildcats swung off the ropes today to bump South Carolina 27 to 7 and regain some of the luster of a season completely flattened last week.

A steady stream of Kentucky substitutes kept a game Southern conference team at bay until the waning moments of the game.

Kentucky stopped three consecutive South Carolina drives in the second quarter after gaining a 7 to 0 advantage in the first.

Bob Davis was the Kentucky spark-plug again with runs of 63, 49, 21, 17 and 15 yards. He scored the first touchdown on a three-yard plunge over right tackle and the second shortly after one minute of the second half had elapsed on a 63-yard jaunt through the center of the line.

In the closing minutes of the game a 43-yard South Carolina march continued over the goal on a five-yard plunge by Lyons. Louchar kicked goal.

OSCAR MATTHEWS
WINS 5TH VICTORY

NEW YORK, Nov. 6.—(AP)—Oscar (King Kong) Matthews, 197 1-2, of Tallahassee, La., tonight scored his fifth consecutive victory at Rockland Palace by knocking out lanky Stanley Ketchell, 209, of Bloomfield, N. J., in 2:27 of the opening round of an eight-round bout.

Ketchell walked into a blast of damaging punches at the start and was floored with a left hook for a count of six. He came up into another wellop for a four count and the second time he rose Matthews sent him to the canvas for the full count with a right to the chin.

LONGHORNS SPOIL
BAYLOR'S RECORDField Goal Gives Texas 9-6
Triumph Over Badly Outplayed Bear Eleven

WACO, Tex., Nov. 6.—(AP)—Bull-shouldered Hugh Wolfe, University of Texas torped, kicked Baylor off the unbeaten list today with a 26-yard field goal that submerged the Bears in the southwest's spotless teams, 9 to 6.

Only four minutes remained when Wolfe gave Texas a triumph that had been denied it on five different occasions in a chilling skirmish that saw the Longhorns outplay Baylor all the way.

Of the Southwest conference dunces came the savage Texas team, doped to absorb the same licking that Baylor had meted out to six straight foes. But Coach D. X. Bille's Texans, victor in only one game out of six played until today, outplayed the Baylor game from the start.

Wolfe's field goal was the clincher, but it was the nimble feet of Jud Atchison, his halfback playmate, and Wolfe's own power drives off the Baylor tackles that had Baylor on its heels constantly. It was yardage every time that pair packed the ball.

Repulsed at the goal line twice when passes from the five-yard line failed, Texas drove on with ground power late in the fourth period and put Wolfe in position to do his kicking chore. It was perfect all the way.

INDIANA SUBDUES
OHIO STATE, 10-0

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 6.—(AP)—Ohio State's Big Ten championship hopes were translated into one election field of Buckeye stadium today by the golden toe of Center George Miller and the flying feet of Halfback Frank Taylor as Indiana's Hoosiers won, 10 to 0.

A crowd of 47,056 watched the inspired Hoosiers turn back two Buckeye threats in the shadow of the goal posts in the opening minutes and then go on to win a victory as startling as it was impressive.

Miller, who played a great defensive game, stepped back to the 21-yard mark in the second period as an Indiana thrust was halted on the 12, and calmly place kicked a field goal for three points.

Quarterback Frank Filchock faded back in the next period, following a long drive down the field, and fired a 12-yard pass to Patrick who lunged over the goal from the four-yard line.

FORDHAM TROUNCES
PURDUE ELEVEN, 21-3

NEW YORK, Nov. 6.—(AP)—Rose hill to Rose Bowl was loud and strong today as the ranks of the Fordham Rams today.

On the same Polo Grounds green-sward where their hopes were dashed and battered almost a year ago, the Rams rose to their superb heights this chilly afternoon to crush Purdue's Boilermakers, 21 to 3, to rush along the highways of the nation's football world of unbeaten football eleven.

A first period field goal gave Purdue a 3-0 lead, but the Rams struck back to score two touchdowns in the second and another in the fourth period, all of them by air.

Joe Witkowski who kicked the Boilermakers dizzy and tossed two of the touchdown passes, was the Rams hero.

ARCADIA HORNETS DEFEAT
JONESBORO CLUB, 19 TO 0

ARCADIA, La., Nov. 6.—(Special)—Playing their last home game of the season, the Arcadia Hornets completely routed the favored and heavier Jonesboro Tigers to win 19 to 0 here yesterday. After being outplayed at the start of the battle, the locals rallied to score touchdowns in the first, third and fourth quarters.

An intercepted pass by Johnson, Hornet guard, put a stop to the Tigers' early offensive and he ran the ball back 16 yards to the end zone's eight.

A. Ballance, hard charging fullback, scored through the line on a reverse.

A pass, Ballance to Hightower, added a second touchdown in the third period. Hightower scored again in the final period when he ran a Jonesboro punt back from his own 43 yard line behind perfect interference to score standing up. Hightower kicked the only extra point of the game following the third quarter touchdown.

COLUMBIA WINS EASILY
FROM OLLA TEAM, 25-0

COLUMBIA, La., Nov. 6.—(Special)—The Columbia Crimson Tigers defeated Olla Thursday, 25 to 0, to advance a little closer to the class B playoff.

After being idle the preceding weekend, Columbia's backs ran wild against the Olla team, piling many yards in a fine running attack. However, penalties set back the locals approximately 100 yards.

Joe May provided the outstanding feature when he grabbed a pass and raced 30 yards for a touchdown. Jones scored two touchdowns and House one.

Columbia will go to Wisner next week-end.

NAVY RALLIES TO
SHADE COLUMBIAMiddles Score Late Touchdown To Halt Gridiron
Losing Streak, 13-6

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Nov. 6.—(AP)—Navy brought its slide down the gridiron chute to a halt today, whipping Columbia's Lions 13 to 6 in a hard-fought tussle definitely won only in the closing minutes.

The Sailors scored a first period touchdown after a 40-yard drive and kicked the extra point. The Lions matched that touchdown in the third period on Sid Luckman's pass to Arthur Radvillas but Arthur Waldo's placement was wide.

Navy held that one-point lead almost to the finish as Luckman heaved short and long passes. On three occasions Navy defenders leaped high to block end zone passes from receivers.

With only two minutes to go, Luckman gambled on a long pass. Art Franks, Navy quarterback, grabbed it on the dead run and, behind perfect interference, raced 60 yards for the touchdown that settled the issue. Fike's placement was low.

In the first quarter, Lem Cooke and Emmott Wood peppered the Columbia line with sizeable stabs and Wood scored from the two-yard line. Wood placed the extra point that was Navy's margin for 20 apprehensive minutes.

Columbia's tally culminated a 75-yard advance in the third period, with both Taylor banging the tackles and Luckman passing. Luckman tossed 12 yards over the goal to Radvillas.

Despite his inability to pass the Lions to a victory, Luckman's batting average was high with 13 completions out of 29 attempts for 133 yards.

MINNESOTA COMES FROM BEHIND TO WHIP IOWA

IOWA CITY, Ia., Nov. 6.—(AP)—Minnesota's Golden Gophers, pride picked by Iowa's unexpected early 10-point lead, roared back with characteristic power and deception to crush the Hawkeyes 35 to 10 today before 40,000 homecoming football fans.

The Gophers, eliminated from national title consideration by Nebraska last week, were back in the Big Ten manding position in the Big Ten race with the one-sided victory. It was their third straight conference triumph, and Ohio State's defeat by Indiana left Minnesota only the job of conquering Northwestern and Wisconsin to regain its Western conference supremacy.

U. S. GOLF STARS END
INVASION OF ARGENTINA

BUENOS AIRES, Nov. 6.—(AP)—A trio of United States professional golf stars concluded a successful invasion of Argentina today and left by air for Rio de Janeiro for a series of exhibitions before returning home.

In the party were Ben Picard, who won the Argentine open; Donny Shute, U. S. P. G. A. champion, who captured a special match play tournament and Byron Nelson. Exhibitions are scheduled both in Rio de Janeiro and Sao Paulo.

YALE REMAINS UNBEATEN
BY TRIMMING BROWN, 19-0

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Nov. 6.—(AP)—Yale's blue-Jerseyed opportunists, who gauge their game entirely according to that of the opposition, remained in the fast-shrinking undefeated division today by gaining a satisfactory 19-un-spectacular 19-0 decision over Brown before a crowd of 35,000 in the bowl.

The Bruins surprised the customers by holding Yale scoreless in the first period. But Ducky Pond's boys, led by Captain Clint Frank put over one touchdown in each of the last three quarters.

Frank scored each one, two on short yardage drives over the middle, the other on a wide sweep around Brown's right end that started from the 2-yard line.

But yesterday, as if by some pre-arranged plan, the field goal broke forth in all its glory, and a number of important games were decided by those kicks. In fact, we can't remember when so many important contests were settled one way or another by field goals.

Over in Shreveport, T. C. U. used a field goal to take the lead from Centenary, only to see the Gents 10-9 with an identical maneuver. Down in New Orleans, Alabama's undefeated Crimson Tide kicked a field goal in the last two minutes of play to beat Tulane, 9 to 6.

Oregon kicked a field goal to beat Washington State. The same weapon was used by Indiana to clinch its 10-0 triumph over Ohio State, Maryland in beating V. M. I., Texas in knocking Baylor from the undefeated heights. Millsaps broke its tie with Spring Hill by kicking a field goal to win 5-6 and several other lesser ball clubs found victory in the toe of a sure-footed youngster who booted the ball squarely between the uprights from distances ranging from 18 to 33 yards.

Maybe it was just a lucky day for the kickers. Or maybe the boys have learned that the wide open game sometimes proves a boomerang and three points can win plenty of ball games.

Continuing their unbeaten path in high school circles, the Monroe Colored High school Bulldogs defeated the Central High school Tigers of Shreveport, 27-0, at Shreveport Friday afternoon. The victory gave the Bulldogs-Lincoln parish game which will be played at Baton Rouge next Friday a north Louisiana championship aspect, as the Ruston team is also undefeated. Ruston defeated Minden 19-7 Friday.

Head, McAdoo Williams, Guiley, Outtz and Webb showed up well behind a great forward wall for the Bulldogs. Thomas, Johnson and McClinton were outstanding in the Monroe line.

Monroe outplayed the Shreveport team in all departments. The Caddo Parish school made only two first downs during the game and at no time got past Monroe's fifty yard stripe.

Couch Henry Carroll, who is assisted by Harvey and Bill, ended his usual Monday recess will be cancelled and practice will begin tomorrow for next Friday's hard encounter.

DELTA STATE TEACHERS
DEFEAT HENDERSON, 35-0

CLEVELAND, Miss., Nov. 6.—(AP)—Delta State Teachers displayed a versatile attack before a homecoming crowd of 2,500 today to defeat Henderson State college's football team, 35 to 0.

The Statesmen counted in all periods. Charlie Thomas scored two Delta touchdowns, one on an 80-yard run after intercepting a pass. Howard Shook also went over twice, both times on passes.

Henderson's longest drive, featuring long runs by Bailey, ended with a 35-yard touchdown pass by his touch-down jockey, Captain Claude Spearman, tackle, and D. Bishop, guard, also stood out in the Delta's fifth straight victory.

TRAPPING ARREST
INJUNCTION ASKED

SHREVEPORT, La., Nov. 6.—(AP)—C. V. Pattison, Cameron parish district attorney, and Mark Richard, sheriff of the same parish, have been cited by Federal Judge B. C. Dawkins to appear in New Orleans federal court November 19 to show cause why an injunction should not be issued restraining them from interfering with trapping during the 1937-38 season on 14,000 acres of land in that parish.

The citation was issued by Judge Dawkins following filing of a petition, filed by P. Pavell et al seeking the injunction.

Pavell claims to be owner of 14,000 acres of marshy land in Cameron parish, declaring the trapping rights are worth $5 per acre. Pavell set forth that he assigned to George White the trapping rights then in September, 1936, but that in January, 1937, White was arrested for trapping, despite the fact that he had a license to trap and that as the new trapping season is now at hand he wants an injunction to keep parish officers from interfering with White.

THOSE THREE POINTS

Football has developed into such a wide open game that the coaches and quarterbacks have paid little attention this season to the field goal, which nets only three points, as a mode of attack. Why try for three points when it's so easy to make six with a pass or a triple lateral, has been the reasoning, apparently.

But yesterday, as if by some pre-arranged plan, the field goal broke forth in all its glory, and a number of important games were decided by those kicks. In fact, we can't remember when so many important contests were settled one way or another by field goals.

PITT ROARS OVER NOTRE DAME, 21-6

Irish Score First But Panthers Come From Behind With Devastating Power

SOUTH BEND, Ind., Nov. 6.—(AP)—Pittsburgh's Panthers touched off a last period blast of scoring dynamite that all but blew Notre Dame off the gridiron today in the climax game of one of college football's keenest intersectional rivalries.

Trailing, for the first time this season, by a six-point margin resulting from a spectacular Notre Dame scoring pass, the Rose Bowl champions came back with an overpowering surge to score three touchdowns and turn the match into a rout. The final score was 21 to 6 as Pittsburgh kept its place among the nation's unbeaten teams and flung another challenge to the far west for post-season battle.

A crowd of 56,000 spectators, filling the Notre Dame stadium to capacity for the first time since it was dedicated seven years ago, saw the Panthers win.

In the third quarter the Irish pulled a dazzling 49-yard touchdown play on a forward pass, Jack McCarthy to Andy Pupils, to capitalize a sudden kicking "break." Then came the big explosion.

Marshall (Biggie) Goldberg, spearhead of Pittsburgh's attack, set up the first Pittsburgh touchdown with the collaboration of Fabian Hoffman, Pupils' end, on a forward pass that netted exactly 50 yards. Two subsequent drives of 66 and 43 yards, in which terrifying power was mixed with subtle deception, produced additional touchdowns. Fullback Frank Patrick twice crossed the Irish goal line and Sid Stebbins once while Frank Souchak, stellar Panther end, added the extra points with unerring kicks.

Middles Score Late Touchdown To Halt Gridiron Losing Streak, 13-6

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Nov. 6.—(AP)—Navy brought its slide down the gridiron chute to a halt today, whipping Columbia's Lions 13 to 6 in a hard-fought tussle definitely won only in the closing minutes.

The Sailors scored a first period touchdown after a 40-yard drive and kicked the extra point. The Lions matched that touchdown in the third period on Sid Luckman's pass to Arthur Radvillas but Arthur Waldo's placement was wide.

Navy held that one-point lead almost to the finish as Luckman heaved short and long passes. On three occasions Navy defenders leaped high to block end zone passes from receivers.

With only two minutes to go, Luckman gambled on a long pass. Art Franks, Navy quarterback, grabbed it on the dead run and, behind perfect interference, raced 60 yards for the touchdown that settled the issue. Pike's placement was low.

In the first quarter, Lem Cooke and Emmett Wood peppered the Columbia line with sizeable slabs and Wood scored from the two-yard line. Wood placekicked the extra point that was Navy's margin for 20 apprehensive minutes.

Columbia's tally culminated a 75-yard advance in the third period, with Bob Taylor banging the tackles and Luckman passing. Luckman tossed 12 yards to the goal to Radvillas. Despite his inability to pass the Lions to a victory, Luckman's batting average was high with 13 completions out of 29 attempts for 135 yards.

A crowd of 47,056 watched the inspired Hoosiers turn back two Buckeye threats in the shadow of the goal posts in the opening minutes and then go on to win a victory as startling as it was impressive.

Miller, who played a great defensive game, stepped back to the 21-yard mark in the second period as an Indiana thrust was halted on the 12, and calmly placekicked a field goal for three points.

Quarterback Frank Filchock faded back in the next period, following a long drive down the field, and fired a 12-yard pass to Patrick who lunged over the goal from the four-yard line.

YALE REMAINS UNBEATEN BY TRIMMING BROWN, 19-0

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Nov. 6.—(AP)—Yale's blue-Jerseyed opportunists, who gauge their game entirely according to the odds of the opposition, remained in the fast-shrinking undefeated division today by gaining a satisfactory if unspectacular 19-0 decision over Brown before a crowd of 35,000 in the bowl.

The Bruins surprised the customers by holding Yale scoreless in the first period. But Ducky Pond's boys, led by Captain Clint Frank put over one touchdown in each of the last three quarters.

Frank scored each one, two on short savage blasts over the middle, the other on a wide sweep around Brown's right end that started from the 2-yard line.

Football has developed into such a wide open game that the coaches and quarterbacks have paid little attention this season to the field goal, which nets only three points, as a mode of attack. Why try for three points when it's so easy to make six with a pass or a triple lateral, has been the reasoning, apparently.

But yesterday, as if by some pre-arranged plan, the field goal broke forth in all its glory, and a number of important games were decided by those kicks. In fact, we can't remember when so many important contests were settled one way or another by field goals.

Over in Shreveport, T. C. U. used a field goal to take the lead from Centenary, only to see the Gents come right back and win the game 10-9 with an identical maneuver. Down in New Orleans, Alabama's undefeated Crimson Tide kicked a field goal in the last two minutes of play to beat Tulane, 9 to 6.

Oregon kicked a field goal to beat Washington State. The same weapon was used by Indiana to clinch its 10-0 triumph over Ohio State, Maryland in beating V. M. I., Texas in knocking Baylor from the undefeated heights. Millsaps broke its tie with Spring Hill by kicking a field goal to win 5-6 and several other lesser ball clubs found victory in the toe of a sure-footed youngster who booted the ball squarely between the uprights from distances ranging from 18 to 33 yards.

Maybe it was just a lucky day for the kickers. Or maybe the boys have learned that the wide open game sometimes proves a boomerang and three points can win plenty of ball games.

Continuing their unbeaten path in high school circles, the Monroe Colored High school Bulldogs defeated the Central High school Tigers of Shreveport, 27-0, at Shreveport Friday afternoon. The victory gave the Bulldogs-Lincoln parish which will be played at Ruston next Friday a north Louisiana championship aspect, as the Ruston team is also undefeated. Ruston defeated Minden 19-7 Friday.

Head, McAdoo Williams, Guiley, Oultz and Webb showed up well behind a great forward wall for the Bulldogs. Thomas, Johnson and McClinton were outstanding in the Monroe outplayed the Shreveport team in all departments. The Caddo Parish school made only two first downs during the game and at no time got past Monroe's fifty yard stripe.

Coach Henry Carroll, who is assisted by Hayward Jackson, stated that the usual Monday recess will be cancelled and practice will begin tomorrow for next Friday's hard encounter.

Delta State Teachers DEFEAT HENDERSON, 35-0 CLEVELAND, Miss., Nov. 6.—(AP)—Delta State Teachers displayed a very stout defense before a homecoming day crowd of 2,500 today to defeat Henderson State college's football team, 35 to 0.

The Statesmen counted in all periods. Charlie Thomas scored two Delta touchdowns, one on an 80-yard run after intercepting a pass. Howard Shook also went over twice, both times on passes.

COTTON New Orleans. NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 6.—(AP)—Lower stocks and grains and liquidation in advance of the official crop estimate resulted in a decline of 2 to 4 points in cotton here today.

Demand was small and was limited to scale down buying by the trade and last minute covering by shorts. Prices were on the down grade until the last few minutes of trading when offerings became lighter and buying slightly more active.

December closed at 7.81, January 7.80, March 7.84, May at 7.90, July 7.94, October 8.02, and December (new) 8.05. Two additional private estimates were issued during today's short session. One placed the crop at 17,300,000 bales and the other at 17,500,000 bales.

Textiles were quiet and Liverpool was slightly lower than expected but neither factor had much influence on the price trend.

Exports today were 22,576 bales. Cotton futures closed steady at net declines of 2 to 4 points.

AVERAGE MIDDLING PRICE NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 6.—(AP)—The average price of middling cotton today at 10 southern spot markets was 7.71 cents a pound; average for the past 30 market days 8.05 cents a pound.

New York NEW YORK, Nov. 6.—(AP)—Cotton reacted today under pre-bureau liquidation and owing to easiness of the stock market.

March eased from 7.80 to 7.71 and closed at 7.75, with final prices 4 to 7 points net lower.

NEW YORK STOCKS

By Victor Eubank NEW YORK, Nov. 6.—(AP)—Support faded from many leaders in today's stock market as doubtful traders decided to shift to the sidelines over the week-end and trade news exhibited a cloudier appearance.

Steels led the setback, closely followed by coppers, motors and miscellaneous issues. Losses ran to four points generally with a few inactives flopping as much as seven or so.

The list topped over slowly in the first hour, but selling became more insistent in the final period and for a while the ticker tape was behind. Quiet buying near the close helped some of the more depressed stocks to come back moderately.

Predictions of another sharp drop in steel production next week at Pittsburgh pulled props from under U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, National Steel, Crucible, Youngstown Sheet and Tube and Republic.

Both sterling and the fixed price for bar gold in London were lifted to new two-year highs as hoarding continued abroad and the British equalization fund was believed to have acquired a considerable amount of gold from America. At the same time most buoyant gold mine stocks of the past week slipped as rumored dollar devaluation was scouted by financial observers.

Further weakness of commodities was a disturbing factor. Wheat gave ground easily and coffee futures hit new lows.

Stock transfers for the two hours were around 700,000 shares.

Prominent on the downside were Chrysler, General Motors, Motor Products, American Smelting, Howe Sound, Phelps Dodge, U. S. Rubber, Montgomery Ward, Sears Roebuck, Macy, J. I. Case, International Harvester, Deere, Douglas Aircraft, American Telephone, Westinghouse, General Electric, du Pont, Allied Chemical, American Chain preferred, Seaboard Oil, Texas Corp., Santa Fe, Great Northern, Monsanto Chemical, American Express, U. S. Gypsum, Loew's, Philip Morris, Radio Corp. preferred, Union Carbide, J. C. Penney and Johns-Manville.

With the latest freight rate plea before the interstate commerce commission, rails were not quite so backward as others. That the roads are economizing was seen in figures showing employment on class 1 carriers from September 15 to October 15 dropped 17,008.

Coppers floundered from the start as talk was heard of an additional cut in the domestic metal price.

In the matter of the steels, hopes were expressed that the output rate may now be dragging bottom. Strengthening this idea was the order from the Ford Motor concern for 47,000 tons. On top of this navy awards for materials amounting to more than $1,000,000 each were reported to have been received by Bethlehem and Midvale.

SPEAKERS NAMED FOR LOCAL MEET

Homer Casteel And C. C. Sheppard To Address Group On Wage-Hour Bill

Homer Casteel, prominent Mississippi cotton planter and chairman of the Mississippi railroad commission, and C. C. Sheppard of Clarks, well known Louisiana business man, will be the principal speakers at the mass meeting of citizens of the fifth congressional district scheduled to be held in Monroe Tuesday morning at 10:30 o'clock at the Virginia hotel to discuss the Black-Connelly wage and hour bill now pending in congress.

J. B. Voss of Bernice, will act as chairman at the meeting, which is expected to be attended by large delegations of farmers, business men and other interests from all parts of the fifth district.

The purpose of the meeting, which is one of a series being held throughout the state, is to bring about a clearer understanding of the effects of the so-called wage and hour bill and to crystallize opposition to it.

At a state-wide conference in Alexandria last month, it was decided that meetings should be held in all congressional districts at this meeting at Monroe will be the fifth of this kind in this state.

Announcement of the meeting there has been made during the past week before all service clubs in the fifth district and, judging from information received by those in charge of plans for the meeting, there will be delegations at the meeting from every parish in the district, it was stated.

BURNETT-DOWNS POST WILL HOLD BARBECUE

A barbecue will be given Tuesday night at 7:30 o'clock, at the Ouachita Valley fair grounds by Burnett-Downs post number 201 of the American Legion, West Monroe, according to an announcement made yesterday by Commander Alton T. Harper.

Officials of West Monroe, as well as all ex-servicemen and others have been invited to attend the affair. More than 200 invitations have been sent out, Commander Harper announced.

To Be Published in Tabloid Form November 16 and 17

Send in as many as you like—your favorite gumbo, bisque, meat, oyster soup, snacks for guests, refrigerator cakes and pies, breads and pastries, sauces, sea foods, preserves and jellies. In fact, anything that is good to eat and that you know how to prepare well.

All selected recipes will be published under the name of the contestant and prizes will be awarded for the winning recipe. Regardless of where you live, you can participate.

— IMPORTANT —

These rules are necessary to avoid any misunderstanding or complication.

Rule 1—All recipes must be type written on one side of the paper only.

Rule 2—Name and address must be signed at bottom of each individual recipe.

Rule 3—Do not mix your recipes—use a separate piece of paper for each kind of food recipe sent in. (Explanation)—Do not write recipes for cakes, meats, pies, candies, etc., on the same sheet of paper. Tear them apart, but be sure your name is signed to each recipe.

Winners Will Be Announced the Day of Publication of Cook Book. Hurry! Send in your recipe by November 15th. Time is short—so get busy now.

CHEERIO!

His ever-present monocle securely fixed in his right eye, visiting English Novelist Leslie Charteris puffs a cigarette as he looks at New York from the deck of the liner Bremen, just arrived from Europe. Author of mystery thrillers featuring "The Saint," Charteris says that writing a novel takes him "two years of thinking and two days of dictating."

MONROE STUDENT PLEDGED
RUSTON, La., Nov. 6.—(Special)—Sigma Alpha Delta fraternity of Louisiana Tech announces the recent pledging of Ed Roberts, Monroe, and Roy Carnahan, Dubberly. The initiation of Cecil R. Blair of Sicily Island was also announced. Sigma Alpha Delta first appeared on the Tech campus last year. Since then it has grown to be one of the outstanding social student organizations.

MEETING PLANNED BY HOMEMAKERS

1,500 Delegates Expected At 8th Annual Assembly Of Junior Clubs

BATON ROUGE, La., Nov. 6.—(Special)—Fifteen hundred or more delegates are expected to attend the eighth annual meeting of the Louisiana Junior Homemakers' clubs, which will be held Saturday, November 13, at the Bentley hotel in Alexandria, it was announced here today by Miss Lela A. Tomlinson, assistant state supervisor of home economics and state chairman of the clubs.

This marks the first year that the Junior Homemakers have held a meeting all their own, previous sessions having been held during the annual state fair at Shreveport. "Personality—My Responsibility" will be the theme of the sessions.

Miss Elizabeth Powers, a student at Louisiana State university, who is president of the state Junior Homemakers, will preside over the sessions. Miss Blanche Louise Dickinson of Pine-needle is the state secretary.

Miss Marie White, regional supervisor of home economics with the office of education in Washington, D. C., is scheduled to speak at the conference. Her subject will be "Building a Personality." T. H. Harris, Louisiana state superintendent of schools, and Miss Clyde Mobley, state supervisor of home economics, are also slated to give talks.

A special feature of the meeting will be the luncheon at noon, when a program of music, dancing and reading arranged around south Louisiana will be presented. The program will include an Acadian song and dance by members of the Lafayette club; a reading, "The Mayor and His Family Attend Mardi Gras," by the Eleanor McMain club of New Orleans; and a dance and song by the University of Louisiana club, Baton Rouge, 5:30 p.m.

The program will close at 8:30 a.m. Hazel Steadman of Alexandria, president of the Bolton Junior Homemakers, will voice a welcome, with a student from the Poydras high school at New Roads giving the response.

Dorothy Vincent of Sulphur will speak on "Making Personality a Hobby." Ruth Harrell of Baton Rouge will tell how contacts at the national meeting contribute to personality, after which Miss White will speak.

The college group will hold a special meeting at 11 a.m., when Miss White will speak on "Personality in Getting and Keeping Jobs." At the same time the high school group will hear reports from the national meeting in Kansas City, to be given by Wedna Ortega of Basile, Marcia Everett of Forest, Kathleen Morrow and Una Mae Sherman of Haynesville, Caroline Ford and Doris Robinson of Homer, Carrie Mae McIntosh of Pine-needle, Rose Mary Landry and Jessie Marie Prewitt of Prairie, Catherine C. Broussard and Audrey Miller of Baton Rouge.

A round-table discussion will follow, after which the luncheon will hold attention. A business session is scheduled for 2:30 p.m.

Louisiana, with 250 Junior Homemakers club units, an enrollment of 10,907 home economics students, still leads the nation in the number of student clubs, having more than twice as many as the state next in line, Miss Tomlinson said.

DUMMY STOLEN
A dummy used in football practice by students of Ouachita Parish high school was stolen from Stovall park yesterday morning, according to a report made to the Monroe police department by Coach "Lefty" Haynes.

What Is 'King's English'? Scribe Gives His Opinion

He Also Explains 'Why Americans Always Talk Through Their Noses'

By De Witt MacKenzie

NEW YORK, Nov. 6.—(P)—My small son paused over his breakfast egg the other morning long enough to voice a childhood sagacity which turned his old man's mind to the perplexing question of "What is the king's English?" and that perpetual British plaint of "Why do Americans talk through their noses?"

It must be explained that my lad has just come back from England, where most of his seven years have been spent. His mother is English, he was born in London and, in short, he is as thoroughly British as a 4 o'clock "dish of tea."

He has such a priceless accent that every time he speaks I have an inclination to spring to my feet and sing "God Save the King." On the occasion in question he addressed me solemnly, but with a twinkle in his eye, as follows:

"I do not speak American yet, but I understand it quite well."

That was a bit of a jolt for a father who is a Vermont Yankee, accent and all. I just sat and looked at my offspring in stunned amazement.

My astonishment was caused by the discovery that such a thing could happen to me personally, and not by the substance of his remark. Long ago I found the truth concealed in his little witticism, having lived among the British for some eighteen years in England and other parts of the empire.

The spoken language of the United States is not that of England. The so-called "two great English speaking nations" get it out of their heads that they ought to speak alike because they "belong to the same family," the better it will be for all concerned.

We speak American, and some people in the British Isles speak English. While we are on the subject, here are a few hints for those Americans who aspire to an "English accent" and fool themselves into thinking they have acquired one.

No American, who has been born and reared beyond childhood in the United States, ever can acquire anything even closely resembling an "English accent," unless he or she is a real genius at mimicry. Efforts to imitate the English are ludicrous, and produce derision on both sides of the Atlantic.

We are getting quite a lot of this so-called English accent in the talking pictures. Those American artists who perpetrate this Mongrel tongue not only injured pictures for home consumption but are jeered in Britain.

The "American accent" keeps the average Englishman in a constant state of nerves and irritation. Why is it that we can't talk the "king's English?"

And what is the king's English? Well, I'm sorry but there isn't any such thing, so far as the spoken language is concerned. The accents in Britain are varied and wonderful to the ear. There is no uniformity.

The Oxford accent is the one we hear most about. That sounds like a person repeating "wah, wah, wah, wah" over and over, with his mouth full of plums.

A typical example of this accent is often quoted by Britons themselves, is found in the well-known "hat hath ears to hear, let him hear." When this is cloaked in the Oxford accent it sounds like this:

"He that hath yars to yarr, let him yarr."

Each section of the British Isles has its own peculiar accent. Just as the average American citizen's accent fairly well tells what part of the country he comes from, so you can place the Briton.

Indeed, if you try to converse with farmers in Yorkshire or Lancashire or Somerset, you probably won't be able to understand much they say. And the uneducated natives of these different counties would have trouble understanding one another.

The exaggerated accent and intonation of the average educated Briton are things of joy to hear. There is no harshness and the language is truly musical.

Many Americans maintain close to a dead level tone in speaking. The Englishman, however, sings a little song with each sentence. I have heard one reproduced on the piano and it is an illuminating experiment.

The thing the Englishman objects to most is our "horrible nasal accent." That is a delicate subject which one approaches with some hesitation, not being a nose specialist. Probably the best way to break the ice is to plead guilty gracefully to the charge.

We talk through our noses right enough, although a lot of us deny it with some heat. The trouble is that we can't detect it in ourselves, and even our best friends won't tell us.

As a matter of fact, unless an American has been living apart from his countrymen for some time, he cannot perceive the nasal accent in another. Then he can tell a Yankee as far as we can hear him.

Why do we crude Americans talk through our noses? Well, probably for precisely the same reason (what-ever that may be) that some British, notably native Yorkshire folk, talk through their noses—believe it or not.

In any event, having been asked that question by about half the population of England I finally evolved a theory which may or may not suit you, but fills the bill so far as I am concerned.

The thing harks back to our singing lesson days and revolves to a large extent about the pronunciation of the vowel "a." The most striking difference between American and English lies in this letter.

In very many instances the Englishman employs the broad "a," and pronounced it as we do the "a" in "far." Hence when he and his lady friend trip the light fantastic, they "dawnee."

We Yankees, vibrant with the vigor of the new world, make the "a" short—very short—and snappy, as in "cat." Now then, strike a chord on your piano and try first the broad "a," then the short. With the former the throat is wide open and there is no nasal sound. Employing the very short "a," however, the throat is constricted and the tone comes through the nose with a wail like that of a circular-saw cutting a log.

You experts, please don't start writing to me to say that my theory is wrong. I admit in advance that it may be. All I claim for it is that even if it's wrong it still is a good little theory and it suits me.

Just as a parting word of advice: If you ever get challenged by an Englishman about the way you talk, you can spike an argument very quickly by replying:

"No spik English. Spik American. Understand English."

4 ALUMNI GROUPS FORMED RECENTLY BY LOUISIANA TECH

RUSTON, La., Nov. 6.—(Special)—With the recent organization of a unit of the Louisiana Tech Alumni association in Jackson parish, the college at Ruston at present is represented by four similar groups in operation in north Louisiana and other parish units will be formed soon, according to D. G. Armstrong, secretary of the general alumni association here.

W. H. McLaurin, superintendent of Jackson parish public schools, will head the Jackson alumni. J. D. Koonce is vice-president and Ed Cox, secretary.

Mr. Armstrong, who is organizing the units in north Louisiana, stresses the need for more buildings to take care of the greatly increased Tech enrollment. In getting these buildings he says that Tech alumni must support their school.

Superintendent McLaurin, when accepting his office as head of the Jackson alumni, stated that he was for the school's new expansion program. He said that any plan to help Tech meet the ever increasing educational demands of north Louisiana had his full endorsement.

Other units already organized are Lincoln, Bienville and Caddo-Bossier.

TROOP FORMED BY GIRL SCOUTS HERE

Mrs. D. H. Walker Named Captain Of New Organization In Monroe

Troop number one, Girl Scouts of America, the first troop of its kind ever organized in Monroe, was formed here last week with a membership of 32 girls.

The troop was organized by a community committee consisting of Mrs. W. F. Carson, president; Mrs. Ora Mae Thibault and Mrs. A. E. Fisher.

Officers of the troop are Mrs. D. H. Walker, captain; Miss Flo Davidson, lieutenant; Miss Edith McBeth, senior patrol leader; Helen Hayes, Pelican patrol leader; Florine Works, Owl patrol leader; Wilma Marine, Brown Fox patrol leader; Dorothy Lee Eady, Tiger patrol leader.

The troop, which is open to girls from the age of 10 years and up, will meet each Friday afternoon from 4 p.m. to 5 p.m. in the city recreation hall, DeSiard street.

The Girl Scout movement is gaining headway in the south and the formation of the local troop is the result of the increased interest taken in this branch of scouting, the organizers announced.

The Girl Scouts of America were organized in Savannah, Ga., in 1912. Mrs. Juliette Low, national headquarters were opened in Washington, D. C., in 1915 and moved the following year to New York City where they are now located. The organization is similar to the Girl Guides of England, which have been in existence for many years.

Members of the Girl Scouts work along similar lines as the Boy Scouts except that their training is not arduous. It includes hiking, camping, the performance of daily good deeds and other activities indulged in by the male organization.

LOCAL FIREMEN BUSY SATURDAY

Blazes Reported In Two Houses, Cotton Gin And Three Grass Locations

Two house fires, a fire at a cotton gin and three grass fires kept the Monroe fire department "on the jump" Saturday. None of the fires resulted in serious property damage.

The first call answered was to a fire at the Standard Gin and Manufacturing company located at Pine and North Sixth streets. The call was received at 8:55 a.m., when a quantity of cotton seed was reported to have caught ablaze. Three companies from central fire station answered the alarm.

Sparks from a trash fire resulted in another run at 9:45 a.m. to a house at 814 Oak street, owned by Sig Masur and occupied by Bill Freeman. Two companies from central fire station made the run and extinguished the fire with little damage reported. At 12:15 p.m., three companies from central fire station made a run to fire at a house located at 417 North Fifth street. The blaze was reported to have been caused by carelessness with cigarettes. The house was owned by T. John and occupied by Sid Arnold. The blaze was put out after the trucks worked about 15 minutes. The grass fires occurred at 1:44 p.m. at 702 Brea avenue; 1:50 p.m. at 108 Georgia street and 3:25 p.m. at College avenue and DeSiard bayou. A company from central fire station answered each call and the fires were quickly extinguished.

THEFT REPORTED
Otis A. Mitchell of New Orleans, yesterday reported to the Monroe police department the theft of two fog lamps which he said were taken from his automobile which was parked on South Grand street opposite the Courthouse north courthouse. The lamps were stolen Friday night.

ITCHING
Wherever it occurs and however irritated the skin, relieve it quickly with soothing Resinol.

When a cold strikes . . . don't take needless risks

Treat Colds This PROVED Way

WHY experiment? Vicks VapoRub has been doubly proved for you . . . proved by everyday use in more homes than any other medication of its kind; further proved by the largest clinical tests ever made on colds. (See full details in each VapoRub package.)

Only Vicks give you such proof. VapoRub is the direct external treatment. No "doubling"—no risk of stomach upset. Simply massage it on the throat, chest, and back (as illustrated). Relief starts almost at once. You begin to feel warm and comfortable as VapoRub starts working direct through the skin like a poultice. At the same time, its medicated vapors—traveled by the warmth of the body—are carried direct to the irritated air-passages with every breath.

This double action loosens phlegm—relieves irritation and coughing—helps break local congestion. Repeat treatment at bedtime. After a full sleep comes VapoRub keeps right on working, hour after hour. Often, by morning, the cold is over.

Quick Picture Story of 1938 Plymouth

YOU MUST SEE IT! NEW LUXURY, SMOOTHNESS AND EASE OF HANDLING! TEST ITS NEW COMFORT FEATURES...DISCOVER ITS AMAZING ECONOMY!

A GREAT RECORD

You can see it today...the new 1938 Plymouth... climax to 10 years of building great cars!

The first Plymouth was built in 1928. America looked it over...drove it...bought thousands!

Within three years, one out of every twelve low-priced cars was a Plymouth. In seven years, one out of every four!

Today, millions make Plymouth their first choice in the low-price field. And today the new 1938 Plymouth is on display. Go see it!

PLYMOUTH'S LOW PRICE This great, new Plymouth is priced with the lowest. The Commercial Credit Company offers very easy payment terms through Dodge, De Soto and Chrysler dealers. Tune in Major Bowes' Amateur Hour, Columbia Network, Thurs., 9 to 10 P.M., E.S.T.

1 Look at the Gleaming New Front End of the beautiful, new 1938 Plymouth! You'll admire the new radiator. Fenders are deeper and sweep clear around it. The hood is long...headlights are bigger and more efficient.

2 The Lady is Holding the new hand-brake. It's out of the floor and under the instrument panel. And the clutch requires 15% less pressure to operate.

3 She's Saying There's Loads of Room. Seats are wide and "chair-height." Head room, leg room and elbow room are something to marvel at! See how wide those doors are. Door-pillars and the entire body are all steel...welded into one solid, rigid unit.

4 The Lady Listens to her watch. The 1938 Plymouth is actually sound-proofed like a modern radio studio.

Fred Rosenbaum To Use Violin Tomorrow Night That's Been In Family 200 Years

By Eve Bradford

AUTUMN LINGERS! A gold-meshed peace fills the quiet aisles and everything seems waiting for some denouement. The Thanksgiving turkeys grow fatter day by day and the berries on the holly trees turn crimson with the first touch of frost. School children in bright sweaters pass to and fro, their pockets bulging with red Jonathan apples and their hands filled with yellow chrysanthemums. It is not picking time and families, bending to the task of gathering their winter supply, are now a familiar sight.

We wished, on one occasion last week, for a Millet to paint one scene in particular to hang beside his "Gleaners" and "The Angelus." A woman in bright-colored smock and a man in crimson sweater, silhouetted against a sky of vivid blue, bent low, in a yard alive with autumn glory. I think I shall never see a poem lovely as that chrysanthemum scene in the James A. Noyes' yard. A sudden gust of wind last week sent the yellow leaves tumbling into Dell Paine's lap. She was wearing a yellow dress the identical color of the leaves and what a beautiful picture it made. So warm and divinely fair was the weather last week that Anna Gray decided to place her bridge table in the yard where the beauty of the yard, adorned in green, orange, scarlet, brown and yellow, all melted together, was enough to make a colorist delicious—shafts of horizontal fire thrown among the trees and along the grass as the sun lowered, giving effects uncharitably rich and dazzling.

Mrs. R. C. Sparks' dinner party Friday night climaxed weeks of entertaining for Lillie Thompson and James Sparks, whose wedding last night will long be remembered by those who watched the beautiful bride and her seasoned danseuse. There is always a song on her lips and she dances rather than walks. If we could keep such winsome things children forever, do to gladden our hearts and to bring sunshine into our lives! Calling on friends last week with her mother, this infant promptly took off her coat and bonnet, turned on the radio and proceeded to dance.

The Big Apple, taking the dancing world by storm, is not only popular with children but grown-ups as well. At Lakeside Country club recently, everyone, young and old, was dancing the Big Apple and having the time of their lives.

V. F. W. Auxiliary Holds Meeting

A delegation of members of the auxiliary to Rodney J. Hobbs Post, Veterans of Foreign Wars, motored to Bastrop Thursday night where Mrs. Lena M. Morrow, president of the Hobbs auxiliary, installed the officers of the Boone-McDowell auxiliary of that city.

Accompanying President Morrow were Mrs. DeVeria Blackwell, Mrs. Lillian Kenny, Mrs. Stealy B. Leonard, Mrs. Althea Valley, Mrs. Christine Brown, Mrs. Pearl Madsen, Mrs. Zola B. Smith and Mrs. Alene B. Hunt. The president, secretary and treasurer installed at this meeting were, respectively, Mrs. Mae Boone Arant, Mrs. Alexander and Mrs. Nellie Griffin.

The Hobbs auxiliary has received an invitation to attend the meeting and install the officers of the auxiliary to Robert C. Nail post, Veterans of Foreign Wars, of Jackson, Miss., Monday night. The business session will be followed by a banquet and dance.

At the last meeting of the Hobbs auxiliary plans were completed and committees appointed for the Armistice day program. The date falling on the regular meeting of the auxiliary it was voted that no meeting be held on this date. The auxiliary will assist the post in keeping open house at the clubrooms and will serve coffee and sandwiches during the day. Armistice night the auxiliary will sponsor a benefit bingo party, with refreshments, at the club rooms to which the public is invited. Receipts will be placed in the Christmas relief fund.

The Armistice dance will be given on Friday night. Members who were not present at last meeting are asked to contact Mrs. Hunt, chairman of the refreshment committee for Armistice.

A delegation of members of the Hobbs auxiliary, headed by President Morrow, will motor to Rayville Monday night to install the officers of the auxiliary to Christian-Phillips post of that city.

President Morrow urges all members to make this trip.

The auxiliary has been extended an invitation to participate in a joint installation with the post on Thursday night, November 18. The installing officer for the auxiliary will be Mrs. Helen Himmel, president of the Christian-Phillips auxiliary of Rayville, and a department council member.

Miss Frickie Feted By Mrs. Kleinsmith

Mrs. W. M. Kleinsmith entertained during the tea hour at the home of her mother, Mrs. G. S. Farmer, of Jonesboro, complimentary to Miss Miriam Frickie, whose marriage to Mr. Spencer Farmer will take place on December 21.

Mrs. Kleinsmith, wearing a semi-queen model of durometer and silver, stood in the flower-banked living room with her guest of honor, who wore a smart afternoon model of black chiffon velvet with a shoulder corsage of pink roses.

Others in the receiving line were Mrs. W. P. Miller, in black crepe model with rhinestone trimming; Mrs. S. H. Frickie in black velvet model and Mrs. Farmer in rust-colored velvet model.

Miss Frankie Watts, wearing a flowered satin model, assisted in the dining room, where the coffee table was overlaid with Venetian lacquer. In the center of the table was a plaque of pink roses and pink chrysanthemums encircled with pink tapers in crystal candlesticks.

French and Danish pastries and canapés were served by Mrs. J. D. Farmer, of Little Rock, who wore a pink taffeta model, and Mrs. J. R. Denton, who wore a fuchsia colored chiffon velvet model.

Dr. Daggett Will Speak On Tuesday

Dr. Harriet Daggett, member of the law faculty of Louisiana State university, will address the regular monthly meeting of the Monroe chapter American Association of University Women, which will be held on Tuesday night at the home of Mrs. Frederick Williamson, 2000 Riverside drive.

Dr. Daggett, who has recently returned from a trip to Europe to study aspects of international law, will speak on the subject, "The European Situation." The meeting will begin at 7:30 o'clock. The meeting, usually held on Wednesday night, was advanced a day, in order to permit the university association members an opportunity to hear Dr. Daggett, who will be in the city for the day, speaking before the Lions club at Hotel Frances at noon.

Mrs. and Mrs. Courtney Oliver and interesting little family, Miss Carolyn Oliver, Courtney, Jr., and Miriam Oliver and Miss Maile Cole formed a motor party enjoying a visit in Greenville and in Cleveland, Miss., where they were guests in the home of Mrs. Oliver's brother, Mr. H. F. Causey.

Mrs. and Mrs. Felix N. Maxwell and their two children, Carolyn and Neil, have recently moved to Monroe from Birmingham, Ala.

Welcome Branch Book Club Holds Meeting

Mrs. Frank Black And Mrs. J. D. Petty Give Interesting Reviews At Gathering

Mrs. W. C. Faulk, assisted by Mrs. J. T. Eubank, entertained with charming informality the members of the Welcome Branch Book club Wednesday afternoon.

Mrs. Frank Black gave a most enlightening report on "Women in Politics."

She said: "As early as 1850 such women as Susan B. Anthony and Lucy Stone were asserting the rights of women to vote and hold office, but it was not until 1920 that the nineteenth amendment was proclaimed in force."

"Since that great victory, many women have held important offices in federal and state governments."

"Women began to enter congress by an odd door. When a congressman would die, often the governor would appoint as his successor that widow who had served as his secretary and partner. About 25 women in all have served in the United States congress, only four of which were in the senate."

"President Roosevelt has appointed more women to important positions than any of his predecessors."

"Today we have women serving in the president's cabinet, as governors of states, as foreign ministers and ambassadors, and in many elective state offices."

"One author writes: 'I hope women will take a more active part in politics. We are forcibly reminded these days that club women must not be content to be onlookers in the job of the nation's housekeeping, they must be participants.'"

"Many years ago a wise Frenchman was asked on his return home from America what the prosperity and growing strength of the American people was mainly attributed, and he replied, 'To the superiority of their women.'"

Mrs. J. D. Petty reviewed in a gay and descriptive manner the book by Ruth Bryan Owen, "Leaves From a Greenland Diary."

Pass Resolutions At Alexandria Meeting

More General Collection Of Luxury Tax Asked At Federated Club Convention

A resolution favoring a more general collection of the luxury sales tax by the state, was adopted yesterday by the Louisiana Federation of Women's clubs at the closing session of the annual convention at Alexandria, according to an Associated Press dispatch.

A previous resolution called for the passage of a general sales tax to replace the present levy but it met objection because of the amount asked.

Other resolutions passed asked for: Establishment of a training school by the state for delinquent negro children so that authority might discipline delinquents.

Continuance and permanence of the National Youth administration.

Damaged cotton be made into clothing for the needy.

Mrs. C. E. Hester of Tallulah was elected president but selection of the next convention city was left to a later meeting of the board of directors.

Other officers elected were Mrs. F. A. Leaming, Mansfield, first vice-president; Mrs. T. K. Butler, Pontchartroula, second vice-president; Mrs. Isabel Gieffers, New Orleans, recording secretary; Mrs. A. L. Plishbury, New Orleans, treasurer; Mrs. J. B. Holloman, Lake Charles, auditor, and Mrs. Grace Agate, Lafayette, director.

Mrs. Newman In Demand As Speaker

Mrs. Virginia Newman, mother of Mr. Paul Newman of this city, although retired from active duty in the Robert E. Lee school of Sherman, Tex., where she served as principal for many years, still continues her activities as noted in her recent appointment as director of the National Association of Parliamentarians for the state of Texas, at a national meeting of the organization of which she is a charter member.

Mrs. Newman, who came to Monroe upon retirement from public school life, has been in great demand as a speaker on parliamentary law in the schools and at club meetings in this city. She graciously responded to the demands placed upon her and gave illuminating and constructive talks on a subject which few women are familiar and qualified to talk upon.

Mrs. Newman was recently appointed state director of parliamentary law in Louisiana.

Mrs. Newman is a graduate of Mary Nash college, Baldwin college and Chicago university. She holds a bachelor of science degree. She is a member of Delta Kappa Gamma fraternity, having won her membership for distinguished work in the teaching profession.

Ill health prevented Mrs. Newman from attending the first biennial convention of National Association of Parliamentarians in Kansas City last month. Her name appeared on the program, however, and regret was manifested among those attending over her absence. She was invited to be the guest of Mr. George B. Longan, president of the Kansas City Star, and of Dr. S. W. Longan, honorary president of the National Association of Parliamentarians.

Home And Garden Lecture Planned

"Beauty and Usefulness in Home and Garden" is the theme of the illustrated lecture to be given by Mrs. Frederick Williamson at the regular November meeting of the Garden club Monday afternoon in room 10, Virginia hotel.

Colored slides thrown on a screen will be used by the speaker in connection with her lecture. The slides will show the proper placement of sidewalks, driveways, landscaping of lawns, the rear garden and its possibilities. In fact, every phase of beauty in the garden will be shown.

This lecture, to be delivered by Mrs. Williamson, was written and arranged by the staff of Home and Garden editors and abounds in interesting suggestions invaluable to the home builder and home gardener.

Literary Guild Holds Meeting

The Literary Guild held its first meeting with Mrs. Herbert Dickard at her home on Bres avenue.

Mrs. William Harper, president, presided over the short business session and announced the program, which was unusually interesting.

Mrs. J. G. Durrett discussed "Federation News." Mrs. Harry Newhall gave a splendid paper on the life of Shakespeare, and Mrs. A. D. Tisdale reviewed "Comedy of Errors" in a most illuminating manner.

During the social hour the hostess served a salad course to the following members: Mrs. Herbert Beards, Mrs. Duncan Cook, Mrs. S. L. Dighy, Mrs. J. G. Durrett, Mrs. O. A. Eastling, Mrs. W. M. Harper, Mrs. Ernest Holloway, Mrs. Harry Newhall, Mrs. P. L. Perot and Mrs. A. D. Tisdale.

Luncheon Given For Mrs. Young

Mrs. C. V. McGimsey's compliment to Mrs. Crawford Young, who will depart this month for her new home in Camp, was a luncheon at her home on Park avenue.

A four-course luncheon was served at the beautifully appointed table in the dining room, where colorful garden flowers formed the central floral note.

Mrs. D. C. Metcalf has returned from Atlanta, where he was summoned to the bedside of his son, Carl Metcalf, student at Georgia Tech, who suffered an attack of influenza.

Charity League Luncheon Held

Because the Junior Charity leaguers found, like the walrus, that the time had come to talk of many things, they met for luncheon at the Virginia hotel and discussed various topics over the flower-banked table on Saturday.

With the president, Mrs. Nathan Gaston, in a grey wool tulleur with grey furs and smartly tailored black hat, presiding, the luncheon hour advanced.

Noted among the members attending were: Mrs. Brice Trousdale, Jr., Mrs. Howard Greene, Mrs. J. H. Thatcher, Jr., Mrs. F. B. Winberry, Mrs. F. L. Martin, Mrs. G. A. Boyd, Mrs. G. T. Frazer, Mrs. George Snell, Mrs. Milling Bernstein, Mrs. Harold Mook, Mrs. Walter Kilgus, Mrs. Elliott Thompson, Mrs. O. N. McNeil, Mrs. H. F. Madison, Mrs. Thomas Davenport, Mrs. S. A. Collins, Mrs. Hillyer Parker, Mrs. Warren Taylor, Mrs. Tilden Austin, Miss Eleanor Faulk, Miss Sarah Beth Farmer, Miss Elizabeth Kennedy, Mrs. Francis Germaine, Mrs. Theodore Allen and Miss Lela Germany.

Welcome Branch Book Club Holds Meeting

Mrs. Frank Black And Mrs. J. D. Petty Give Interesting Reviews At Gathering

Mrs. W. C. Faulk, assisted by Mrs. J. T. Eubank, entertained with charming informality the members of the Welcome Branch Book club Wednesday afternoon.

Mrs. Frank Black gave a most enlightening report on "Women in Politics."

She said: "As early as 1850 such women as Susan B. Anthony and Lucy Stone were asserting the rights of women to vote and hold office, but it was not until 1920 that the nineteenth amendment was proclaimed in force."

"Since that great victory, many women have held important offices in federal and state governments. "Women began to enter congress by an odd door. When a congressman would die, often the governor would appoint as his successor that widow who had served as his secretary and partner. About 25 women in all have served in the United States congress, only four of which were in the senate."

President Roosevelt has appointed more women to important positions than any of his predecessors. "Today we have women serving in the president's cabinet, as governors of states, as foreign ministers and ambassadors, and in many elective state offices."

"One author writes: 'I hope women will take a more active part in politics. We are forcibly reminded these days that club women must not be content to be onlookers in the job of the nation's housekeeping; they must be participants.'"

"Many years ago a wise Frenchman was asked on his return home from America what the prosperity and growing strength of the American people was mainly attributed, and he replied, 'To the superiority of their women.'"

Mrs. J. D. Petty reviewed in a gay and descriptive manner the book by Ruth Bryan Owen, "Leaves From a Greenland Diary."

She said in part: "Returning from her post as United States minister to Denmark, Ruth Bryan Owen spent several weeks on the Danish ship Disko, visiting the isolated settlements along the coast of Greenland. Since this country can be visited only for specific purposes for which governmental permission must be secured, hers was in many ways a unique trip. She saw as much of that strange land as can be seen except by an elaborate expedition; she visited the Eskimos in their little frame houses perched precariously on steep cliffs. Everywhere she was welcomed with the warm hospitality characteristic of these primitive isolated people. She witnessed the capture of a seal and a whale—their chief sources of livelihood. "She attended a marriage and a christening. At one time she was trapped in an Eskimo hut by one of the ferocious storms that descend so suddenly upon this barren coast. She watched Eskimos paddle kayaks, skin sea lions and drive teams of half-wild dogs.

But the most fascinating aspect of this trip was the land itself. A mass of towering, jagged rocks and huge grey granite mountains, with giant icebergs like crystal castles parading its coasts. It made a lasting impression on Mrs. Owen, and she has been most successful in bringing a vivid picture of the magic and grandeur of Greenland to the reader."

Present were Mrs. Frank Black, Mrs. J. Norman Coon, Mrs. Henson Coon, Mrs. Harold Delaney, Mrs. C. H. Dunaway, Mrs. J. T. Eubank, Mrs. W. C. Faulk, Mrs. V. S. Garnett, Mrs. E. C. Gibson, Mrs. Warren Gregory, Mrs. M. R. Hausher, Mrs. Marvyn Johnson, Mrs. Lewis Langford, Mrs. J. D. Petty, Mrs. J. T. Richardson, Mrs. W. E. Sandel, Mrs. Dean Selig, Mrs. F. F. Smith, Mrs. Dudley Stone, Mrs. Charles Swain, Mrs. L. V. Tarver, Mrs. F. F. Hornberger, Mrs. Zell Smith, Mrs. Birdie H. Holmes of Memphis, Mrs. A. R. Holloway and Mrs. W. C. Scott. New members welcomed into the club at this time were Mrs. George Fink and Mrs. U. S. Wilson.

More General Collection Of Luxury Tax Asked At Federated Club Convention

A resolution favoring a more general collection of the luxury sales tax by the state, was adopted yesterday by the Louisiana Federation of Women's clubs at the closing session of the annual convention at Alexandria, according to an Associated Press dispatch.

A previous resolution called for the passage of a general sales tax to replace the present levy but it met objection because of the amount asked.

Other resolutions passed asked for: Establishment of a training school by the state for delinquent negro children so that authority might discipline delinquents.

Continuance and permanence of the National Youth administration.

Damaged cotton be made into clothing for the needy.

Mrs. C. E. Hester of Tallulah was elected president but selection of the next convention city was left to a later meeting of the board of directors.

Mrs. C. E. Hester of Tallulah was elected president but selection of the next convention city was left to a later meeting of the board of directors.

Other officers elected were Mrs. F. A. Leaming, Mansfield, first vice-president; Mrs. T. K. Butler, Pontchartroula, second vice-president; Mrs. Isabel Gieffers, New Orleans, recording secretary; Mrs. A. L. Pillsbury, New Orleans, treasurer; Mrs. J. B. Holloman, Lake Charles, auditor, and Mrs. Grace Agate, Lafayette, director.

Charity League Luncheon Held

Because the Junior Charity leaguers found, like the walrus, that the time had come to talk of many things, they met for luncheon at the Virginia hotel and discussed various topics over the flower-banked table on Saturday.

With the president, Mrs. Nathan Gaston, in a grey wool tulle with grey furs and smartly tailored black hat, presiding, the luncheon hour advanced.

Noted among the members attending were: Mrs. Briscoe Trousdale, Jr., Mrs. Howard Greene, Mrs. J. H. Thatcher, Jr., Mrs. F. B. Winberry, Mrs. F. L. Martin, Mrs. G. A. Boyd, Mrs. G. T. Frazer, Mrs. George Snellings, Mrs. Milling Bernstein, Mrs. Harold Monk, Mrs. Walter Kellogg, Mrs. Elliott Thompson, Mrs. O. N. McNeil, Mrs. H. F. Madison, Mrs. Thomas Davenport, Mrs. S. A. Collins, Mrs. Hilmyer Parker, Mrs. Warren Taylor, Mrs. Tilden Austin, Miss Eleanor Faulk, Miss Sarah Beth Farmer, Miss Elizabeth Kennedy, Mrs. Frances Germany Jones, Mrs. Theodore Allen and Miss Lela Germany.

Luncheon Given For Mrs. Young

Mrs. C. V. McGinsey's compliment to Mrs. Crawford Young, who will depart this month for her new home in Campiti, was a luncheon at her home on Park avenue.

A four-course luncheon was served at the beautifully appointed table in the dining room, where careful garden flowers formed the central floral note.

Mr. D. C. Metcalf has returned from Atlanta, where he was summoned to the bedside of his son, Carl Metcalf, student at Georgia Tech, who suffered an attack of influenza.

TRADE ADVANTAGES

Because We Know!

Our new Downstairs Store, opened last week, important in itself as a vast store house of popular-priced furniture, supplying the demand of hundreds of homes in this area, is but another step in the development and expansion of Monroe Furniture Company as a great service institution.

Other important strides toward our goal of greater service have been made; others will be made in the future.

The important point, we feel, is that this furniture store is progressive, awake, alive to the wants and needs of this community; and being awake, is striving in a constant, never-ceasing forward march to make itself more worthy, more able, more efficient in supplying those wants and needs.

Engagement And Two Weddings Claim Much Interest In This Part Of State

Miss Polly Payne To Wed James F. Ryder

Miss Ruby Key Becomes Bride Of Edwin W. Crowley; Miss Scott Marries Dr. Rawls

Claiming interest today is the announcement made by Mr. and Mrs. I. B. Payne of Winnfield of the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Miss Polly Clemence Payne of Monroe, to Mr. James F. Ryder, son of Mr. and Mrs. James P. Ryder of Minneapolis, Minn.

Miss Payne, who has made her home in this city for the past eight years, possesses a wide circle of friends, who regret that her marriage will take her elsewhere to live. She is engaged in secretarial work with the Brown Paper mill at the present time.

Mr. Ryder is a graduate of the law department of the University of Minnesota. He is a representative in the southern states of the West Publishing company of St. Paul, Minn. He is a member of A. T. O. fraternity.

The marriage of Miss Payne and Mr. Ryder will take place in New Orleans on the seventh of December.

An impressive double-ring ceremony united in marriage Miss Ruby Key, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. P. H. Key of Jonesboro, and Mr. Edwin W. Crowley, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Crowley of Monroe, October 20, at the Baptist church of Jonesboro, with Rev. L. T. Hastings of Monroe officiating in the presence of a large concourse of friends and relatives.

The church was banked with sheaves of white chrysanthemums interspersed with stately palms and luxuriant ferns.

A pre-nuptial concert was rendered by Miss Mary Elizabeth Abel, organist, Mr. Ansley Colvin, violinist, and Miss Lorenza Hayes, soloist.

The wedding party entered to the strains of the wedding march from Lohengrin and at the close of the ceremony Mendelssohn's recessional was rendered. The bride was given in marriage by her father.

The bride's attendants were: Miss Helen Key, sister of the bride, Miss Mildred Trichel of Monroe, Miss Frankie Wicks of Jonesboro, Mrs. W. H. and Trichel were white tulle and carried bouquets of pink Radiance roses tied with pink ribbons.

Miss Key, the maid of honor, wore an ivory satin model and carried a bouquet of pink Radiance roses tied with white satin streamers.

Miss Mona Henry, flower girl, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dallas Henry, wore white tulle and carried a basket filled with rose petals which she scattered along the aisle.

Mr. Harry Moore of Monroe served Mr. Crowley as best man, and the groomsmen were Mr. J. T. Smith of Monroe, and Mr. Joe Key, a brother of the bride.

The bride wore a handsome wedding gown of Duchess satin, train and a three-quarter length veil. The bodice was tight and the sleeves long and full at the top. For something old she wore a platinum necklace set with pearls, which belonged to her aunt. A beautiful bouquet of bride's roses and valley lilies tied with allusion and white satin ribbons was carried.

Immediately after the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Crowley left for Shreveport and other places of interest, after which they will be at home in Monroe. Mrs. Crowley traveled in a gray wool crepe ensemble trimmed with grey fur, with accessories of black.

Mrs. Crowley is a graduate of the Jonesboro-Hodge high school, and attended Louisiana Tech. Mr. Crowley is a graduate of the United States army air corps technical school department of photography, Randolph, Ill. At present he is a special agent for the Loomis Life Insurance company of Jackson, Miss.

The out-of-town guests attending the wedding were Mr. and Mrs. Louis Hullum, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Whitfield, Miss Polly Cole, Miss Benton, Mr. Berk, Mr. Bill Malone, Mrs. Harry Moore, Miss Helen Carr, Miss Rosalyn Blackman, Mrs. Louise Fitzgerald, Mrs. L. T. Hastings, Mr. and Mrs. G. M. L. Key, Mr. H. Fairchild, Mr. and Mrs. Bing Miller and sons, Bobby and Ted, and Mrs. Forest Seaman.

Of considerable social interest was the marriage of Miss Elizabeth Scott, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Calvin G. Scott of Bastrop, and Dr. Jack Latche Rawls, son of Mrs. Saline Latche Rawls of West Monroe.

The impressive ceremony was performed at Christ Episcopal church in Bastrop, Saturday, October 30, at 5:30 o'clock in the afternoon, in the presence of a large concourse of friends and relatives, with Rev. Leslie K. Young, rector of the church, officiating.

The decorations of the church were beautiful in their simplicity. On the altar were ivory lighted tapers. In the chancel and on the steps leading to the chancel were pedestal baskets filled with bronze chrysanthemums. Seven-branched candelabra supporting cathedral tapers were grouped in the background.

A pre-nuptial concert was rendered by Mrs. J. B. Spier, organist; Miss Josephine Mechlin of Baton Rouge, and Mr. Tom Wharton Bridges of Shreveport, soloists. Miss Mechlin sang in a beautiful voice "I Love Thee" by Greig, and Mr. Bridges rendered Schubert's "Serenade." Mrs. Spier played Lohengrin's wedding march for the processional and Traumerer, given.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a rust-colored velvet model, fashioned on empire lines with full floor length skirt, fitted bodice and short puffed sleeves. A small close-fitting hat of the same color, ostrich trimmed and with shoulder length face veil completed her ensemble. Her arm bouquet was of Talisman roses.

Mrs. Lawrence Spier, matron of honor, and sister of the bride, was attired in a similar costume of forest green velvet. Mrs. Spier carried an arm bouquet of yellow chrysanthemums, tied with gold ribbons.

Dr. Rawls was attended by Dr. Frank Ogden. The ushers were Messrs. Max Latche, Lawrence Spier, Alan Andrews, and L. E. Rawls, brother of the groom.

Following the ceremony an informal reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, for members of the wedding party, out-of-town guests and relatives.

Dr. and Mrs. Rawls left by motor for New Orleans and the Gulf coast, where they will spend their honeymoon.

The bride is a member of a prominent north Louisiana family. She attended the Louisiana State Normal at Natchitoches and Louisiana State university at Baton Rouge, from which she graduated. She is a member of the Delta Zeta society. For the past year she has held the position of managing editor of the Merchandise Enterprise.

Dr. Rawls is a graduate of the Vicksburg High school in Vicksburg, Miss., and Centenary college in Shreveport, from which he received his B. S. degree. He later attended L. S. U. medical center in New Orleans, receiving his M. D. from that institution. He has been residing in Bastrop for more than a year, where he occupies a prominent position in the medical, social and civic affairs of the city.

Mr. and Mrs. C. V. McGinsey are spending the weekend in Dallas with their daughter, Mrs. James S. Carroll, and Mr. Carroll, who joined them there following a two-month visit in Santa Fe and in Pecos, Mexico, where they were guests at the K-Bar camp during a lion and bear hunt. Mrs. Carroll will be remembered as Miss Marion McGinsey, a great favorite socially in this city.

Mr. and Mrs. D. L. Newman have returned from a visit in New Orleans where they were guests at Hotel Jung for several days. They were accompanied home by their niece Mrs. Loretta Ree, Kelley, who will be their guests at the Grand hotel.

Engagement And Two Weddings Claim Much Interest In This Part Of State

Miss Polly Payne To Wed James F. Ryder

Miss Ruby Key Becomes Bride Of Edwin W. Crowley;
Miss Scott Marries Dr. Rawls

Claiming interest today is the announcement made by Mr. and Mrs. I. B. Payne of Winnfield of the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Miss Polly Clemence Payne of Monroe, to Mr. James F. Ryder, son of Mr. and Mrs. James P. Ryder of Minneapolis, Minn.

Miss Payne, who has made her home in this city for the past eight years, possesses a wide circle of friends, with whom her marriage will take her elsewhere to live. She is engaged in secretarial work with the Brown Paper mill at the present time.

Mr. Ryder is a graduate of the law department of the University of Minnesota. He is a representative in the southern states of the West Publishing company of St. Paul, Minn. He is a member of A. T. O. fraternity.

The marriage of Miss Payne and Mr. Ryder will take place in New Orleans on the seventh of December.

An impressive double-ring ceremony united in marriage Miss Ruby Key, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. P. H. Key of Jonesboro, and Mr. Edwin William Crowley, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Crowley of Monroe, October 29, at the Baptist church of Jonesboro, with Rev. L. T. Hastings of Monroe officiating in the presence of a large concourse of friends and relatives.

The church was decorated with sheaves of white chrysanthemums interspersed with stately palms and luxuriant ferns.

A pre-nuptial concert was rendered by Miss Mary Elizabeth Abel, organist, Mr. Ansley Colvin, violinist, and Miss Lorenza Hayes, soloist.

The wedding party entered to the strains of the wedding march from Lohengrin and at the close of the ceremony Mendelssohn's recessional was rendered. The bride was given in marriage by her father.

The bride's attendants were Miss Helen Key, sister of the bride, Miss Mildred Trichel of Monroe, Miss Frankie Watts of Jonesboro, Misses Watts and Trichel wore white taffeta and carried bouquets of pink Radiance roses tied with pink ribbons.

Miss Key, the maid of honor, wore an ivory satin model and carried a bouquet of pink Radiance roses tied with white satin streamers.

Miss Mona Henry, flower girl, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dallas Henry, wore white taffeta and carried a basket filled with rose petals which she scattered along the aisle.

Mr. Harry Moore of Monroe served Mr. Crowley as best man, and the groomsmen were Mr. J. T. Smith of Monroe, and Mr. Joe Key, a brother of the bride.

The bride wore a handsome wedding gown of Duchess satin, train, and a three-quarter length veil. The bodice was tight and the sleeves long and full at the top. For something old she wore a platinum necklace set with pearls, which belonged to her aunt. A beautiful bouquet of bride's roses and valley lilies tied with illusion and white satin ribbons was carried.

Immediately after the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Crowley left for Shreveport and other places of interest, after which they will be at home in Monroe. Mrs. Crowley traveled in a grey wool crepe ensemble trimmed with grey fur, with accessories of black.

Mrs. Crowley is a graduate of the Jonesboro-Hodge High school, and attended Louisiana Tech. Mr. Crowley is a graduate of the United States army air corps technical school department of photography, Rantoul, Ill. At present he is a special agent for the Lamar Life Insurance company of Jackson, Miss.

The out-of-town guests attending the wedding were Mr. and Mrs. Louis Hullum, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Whitfield, Miss Polly Cole, Miss Benton, Mr. Byrd, Mr. Bill Malone, Mrs. Harry Moore, Miss Helen Carr, Miss Rosalyn Blackman, Miss Louise Fitzgerald, Mrs. L. T. Hastings, Mr. and Mrs. G. M. L. Key, Mr. H. Fairchild, Mr. and Mrs. Bing Miller and sons, Bobby and Ted, and Mrs. Forest Seaman.

Of considerable social interest was the marriage of Miss Elizabeth Scott, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Calvin G. Scott, of Bastrop, and Dr. Jack Larche Rawls, son of Mrs. Sallie Larche Rawls of West Monroe.

The impressive ceremony was performed at Christ Episcopal church in Bastrop, Saturday, October 30, at 5:30 o'clock in the afternoon, in the presence of a large concourse of friends and relatives, with Rev. Leslie K. Young, rector of the church, officiating.

The decorations of the church were beautiful in their simplicity. On the altar were myriad lighted tapers. In the chancel and on the steps leading to the chancel were pedestal baskets filled with bronze chrysanthemums. Seven-branched candelabra supporting cathedral tapers were grouped in the background.

A pre-nuptial concert was rendered by Mrs. J. B. Spier, organist; Miss Josephine Mechlin of Baton Rouge, and Mr. Tom Wharton Bridges of Shreveport, soloists. Miss Mechlin sang in a beautiful voice "I Love Thee" by Greig, and Mr. Bridges rendered Schubert's "Serenade." Mrs. Spier played Lohengrin's wedding march for the processional and Traumerer was rendered.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a rust-colored velvet model, fashioned on empire lines with full floor length skirt, fitted bodice and short puffed sleeves. A small close-fitting hat of the same color, ostrich trimmed and with shoulder

'Onward Education' Theme Of Fifth District P.T. A. Meeting At Bastrop

Addresses, Discussion Features Of Program

State President And Monroe Woman Speak; Legislation Chairman's Message Read

"Onward Education" was the theme of the Fifth District Parent-Teacher association meeting held at Bastrop last week. Mrs. E. Fay Walter of Winnsboro, president of the Louisiana Parent-Teacher association, spoke on the subject, "Onward Education in the Home," and Miss Julia Wossman, principal of the Barkdull Faulk school, Monroe, discussed phases of "Onward Education in the School."

"Education is a process that cannot be confined to the hours between 9:30 a.m. and 3 p.m.," Mrs. Walter said. "Education goes on through the waking and sleeping hours of children. We have come to accept the word 'education' as being synonymous with the word 'school,' which is erroneous."

"Training and instruction are acquired in the schools. The home lays the foundation for the work at school. The home and school are partners. Behavior, the finest of the fine arts, is taught in the home, where the factor of making the child sure of sympathetic guidance is most important."

Miss Wossman asserted that curriculum is changing throughout the United States. "Schools have passed the stage of the little red school house on the plantation where the children were taught reading, writing and arithmetic and most of our studying was done at home under the guidance of our mother or kindhearted aunts," Miss Wossman said.

"There was no extreme wealth, no labor controversies, no vast corporations. We were living in a period of individualism. Motion pictures had not changed the ideal of the home. Traveling had not broken the effect of group opinion. But times are changing. Things are becoming more complex and society is undergoing a change."

"Are our schools keeping up with the changing times or are we lagging? Children shall be taught democratic living within the school, because democracy is being threatened."

Discussions were led by Mrs. G. B. Wilson, state chairman of safety, Mrs. W. H. Armstrong, state chairman of correspondence courses, and Mrs. Nell Grigsby, fifth district publicity director.

A message from Mrs. C. C. Hathaway of Shreveport, state chairman of legislation, was read by Mrs. Walter. The advantage of the twelve-year plan, Mrs. Hathaway said, lies in the fact that it affords more time for study in elementary and cultural subjects and that high school students are more mature upon graduation.

The disadvantages of the eleven-year plan, which is used in only six states, including Louisiana, are that high school students are shifted on society at an age when they are too young either to enter college or to obtain employment, Mrs. Hathaway said.

Mrs. Carl Couch, fifth district director, presided during the meeting and the invocation was given by Rev. Leslie Young of Bastrop. An address of welcome was made by E. D. Shaw, superintendent of the Morehouse parish school. Mrs. King Hunt, president of the Twin-Cities P.T.A. council, gave the response.

Several enjoyable musical selections were given, including a duet and selections by the school band. Luncheon was served in the school cafeteria. During the president's professional presidents reported the membership of their organizations as follows:

Mrs. A. C. Volk, Bastrop, 28; Mrs. Stephenson, East Side, Bastrop, 45; Mrs. C. H. Garland, West Side, Bastrop, 22; Mrs. G. B. Wilson, Fairbanks, 13; Mrs. S. J. Lake, Providence, 26; Mrs. F. A. Yarbrough, Tallulah, 69; Mrs. Rhea McCook, Barkdull Faulk, Monroe, 100; Mrs. H. S. Chilton, Central Grammar, Monroe, 60; Mrs. W. H. Armstrong, Neville, Monroe, 100; Mrs. C. C. McAuliffe, Lida Benton, Monroe, 67; Mrs. L. E. Hayden, Ouachita Parish High, Monroe, 125; Mrs. John Calhoun, Shreveport, Monroe, 65.

Mrs. N. P. Kutz, St. Matthews, Monroe, 43; Mrs. H. F. Burdeaux, Crowley, West Monroe, 175.

Editor To Address Neville High P.T. A.

"Standard of Conduct in Today's World" will be the subject of an address to be given by Fred Williamson, managing editor of the Morning World and News-Star, at a meeting of the Neville High school Parent-Teacher association Monday at 3:30 p.m. in the P.T. A. room of the school.

The P.T. A. room has recently been equipped by the members and is devoted exclusively to parent-teacher meetings. Literature of interest to members and chairmen is kept in a special book case. Other features of the room are a tea table and dishes for serving refreshments after the programs and business of meetings have been completed.

Plans for the organization of a Junior Safety council were discussed at a meeting of the executive board of the Neville Parent-Teacher association held recently at the school. Sponsoring of the safety council will be the outstanding project of the association this year and instructors from Baton Rouge will conduct classes for the members, instructing them in driving and in the observance of safety rules.

Several changes were made in the personnel of the executive board at this meeting. Mrs. G. A. Aden was appointed secretary, to succeed Mrs. Courtney Oliver, who has been acting as secretary pro tem. Mrs. B. W. Morrison was appointed chairman of membership, to fill the vacancy left by Mrs. Aden, and Mrs. John Myers was named honorary chairman, succeeding Mrs. E. G. Waring, who recently moved from Monroe.

Mrs. H. V. Fluker and Mrs. Minnie Ruffin were elected council representatives. Alternates will be elected at the regular meeting of the organization Monday afternoon.

Mrs. W. H. Armstrong was appointed a committee of one for the purpose of securing a traffic officer at the school between the hours of 12 and 1 p.m.

Members of the executive committee present at this meeting were Mrs. W. H. Armstrong, Mrs. David Garrett, Mrs. G. A. Aden, Mrs. H. V. Fluker, Mrs. John Myers, Miss Coker and Mrs. E. S. Hillburn.

St. Matthew's Group Attends Area Meet

The Parent-Teacher association of St. Matthew's Parochial school was represented at the fifth district P.T.A. meeting held at Bastrop recently by a delegation headed by Sister Patricia of the high school department, and Sister Sophia of the grammar school department.

Other members of the association present were Mrs. P. Kutz, Mrs. Paul Keller, Mrs. Charles Guerrero, Mrs. H. P. L. Brumfield, Mrs. C. J. DuRose, Mrs. P. J. Lochbaum and Mrs. Tony Zurgo.

St. Matthew's P.T.A. sent representatives to Louisiana State Normal college, Natchitoches, recently, when a study course for P.T.A. members was organized there under sponsorship of the Louisiana P.T.A. It was announced here that the Monroe P.T.A. unit was the only one in the fifth district which sent representation to the organization assembly.

At the fifth district P.T.A. meeting to be held here next spring, Neville High school P.T.A. will serve as hostess, with the St. Matthew's unit serving as co-hostess.

A meeting of room mothers of St. Matthew's school and the executive committee of the St. Matthew's P.T.A. will be held at the school Monday night at 7:30 o'clock.

A. L. Smith P.T. A.

To Meet Thursday

A regular meeting of the Parent-Teacher association of the A. L. Smith school, Sterlington, will be held Thursday at 3 p.m. The theme of the program will be "The Family Share in the School Program." Refreshments will be served during the social hour.

Jonesboro-Hodge

P.T. A. Holds Meet

JONESBORO, La., Nov. 6.—(Special)—A meeting of the Jonesboro-Hodge High school P.T.A. was held recently in the high school auditorium, with Mrs. David Bell presiding in the absence of the president, Mrs. T. G. Denham.

Reports were given by finance and membership committees, and plans were discussed for serving sandwiches, pies and coffee at a singing convention which convened Saturday in the high school auditorium for a period of two days. The following were appointed to serve on committees for this week:

Mrs. V. L. Brumfield, Miss Caroline Saunders, Mrs. E. P. Shows, Mrs. H. M. Gattin, Mrs. Mildred Abel, Mrs. B. C. Lutzer and Miss Grace Walker.

Mr. V. L. Brumfield emphasized at the meeting the need of a piano for the music room, and asked that a

Annette Duchain Will Deliver Two Lectures

L. S. U. Book Circle Talks To Be Given In Monroe On November 11 And 12

Keeping abreast with the current best sellers, learning feminine fiction and selecting books for Christmas gifts are but three of the offerings of the Louisiana book circle, a branch of which Miss Annette Duchain has organized in this city.

Considerable interest is manifested over the November lectures at the Francis hotel on Thursday, November 11, at 8 p.m. and on Friday, November 12, at 2 p.m. Miss Duchain will lecture on "Feminine Fiction."

Miss Duchain urges all women who are interested to attend this meeting. The talk will include comments on "Gone With the Wind" by Margaret Mitchell, and "The Years" by Virginia Woolf; reviews of "A City of Belles" by Elizabeth Goulding, and "Conservation at Midnight" by Elin St. Vincent Millay. The talk will include a summary of the great popular novels published by women during the past century. She will reveal the contents of the novels which made your best sellers, learning feminine fiction and selecting books for Christmas gifts are but three of the offerings of the Louisiana book circle, a branch of which Miss Annette Duchain has organized in this city.

The October lectures on "Northwest Passage" by Kenneth Roberts, and "Life With Mother" by Clarence Day, were heard by approximately 2,800 women. Miss Duchain estimates that at least 1,500 women will be enrolled in the 37 sections. She travels approximately 2,300 miles a month to give monthly lectures.

The lectures will be continued in Monroe at monthly meetings through May. An additional series of books distributed brings 400 books to this city through the L. S. U. book circle. Twenty-five current best sellers are distributed monthly among the circle members, loaned by the general extension division and the Louisiana State library commission.

committee he appointed to ascertain whether or not the P.T.A. would like to assume part of the responsibility of buying a piano, and if so, to contact the piano dealers for prices and other information. Mrs. Bell appointed the following persons to serve on this committee: Mrs. I. J. Allen, Mrs. J. C. Shows, Mrs. Gattin, Miss Abel and Mr. V. L. Brumfield.

Area P.T. A. Meet Held At Grayson

GRAYSON, La., Nov. 6.—(Special)—More than 50 members, representing the units of Waterproof, Winnsboro, Columbia, Grayson, Clarks and Trout-Good Pine, of the tenth district of the Louisiana Parent-Teacher association, met at the Clarks High school, Mrs. G. N. Harrison of Clarks, was nominated district chairman of parent education, and Mrs. W. P. Banks, of Clarks, district publication chairman. It was decided to hold the spring district meeting in Waterproof.

The meeting was called to order by Mrs. Allen Price, associate director of the district. Talks were made on education and safety by Mrs. E. Fay Walter, president of the Louisiana P.T.A. A. H. S. Bankschool, and C. G. Harris, district safety chairman, of Trout. Luncheon was served at noon.

P.T. A. Unit Will Equip Playground

LAKE PROVIDENCE, La., Nov. 6.—(Special)—At a meeting of the Lake Providence P.T.A. A., the organization decided to purchase playground equipment. It was reported that 22 new members had enrolled in the local P.T.A. A.

Mrs. Stuart Pittman was named chairman of the program committee and Mrs. J. S. Pittman, Mrs. H. T. Van Posen and C. E. Holly were named to draft by-laws for the organization.

A report of the district meeting recently held at Bastrop was given by Mrs. Earnest Newman. A prize for the largest number of parents attending the meeting was won by the eighth grade.

Eunice Resident To Head District

Announcement is made by Mrs. E. Fay Walter, president of the Louisiana Parent-Teacher association, of the appointment of Mrs. N. J. Any of Eunice, as director of the third district. Mrs. Any, who has served as associate director of that district, will succeed Mrs. R. H. Bolyard of Lafayette, who was elected first vice-president of

Mary Todd Lincoln Subject Of Review

Mrs. J. M. Russell Speaks Before Miro Book Club At Home Of Mrs. J. B. Collins

"Famous Women of Yesterday and Today" is a subject sufficiently interesting to hold members of the Miro Book club enthralled during the semi-monthly meetings.

Mrs. J. M. Russell selected Mary Todd Lincoln for the subject of her colorful paper read before club members in the home of Mrs. J. B. Collins, last week.

Mrs. Russell said in part: "In choosing material for this brief story of the life of Mary Todd Lincoln I shall quote freely from 'Mrs. Abraham Lincoln,' first in the volume 'Wives,' by Bradford.

"Kings and princes are in the habit of selecting their wives, or having them select them, with a view to the exalted station they are to occupy, but presidents of the United States usually marry young, do not arrive at the White House until they are old, and sometimes they bring with them partners not wholly adapted to such a conspicuous career.

"The complication in Mr. Lincoln's case is peculiar. A brilliant but uncouth and almost grotesque lawyer and politician from the backwoods, with no inherited social position or distinction marries a showy, popular belle, who is an aristocrat in the limited circle in which she knows. In accepting a husband whose only asset may be his future. And then, the husband shows an unexampled capacity for growth and development, both intellectual and spiritual, if not social and the wife remaining to the end, the same narrow, rural aristocrat she was in the beginning: it is decidedly left behind. Mrs. Lincoln married Lincoln with condescension and hope that he might rise to her level. He did—and so far beyond her limited power to assist as to leave her pathetically in the background.

"In studying Mrs. Lincoln, we find, while it is possible to get more or less reliable accounts of her external interests and activity her inner life is almost hopelessly obscure. She had a very good education as education went in southern girls' schools in the middle nineteenth century. She read history, hour upon hour, poetry and fiction too. She had a humble gift of words and even wrote with much ease when she so wished. Her natural intelligence was without question, shrewd, quick and keen; often with wit and sarcasm which did not add to her popularity. Mr. Lincoln enlarged on her familiarity with French which she both read and spoke with ease.

"Mr. Lincoln liked music of a rather rudimentary type, but no where do we find that Mary Todd played it to him. Her husband enjoyed the goats that played around the White House; they bored her. She liked to give away the flowers from the conservatory but she seemed to have no passion for them any more than did Lincoln who complained that he had no taste natural or acquired for such things.

"One pleasure they shared—that of the theater, in which they indulged until it culminated in the performance that was ruinous for both.

"Mrs. Lincoln no doubt did her best. In the early days she made her moments of leisure and always had moments of violent economy. Her first remark to Mrs. Keckly at the White House was, 'We are just from the west and are poor. If you will work cheap, you shall have plenty to do. Even so her tastes were far different from Mr. Lincoln's. She liked the pleasant things of life, the kind that cost money. On her way to Washington she wrote her sister, 'When I saw the large steamers at New York landing, ready for the European voyage, I felt in my heart inclined to sigh that poverty is my portion. I laughed and told Mr. Lincoln that I am determined my next husband shall be rich.' A statement which Mr. Lincoln must have well remembered for we find him, that last

A "dads' night" program will be observed by the Choudrant Parent-Teacher association at its November meeting, to be held Thursday night at the Choudrant High school. Songs rendered by fathers will be included in the program.

Mrs. Carl Couch, Fifth District P.T.A. chairman, and Mrs. W. H. Armstrong, associate director, spent Friday in Downsville, where they conducted a Parent-Teacher school of instruction.

Mrs. W. F. Manning of Ruston was elected director of the Ninth District P.T.A. A. at a district meeting held at Ruston recently. Mrs. Manning was formerly president of the Line Avenue P.T.A. A. in Shreveport.

back of her whole life, there was a tremendous driving force of ambition. The most impressive anecdote on the subject comes from Lamon's first interview in 1847. 'Yes,' she said of her husband, 'he is a great favorite everywhere. He will be president some day, if I had not thought so I should not have married him, for you can see that he is not pretty, but he would make a magnificent president.' And then there came the time when Abraham Lincoln was handed the telegram assuring his nomination for president and his reply, 'Thanks, but I'll take it down the street to a little lady who is more interested in it than I am.'

"Mary Todd Lincoln got to the White House and remained there through four of the greatest years in the history of the country."

night at the theater, saying in his last whispered words, 'Mother, now that the war is over, we will take a real vacation to the Holy Land, to Jerusalem where we were always wanted to go.'

"It is clear enough that back of Mrs. Lincoln's political interest, indeed

AT GRIFFIN'S

Do you realize that Christmas day is a mere 7 weeks away? ... And Griffin's Studio's special discount on Christmas photographs will be "No More" in a mere 2-3 weeks? ... Large beautiful fine portraits that you admire in GRIFFIN'S windows every day can be made for you in the next 2-3 weeks (or until November 25th) at a very attractive savings. Right now Griffin has a complete supply of the newest frames, folders and other photographic supplies but I hear that rising prices on such supplies will make this work considerably more when this large supply is exhausted ... so my advice to you is GET THOSE PHOTOS MADE NOW ... BEFORE NOVEMBER 25th ... It's plain good judgment to save money, you know!

AT SILVERSTEIN'S

Here I go talking about coats again—but, let me say, if you are not coat conscious now you'll be unconscious from shock when you see how low they're marked at Silverstein's. Yes, they are marked decidedly less than their legitimate prices for this time of the season. I saw a very smart group of fur-trimmed coats yesterday that range in price from $14.85 to $24.85 and want to tell you that Silverstein's has a "Pay Plan" that will make it possible for those with the most limited budget to own a good warm coat called the "Personalized Plan."

Yes, indeed, wear it while you're paying for it. The best looking sport coats you could wish for are also in this recent reduction. First, girls, go to Silverstein's. It really is the "thrifty thing to do."

AT MONROE STEAM LAUNDRY

Now is the time to wear those "KNITS" under your fur coats. ... Get out that last year's knitted outfit and send it to the Monroe Steam Laundry. You will be delightedly surprised at the results. Their retubing and renewing treatment for knits makes them look and fit even better than they did originally. You'll treasure their trim slim lines and dependable good looks when they are put into a "wearable shape" by the latest improved tubing and cleaning methods at the Monroe Steam Laundry. This is an institution for the care of fabrics ... so never fear that your garments will get anything but the "best treatment." Phone 103 today. A courteous representative will call at your home.

AT SHERWIN-WILLIAMS

You folks that are thinking of decorating ... Sherwin-Williams has a brand new plan for you that will practically make decorations of us all. Beginning this week Sherwin-Williams will feature "ROOM OF THE WEEK." ... A breakfast room one week ... living room the next ... a bedroom the next ... and so on ... The very best decorators of the country have contributed their ideas and they have been boiled down into a simple easy decorating plan that is given to the public by Sherwin-Williams. A special display room will be arranged each week in their window. Get in touch with this firm tomorrow. ... Learn how to decorate your own rooms ... and for one ... help yourself to "YOUR OWN IDEAS" with the help of SHERWIN-WILLIAMS. Located 109 Catina street.

AT DURRETT'S

If there is a "fall bride" you intend buying a gift for ... well, Durrett's is the place to buy it because after all, she would prefer it from "Monroe's Finest Gift Store." ... The Mezzanine Floor is simply overflowing with new and different gifts that you find in far-away places ... the sort that you saw on that trip this past summer. It costs you nothing to visit this interesting department ... and a good thought is "Select your Christmas gifts" while there ... put them away on Durrett's Lay-Away Plan. ... I also saw a selection of rich mahogany dining room suites that will remain in good taste and service for years to come. ... Priced $169 up.

AT JITNEY JUNGLE

A new shipment of the famous "VIRUX CARRE" CRAW-FISH BISQUE prepared and packed in the far south has just been received in the North Fourth street JITNEY JUNGLE store at 29c a can. Also a shipment of sweets from Havana, Cuba ... includes plenty of that good Guava Jelly. Oh, there are so many new things each week at this interesting store. ... Drop by—browse around and look. ... After all, the poets have waxed sentimental about the "flowers that bloom in the spring" and "the frost on the pumpkin," but few have spent their efforts on "Danish pastries" that truly deserve a niche in the Hall of Fame. Danish pastries, these bakers call them. Though I like to say "sweet" cakes as our down south cousins would say. Grand big "pretty" cakes are these and packed with fluffy "sweet nothings" until they won't hold any more. Do get some tomorrow—it's a new treat at JITNEY JUNGLE North Fourth Street Bakery. Fresh every day.

AT CITY BAKERY

The Mel-O-Toast Bread Diet is an entirely new idea in diets. It is real news—good news—to overweight people who must slim down to look the part in the new fall frocks. The Mel-O-Toast Bread Diet is based on the latest discoveries about bread after three years of research at leading universities and laboratories in different parts of the United States. Unlike other extreme diets, the bread diet spares the protein of the muscles. It is an absolutely safe diet for the average person. It supplies all that is essential for safety—carbohydrates, proteins, minerals, vitamins and bulk. The bread diet is for overweight people. To make dieting easy for you and yet allow you delicious, varied meals. The City Bakery, bakers of that delicious Mel-O-Toast bread, has this little booklet ready for you for just the asking. ... AT FINK'S

Haven't you noticed men on the streets lately wearing the smartest looking sweaters? ... so warm ... so good looking? ... Well, I found out where they bought them ... and what's more, I saw the whole new shipment that arrived this week. ... Wilson Bros. "SKIPPER" sweaters. A new shipment at FINK'S (Wilson Bros. sports wear is exclusive with FINK). ... There was a specially attractive one of dull grey wool gabardine with knitted sleeves and trim of Dubouet. Leather buttons. Other combinations were beige and brown, hunter's green and brown, grey and blue. This particular sweater sells for $5.00 and men will be daffy about them because they fit so well under the coat and look swell without a coat. ... Another wool number featured the sport back with leather buttons or zipper fastening. Solid backs and sleeves with plaid fronts. Sells for $3.50. ... Send your dad, hubby, brother or son to FINK'S the first thing Monday morning. ... Ward off the "popular colds" by keeping warm.

AT SEARS

Now that the family is coming home for that annual get-together dinner, Thanksgiving ... It's a mighty good time to invest in that new stove. ... The newest thing under the sun is that "PROSPERITY RANGE" at Sears. This stove is not only a beautiful piece of furniture but has more attractive features than any stove I have found in my shopping tours ... for the money. All porcelain gleaming white and beige ... with black trim made on an all-steel U-type frame ... lined with 12-inch rock wool ... equipped with electrical appliances ... automatic pilot light ... heat control. Oven is one-third larger than the average oven and has those nice flat beam slide-out trays. Double pan porcelain bottom on fused steel with smokeless broiler that rolls out at just a touch of the finger. The oven is large enough to hold 10 turkey loaves of bread. I could rave on and on about this beautiful range but space won't permit. The nice part of this whole business is the low price. ... $34.95, $37.95, $67.95 up to $101.50.

Also a shipment of sweets from Havana, Cuba ... includes plenty of that good Guava Jelly. Oh, there are so many new things each week at this interesting store. ... Drop by—browse around and look. ... After all, the poets have waxed sentimental about the "flowers that bloom in the spring" and "the frost on the pumpkin," but few have spent their efforts on "Danish pastries" that truly deserve a niche in the Hall of Fame. Danish pastries, these bakers call them. Though I like to say "sweet" cakes as our down south cousins would say. Grand big "pretty" cakes are these and packed with fluffy "sweet nothings" until they won't hold any more. Do get some tomorrow—it's a new treat at JITNEY JUNGLE North Fourth Street Bakery. Fresh every day.

'Onward Education' Theme Of Fifth District P.T. A. Meeting At Bastrop

State President And Monroe Woman Speak; Legislation Chairman's Message Read

"Onward Education" was the theme of the Fifth District Parent-Teacher association meeting held at Bastrop last week. Mrs. E. Fay Walter of Winnsboro, president of the Louisiana Parent-Teacher association, spoke on the subject, "Onward Education in the Home," and Miss Julia Wossman, principal of the Barkdull Faulk school, Monroe, discussed phases of "Onward Education in the School."

"Education is a process that cannot be confined to the hours between 9:30 a.m. and 3 p.m.," Mrs. Walter said. "Education goes on through the waking and sleeping hours of children. We have come to accept the word 'education' as being synonymous with the word 'school,' which is erroneous."

"Training and instruction are acquired in the schools. The home lays the foundation for the work at school. The home and school are partners. Behavior, the finest of the fine arts, is taught in the home, where the factor of making the child sure of sympathetic guidance is most important."

Miss Wossman asserted that curriculum is changing throughout the United States. "Schools have passed the stage of the little red school house on the plantation where we were taught reading, writing and arithmetic and most of our studying was done at home under the guidance of our mother or kindhearted aunts," Miss Wossman said.

"There was no extreme wealth, no labor controversies, no vast corporations. We were living in a period of individualism. Motion pictures had not changed the ideal of the home. Traveling had not broken the effect of group opinion. But times are changing. Things are becoming more complex and society is undergoing a change."

"Are our schools keeping up with the changing times or are we lagging? Children shall be taught democratic living within the school, because democracy is being threatened."

Discussions were led by Mrs. G. B. Wilson, state chairman of safety, Mrs. W. H. Armstrong, state chairman of correspondence courses, and Mrs. Nell Grigsby, fifth district publicity director.

A message from Mrs. C. C. Hathaway of Shreveport, state chairman of legislation, was read by Mrs. Walter. The advantage of the twelve-year plan, Mrs. Hathaway said, lies in the fact that it affords more time for study in elementary and cultural subjects and that high school students are more mature upon graduation.

The disadvantages of the eleven-year plan, which is used in only six states, including Louisiana, are that high school students are shifted on society at an age when they are too young either to enter college or to obtain employment, Mrs. Hathaway said.

Mrs. Carl Couch, fifth district director, presided during the meeting and the invocation was given by Rev. Leslie Young of Bastrop. An address of welcome was made by E. D. Shaw, superintendent of the Morehouse parish schools. Mrs. King Hunt, president of the Twin-Cities P.T.A. council, gave the response.

Several enjoyable musical selections were given, including a duet and selections by the school band. Luncheon was served in the school cafeteria. During the presidents' professional, presidents reported the membership of their organizations as follows:

Mrs. A. C. Volk, Bastrop, 28; Mrs. Stephenson, East Side, Bastrop, 45; Mrs. C. H. Garland, West Side, Bastrop, 22; Mrs. G. B. Wilson, Fairbanks, 73; Mrs. Sugars, Lake Providence, 26; Mrs. A. Yarbrough, Tallulah, 69; Mrs. Rhes McCook, Barkdull Faulk, Monroe, 100; Mrs. H. S. Chilton, Central Grammar, Monroe, 60; Mrs. W. H. Armstrong, Neville, Monroe, 100; Mrs. C. C. McAuliffe, Lida Benton, Monroe, 67; Mrs. L. E. Hayden, Ousatcha Parish High, Monroe, 125; Mrs. John Calhoun, Sherrouse, Monroe, 65.

St. Matthew's Group Attends Area Meet

Other members of the association present were Mrs. P. Kutz, Mrs. Paul Keller, Mrs. Charles Guerrier, Mrs. P. J. Westlake, Mrs. C. J. DuBoise, Mrs. P. J. Lochbaum and Mrs. Tony Zargo.

St. Matthew's P.T.A. sent representatives to Louisiana State Normal college, Natchitoches, recently, when a study course for P.T.A. members was organized there under sponsorship of the Louisiana P.T.A. It was announced here that the Monroe P.T.A. unit was the only one in the fifth district which sent representation to the organization assembly.

At the fifth district P.T.A. meeting to be held here next spring, Neville High school P.T.A. will serve as hostess, with the St. Matthew's unit serving as co-hostess.

A meeting of room mothers of St. Matthew's school and the executive committee of the St. Matthew's P.T.A. will be held at the school Monday night at 7:30 o'clock.

A. L. Smith P.T.A. To Meet Thursday

A regular meeting of the Parent-Teacher association of the A. L. Smith school, Sterling, will be held Thursday at 3 p.m. The theme of the program will be "The Family Share in the School Program." Refreshments will be served during the social hour.

Jonesboro-Hodge P.T.A. Holds Meet

JONESBORO, La., Nov. 6.—(Special)—A meeting of the Jonesboro-Hodge High school P.T.A. was held recently in the high school auditorium, with Mrs. David Bell presiding in the absence of the president, Mrs. T. G. Dennis.

Reports were given by finance and membership committees, and plans were discussed for serving sandwiches, pies and coffee at a singing convention which convened Saturday in the high school auditorium for a period of two days. The following were appointed to serve on committees for this work: Mrs. V. L. Brumfield, Miss Carol Saunders, Mrs. E. P. Shows, Mrs. H. M. Gatlin, Miss Mildred Abel, Mrs. B. C. Luzader and Miss Grace Walker.

Mrs. V. L. Brumfield emphasized at the meeting the need of a piano for the music room, and asked that a committee be appointed to ascertain whether or not the P.T.A. would like to assume part of the responsibility of buying a piano, and if so, to contact the piano dealers for prices and other information. Mrs. Bell appointed the following persons to serve on this committee: Mrs. J. J. Allen, Mrs. J. C. Shows, Mrs. Gatlin, Miss Abel and Mr. V. L. Brumfield.

Area P.T.A. A Meet Held At Grayson

GRAYSON, La., Nov. 6.—(Special)—More than 50 members, representing the units of Waterproof, Winnsboro, Columbia, Grayson, Clarks and Trout-Good Pine, of the tenth district of the Louisiana Parent-Teacher association, met at the Clarks high school. Mrs. G. N. Harrison of Clarks, was nominated district chairman of parent education, and Mrs. W. P. Banks, of Clarks, district publication chairman. It was decided to hold the spring district meeting in Waterproof.

The meeting was called to order by Mrs. Allen Price, associate director of the district. Talks were made on education and safety by Mrs. E. Fay Walter, president of the Louisiana P.T.A.; H. S. Bankhead, and C. G. Harris, district safety chairman, of Trout.

Luncheon was served at noon.

P.T.A. Unit Will Equip Playground

LAKE PROVIDENCE, La., Nov. 6.—(Special)—At a meeting of the Lake Providence P.T.A. unit, the organization decided to purchase playground equipment. It was reported that 22 new members had enrolled in the local P.T.A.

Mrs. Stuart Pittman was named chairman of the program committee and Mrs. J. S. Pittman, Mrs. H. T. Van Fossen, and C. E. Holly were named to draft by-laws for the organization.

A report of the district meeting recently held at Bastrop was given by Mrs. Earnest Newman. A prize for the largest number of parents attending the meeting was won by the eighth grade.

Eunice Resident To Head District

Announcement is made by Mrs. E. Fay Walter, president of the Louisiana Parent-Teacher association, of the appointment of Mrs. N. J. Amy of Eunice, as director of the third district. Mrs. Amy, who has served as associate director of that district, will succeed Mrs. R. H. Bolyard of Lafayette, who was elected first vice-president of Mrs. N. P. Kutz, St. Matthews, Monroe, 63; Mrs. H. F. Burdeaux, Crosley, West Monroe, 175.

Editor To Address Neville High P.T.A.

"Standard of Conduct in Today's World" will be the subject of an address to be given by Fred Williamson, managing editor of the Morning World and News-Star, at a meeting of the Neville High school Parent-Teacher association Monday at 3:30 p.m. in the P.T.A. room of the school.

The P.T.A. room has recently been equipped by the members and is devoted exclusively to parent-teacher meetings. Literature of interest to members and chairmen is kept in a special book case. Other features of the room are a tea table and dishes for serving refreshments after the programs and business of meetings have been completed.

Plans for the organization of a Junior Safety council were discussed at a meeting of the executive board of the Neville Parent-Teacher association held recently at the school.

Sponsoring of the safety council will be the outstanding project of the association this year and instructors from Baton Rouge will conduct classes for the members, instructing them in driving and in the observance of safety rules.

Several changes were made in the personnel of the executive board at this meeting. Mrs. G. A. Aden was appointed secretary, to succeed Mrs. Courtney Oliver, who has been acting as secretary pro tem. Mrs. B. W. Morrison was appointed chairman of membership to fill the vacancy left by Mrs. Aden, and Mrs. John Myers was named hospitality chairman, succeeding Mrs. E. G. Waring, who recently moved from Monroe.

Mrs. H. V. Fluker and Mrs. Minnie Ruffin were elected council representatives. Alternates will be elected at the regular meeting of the organization Monday afternoon.

Mrs. W. H. Armstrong was appointed a committee of one for the purpose of securing a traffic officer at the school between the hours of 12 and 1 p.m.

Members of the executive committee present at this meeting were Mrs. W. H. Armstrong, Mrs. David Garrett, Mrs. G. A. Aden, Mrs. H. V. Fluker, Mrs. John Myers, Miss Coker and Mrs. E. S. Hilburn.

St. Matthew's Group Attends Area Meet

Other members of the association present were Mrs. P. Kutz, Mrs. Paul Keller, Mrs. Charles Guerrier, Mrs. P. J. Westlake, Mrs. C. J. DuBoise, Mrs. P. J. Lochbaum and Mrs. Tony Zargo.

Annette Duchain Will Deliver Two Lectures

L. S. U. Book Circle Talks To Be Given In Monroe On November 11 And 12

Keeping abreast with the current best sellers, learning feminine fiction and selecting books for Christmas gifts are but three of the offerings of the Louisiana book circle, a branch of which Annette Duchain has organized in this city.

Considerable interest is manifested over the November lectures at the Frances hotel on Thursday, November 11, at 8 p.m., and on Friday, November 12, at 2 p.m. Miss Duchain will lecture on "Feminine Fiction."

Miss Duchain urges all women who are interested to attend this meeting. The talk will include comments on "Gone With the Wind," by Margaret Mitchell, and "The Years," by Virginia Woolf; reviews of "A City of Belles," by Elizabeth Goudge, and of "Conservation at Midnight," by Edna St. Vincent Millay. The talk will include a summary of the great popular novels published by women during the past century. She will reveal the contents of the novels which made your grandmothers swoon and your mothers thrill.

The L. S. U. book circle has been organized in 37 sections throughout the state, which includes women in 65 communities.

The October lectures on "Northwest Passage," by Kenneth Roberts, and "Life With Mother," by Clarence Day, were heard by approximately 2,800 women. Miss Duchain estimates that at least 1,500 women will be enrolled in the 37 sections. She travels approximately 2,300 miles a month to give monthly lectures.

The lectures will be continued in Monroe at monthly meetings through May. An additional service of books distributed brings 400 books to this city through the L. S. U. book circle. Twenty-five current best sellers are distributed monthly among the circle members, loaned by the general extension division and the Louisiana State library commission.

Mary Todd Lincoln Subject Of Review

Mrs. J. M. Russell Speaks Before Miro Book Club At Home Of Mrs. J. B. Collins

"Famous Women of Yesterday and Today," is a subject sufficiently interesting to hold members of the Miro Book club enthralled during the semi-monthly meetings.

Mrs. J. M. Russell selected Mary Todd Lincoln for the subject of her colorful paper read before club members in the home of Mrs. J. B. Collins, last week.

Mrs. Russell said in part: "In choosing material for this brief story of the life of Mary Todd Lincoln I shall quote freely from 'Mrs. Abraham Lincoln,' first in the volume 'Wives,' by Bradford.

"Kings and princes are in the habit of selecting their wives, or having them select them, with a view to the exalted station they are to occupy, but presidents of the United States usually marry young, do not arrive at the White House until they are old, and sometimes they bring with them partners not wholly adapted to such a conspicuous career.

"The complication in Mr. Lincoln's case is peculiar. A brilliant but uncouth and almost grotesque lawyer and politician from the backwoods, with no inherited social position or distinction marries a showy, popular belle, who is an aristocrat in the limited circle in which she knows, feels that she is condescending vastly in accepting a husband whose only asset may be his future. And then, the husband shows an unexampled capacity for growth and development, both intellectual and spiritual, if not social and the wife remaining to the end, the same narrow, rural aristocrat she was in the beginning, is decidedly left behind. Mrs. Lincoln married Lincoln with condescension and hope that he might rise to her level. He did—and so far beyond her limited power of ascent as to leave her pathetically in the background.

"In studying Mrs. Lincoln, we find, while it is possible to get more or less reliable accounts of her external interests and activity her inner life is almost hopelessly obscure. She had a very good education as education went in southern girls' schools in the middle nineteenth century. She read history, hour upon hour, poetry and fiction too. She had a nimble gift of words and even wrote with much ease when she so wished. Her natural intelligence was without question, shrewd, quick and keen; often with wit and sarcasm which did not add to her popularity. Mr. Rankin enlarges on her familiarity with French which she both read and spoke with ease.

"Mr. Lincoln liked music of a rather rudimentary type, but no where do we find that Mary Todd played it to him. Her husband enjoyed the guests that played around the White House; they bored her. She liked to give away the flowers from the conservatory but she seemed to have no passion for them any more than did Lincoln who complained that he had 'no taste natural or acquired for such things.'

"One pleasure they shared—that of the theater, in which they indulged until it culminated in the performance, which was ruinous for both.

"Mrs. Lincoln no doubt did her best. In the early days she made her own dresses and always had moments of violent economy. Her first remark to Mrs. Keckly at the White House was, 'We are just from the west and are poor. If you will work cheap, you shall have plenty to do. Even so her tastes were far different from Mr. Lincoln's. She liked the pleasant things of life, the kind that cost money. On her way to Washington she wrote her sister, 'When I saw the large steamers at New York landing, ready for the European voyage, I felt in my heart inclined to sigh that poverty is my portion. I laughed and told Mr. Lincoln that 'I am determined my next husband shall be rich,' a statement which Mr. Lincoln must have well remembered for we find him, that last

A "dads' night" program will be observed by the Choudrant Parent-Teacher association at its November meeting, to be held Thursday night at the Choudrant high school. Songs rendered by fathers will be included in the program.

Mrs. Carl Couch, Fifth District P.T.A. chairman, and Mrs. W. H. Armstrong, associate director, spent Friday in Downsville, where they conducted a Parent-Teacher school of instruction.

Mrs. W. F. Manning of Ruston was elected director of the Ninth District P.T.A. at a district meeting held at Ruston recently. Mrs. Manning was formerly president of the Line Avenue P.T.A. in Shreveport.

Mrs. Amy, who has served as associate director of that district, will succeed Mrs. R. H. Bolyard of Lafayette, who was elected first vice-president of back of her whole life, there was a tremendous driving force of ambition. The most impressive anecdote on the subject comes from Lamon's first interview in 1847. 'Yes,' she said of her husband, 'he is a great favorite everywhere. He will be president some day, if I had not thought so I should not have married him, for you can see that he is not pretty, but he would make a magnificent president.' And then there came the time when Abraham Lincoln was handed the telegram assuring his nomination for president and his reply, 'Thanks, but I'll take it down the street to a little lady who is more interested in it than I.'

"Mary Todd Lincoln got to the White House and resigned that thorough four of the greatest years in the history of the country."

here goes a-Shopping

Being a chronicle of the things she saw and the things she bought on a shopping tour with the merchants of the Twin Cities yesterday.

AT GRIFFIN'S

Do you realize that Christmas day is not 7 weeks away? At Griffin's Studio's special discount on Christmas photographs will be "No More" in a mere 21-2 weeks. Large beautiful fine portraits that you admire in GRIFFIN'S windows every day can be made for you in the next 21-2 weeks (or until November 25th) at a very attractive savings. Right now Griffin has a complete supply of the newest frames, folders and other photographic supplies but I hear that rising prices on such supplies will make this work considerably more when this large supply is exhausted. So my advice to you is GET THOSE PHOTOS MADE NOW. BEFORE NOVEMBER 25th. . . . It's plain good judgment to save money, you know!

AT SILVERSTEIN'S

Here I go talking about coats again—but, let me say, if you are not coat conscious now you'll be unconscious from shock when you see how low they're marked at Silverstein's. Yes they are marked decidedly less than their legitimate prices for this time of the season. I saw a very smart group of fur-trimmed coats yesterday that range in price from $14.85 to $24.85 and want to tell you that Silverstein's has a "Pay Plan" that will make it possible for those with the most limited budget to own a good warm coat called the "Personal-ized Plan." . . . Yes, indeed, wear it while you're paying for it. The best looking sport coats you could wish for are also in this tremendous stock. First, girls, go to Silverstein's. . . . It is really the "thrifty thing to do."

AT MONROE STEAM LAUNDRY

Now is the time to wear those "KNITS" under your fur coats. . . . Get out that last year's knitted outfit and send it to the Monroe Steam Laundry. You will be delightfully surprised at the results. Their reblocking and renewing treatment for knits makes them look and fit even better than they did originally. You'll treasure their trim slim lines and dependable good looks when they are put into a "wearable shape" by the latest improved blocking and cleaning methods at the Monroe Steam Laundry. This is an institution for the care of fabrics. . . . so never fear that your garments will get anything but the "best treatment." Phone 103 today. A courteous representative will call at your home.

AT SHERWIN-WILLIAMS

You folks that are thinking of decorating . . . Sherwin-Williams has a brand new plan for you that will practically make decorators of us all. Beginning this week Sherwin-Williams will feature "ROOM OF THE WEEK." . . . A breakfast room one week . . . a living room the next . . . and so on . . . The very best decorators of the country have contributed their ideas and they have been boiled down into a simple easy decorating plan and given to the public by Sherwin-Williams. A special display room will be arranged each week in their window. Get in touch with this firm tomorrow. . . . Learn without cost or obligation just how to decorate your own rooms . . . and for once . . . help yourself to "YOUR OWN IDEAS" with the help of SHERWIN-WILLIAMS. Located 109 Catalpa street.

AT DURRETT'S

If there is a "fall bride" you intend buying a gift for, well, Durrett's is the place to buy it because after all, she would prefer it from "Monroe's Finest Gift Store." . . . The Mezzanine Floor is simply overflowing with new and different gifts that you find in far-away places . . . the sort that you saw on that trip this past summer. . . . It costs you nothing to visit this interesting department . . . and a good thought is "Select your Christmas gifts" while there . . . put them away on Durrett's Lay-Away Plan. . . . I also saw a selection of rich mahogany dining room suites that will remain in good taste and service for years to come. . . . Priced $169 up.

AT CITY BAKERY

The Mel-O-Toast Bread Diet is an entirely new idea in diets. It is real news—good news—to overweight people who must slim down to look the part in the new fall frocks. The Mel-O-Toast Bread Diet is based on the latest discoveries about bread after three years of research at leading universities and laboratories in different parts of the United States. Unlike the extreme diets, the bread diet spares the protein of the muscles. It is an absolutely safe diet for the average person. It supplies all that is essential for safety—carbohydrates, proteins, minerals, vitamins and hulk. The bread diet is for overweight people. To make dieting easy for you and yet allow you delicious, varied meals, The City Bakery, bakers of that delicious Mel-O-Toast bread, has this little booklet ready for you for just the asking. . . . Get your copy today. . . . Reduce the Mel-O-Toast way.

AT FINK'S

Haven't you noticed men on the streets lately wearing the smartest looking sweaters . . . so warm . . . so good looking? . . . Well, I found out where they bought them . . . and what's more, I saw the whole new shipment that arrived this week. . . . Wilson Bros. "SKIPPER" sweaters. A new shipment at FINK'S (Wilson Bros. sweaters) is exclusive with FINK'S. There was a specially attractive one of dull grey wool gabardine with knitted sleeves and trim of Dubonet. Leather buttons. Other color combinations were beige and brown, hunter's green and brown, grey and blue. This particular sweater sells for $5.00 and men will be fit so well under the coat and look swell without a coat. Another brush wool number featured the sport back with leather buttons or zipper fastening. Solid backs and sleeves with plaid fronts. Sells for $3.50. . . . Send your dad, hubby, brother or son to FINK'S the first thing Monday morning. . . . Ward off these "popular colds" by keeping warm.

AT SEARS

Now that the family is coming home for that annual "get together dinner" Thanksgiving . . . it's a mighty good time to invest in the new stove. The newest thing under the sun is that "PROSPERITY RANGE" at Sears. This stove is not only a beautiful piece of furniture but has more attractive features than any stove I have found in my shopping tours . . . for the money. All porcelain glistening white and beige . . . with black trim made on an all-steel U-type frame. . . . lined with 12-inch rock wool . . . equipped with electrical appliances . . . automatic pilot light . . . heat control. Oven is one-third larger than the average oven and has those nice flat beam slide-out trays. Double pan porcelain bottom on fused steel with smokeless broiler that rolls out at just a touch of the finger. The oven is large enough to hold 16 fat steaks or broilers . . . could rave on and on about this beautiful range but space won't permit. The nice part of this whole business is the low price. . . . $54.95, $57.95, $67.95 up to $104.50.

AT JITNEY JUNGLE

A new shipment of the famous "VIEUX CARRE" CRAWFISH BISQUE prepared and packed in the far south has just been received in the North Fourth street Jitney Jungle store at 21c a can. Also a shipment of sweets from Havana, Cuba . . . includes plenty of that good Guava jelly. Oh, there are so many new things out each week at this interesting store. Drop by—browse around and look . . . Nearly all the poets have waxed sentimental about the "flowers that bloom in the spring" but "the frost on the pumpkin" but few have spent their efforts on "Danish pastries" that truly deserve a niche in the Hall of Fame. Danish pastries, these bakers call them, though I like to say "sweet" cakes as our down south cousins would say. Grand big "pretty" cakes are these and packed with fluffy "sweet nothings" until they won't hold any more. Do get some tomorrow—it's a new treat at Jitney Jungle North Fourth Street Bakery. Fresh every day.

Miss Thompson And Mr. Sparks Honored At Dinner After Wedding Rehearsal

Old Friends Present At Brilliant Affair

Many Out-Of-Town Guests Attend; Mrs. Amos Smelser Gives Informal Luncheon

Champagne glasses were lifted high when Miss Lillie Thompson and Mr. James Sparks were toasted on the eve of their marriage by lifelong friends, college classmates and members of their family, gathered around the flower banked candlelit dinner table in the Crystal ballroom of the Virginia hotel, following the wedding rehearsal Friday night, with Mrs. R. C. Sparks, Sr., as hostess.

Miss Thompson, a radiant bride-to-be, wore an elegant evening model of ice-blue satin with a chaplet of crystals attached to a circular piece of blue gossamer worn over the face. A floor length pleated cape, worn to and from the church, was removed during the dinner hour. Mr. Sparks and other members of his party were in formal evening attire.

The dinner table, of huge proportions, was extravagantly appointed with silver and crystal with an immense plaque of pink bride's roses with silhouette tapers burning in their midst, running down the full length of the table.

Mrs. Sparks, who presided graciously at one end of the table, wore a who gave impromptu toasts while the assemblage drank their health in champagne.

Various kinds of wines were served throughout the five-course dinner of perfect appointments.

Miss Thompson took this opportunity to present her bridal attendants with handsome white enamel and gold-monogrammed vanity. Mr. Sparks presented his attendants with gold pocket knives.

Noted among the guests in addition to the hostess and the guests of honor were Mr. and Mrs. Wood Thompson, Mr. and Mrs. M. C. Thompson, Mr. M. C. Thompson, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Sparks, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Ben Downing, Mr. and Mrs. B. D. Hodges, Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Maish, Mr. and Mrs. Martin Burke of Roanoke, Va., Dr. and Mrs. Thomas White of Shreveport, Mr. and Mrs. S. E. Calonge of New Orleans.

Mrs. Janet Powell, Mrs. Alice Nelson, Mrs. James L. Nelson of Wichita Falls, Tex., Mr. William Nelson of Wichita, Kan., Mr. Robert Nelson of Alexandria, Misses May and Bell Johnson of Baton Rouge, Miss Dorothy Calvert, Miss Clara Virginia Terzina, Miss Isabel Christensen of Mobile, Ala., Mr. and Mrs. Paul Baum of Plaquemine, Mrs. Howell Carter of New Orleans, Miss Marguerite Carter of New Orleans, Rev. and Mrs. E. F. Hayward, Mrs. Vernon LaCour of Thibodaux, Mr. and Mrs. James Dorman, Miss Louise Grey, Miss Sydney Calonge, Miss Frances Boult of Vicksburg, Mr. Henry Bernstein, Mr. Jack May, Mr. Victor Davis, Mr. Benjamin Dawkins, Jr., Mr. Harry Hawtherne, Mr. Gilbert Foulk, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Seymour, Mrs. H. W. Reddy of New Orleans.

Mrs. Wood Thompson, mother of the guest of honor, wore a Madelon blue crepe evening model with corsage of pink Columbia roses and valley lilies.

The conversation was general around the table where the placing of guests was carefully arranged by the hostess.

Rev. E. F. Hayward, rector of Grace church, in ceremonious manner toasted the prospective bride and bridegroom and with customary depth of sincerity expressed a desire that all their future life would be as happy as the dinner party that night. Miss Thompson and Mr. Sparks responded with clever witticisms and were followed by guests

Dr. Tiebout Speaks At Council Meeting

Children Copy As Much From Parental Behavior As They Inherit, She Declares

When parents fully realize that "children copy at least as much from parental behavior as they inherit from parental blood," greater thought will be given parental example, according to Dr. Carolyn Tiebout, who lectured before a group of enthusiastic women under the auspices of the Twin Cities P-T. A. council at the courthouse Thursday afternoon.

"Each child's development in its various phases, physical, mental, social and emotional, is determined by the joint influence of the factors of heredity and environment," Dr. Tiebout stated in her lecture on "Facts and Fallacies About Heredity."

This was the first of the second series of eight lectures on "Understanding and Training the Child," offered through the general extension division of the Louisiana State university and sponsored locally by the council.

Earlier studies on heredity, the speaker pointed out, lead to an undue emphasis on the influence of this factor and to a fatalistic attitude on the part of the parent that nothing could be done for the child because he was "born that way."

Later studies, however, have demonstrated that training, social contacts and living conditions, the main elements of an individual's environment, have an important influence in determining what kind of person he becomes, the speaker continued. In this connection, she discussed the studies made on identical twins who had been reared in different environments.

In the case of these individuals with identical heredity, environment was found to affect the development of traits of personality and temperament to the greatest degree, ability and achievement to a lesser extent, and physical traits, to the least degree, Dr. Tiebout stated.

The lecturer briefly explained the mechanism of heredity, emphasizing the infinite possibilities for differences in traits between parent and child and between two children in the same family. Certain popular fallacies in regard to heredity were cited by Dr. Tiebout, namely, that "water cannot rise above its source," that the child may inherit acquired characteristics, and that the child may be marked by impressions from without during the pre-natal stage of development. Evidence disproving such beliefs was outlined by the speaker.

Following a short business session, Mrs. R. K. Boney gave a most interesting talk on "Life Savers, His Life and Works." During the social hour the hostesses, Mrs. P. C. Benjamin, Mrs. Harry Anderson, Mrs. T. Ed Williams and Mrs. Douglas Fortner, served sandwiches and coffee.

Rev. and Mrs. George A. A. Tocher, Miss Alayne Mulhearn and Mrs. W. M. Murphy attended the concert by Pierre Luboshutz and Genia Nemoff under the auspices of the Civic Music association in Monroe recently. They were dinner guests at the home of Mrs. John Potts in Monroe.

The Wednesday Bridge club was entertained by Mrs. Alex Blanche at her home at Tondal. The high score prize, a novelty pottery baking dish, was won by Mrs. A. L. Sevier, consolation a tray, was won by Mrs. Neal Holt and low score prize, a silk scarf, was won by Mrs. W. H. Pearson.

Luncheon was served at the conclusion of the games to Mrs. A. L. Sevier, Mrs. W. C. Starrett, Mrs. Mason Spencer, Mrs. Horace Lee, Mrs. W. H. Pearson, Mrs. Neal Holt, Mrs. R. E. Gilbert, Mrs. Dean Allen, Mrs. W. R. Gilbert, Mrs. John Sevier, Mrs. D. H. Allen and Mrs. J. M. Moss.

Mrs. R. T. Starrett, president of the Tallulah Book club, and Mrs. C. E. Hester attended a meeting of the Louisiana Federation of Women's clubs at Alexandria.

Mr. and Mrs. G. L. Smith were hosts to their club, entertaining with a supper-luncheon, Mrs. A. H. Hurd and Dr. J. B. Boyd were the recipients of the high score awards. The guests included Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Hurd, Mr. and Mrs. G. M. Fuller, Mr. and Mrs. R. R. Spitzer, Mr. and Mrs. Davis Whitfield and their guest, Mrs. Sanders of Monroe, and Mrs. R. L. Moncrief.

Mrs. Amos Smelser's attractive new home on Island drive supplied the setting for an informal buffet luncheon on Thursday complimentary to Miss Lillie Thompson.

Cocktails, canapés and hors d'oeuvres were served in the living room before the luncheon hour.

The table in the dining room, covered with point Venise lace and centered with a flaming crystal bowl overflowing with white chrysanthemums and blue tapers burning in their midst, was beautifully appointed with silver and crystal. Silver trays held delicious viands with baked Virginia ham the piece de resistance. The individual tables, overlaid with linens and appointed with silver, were adorned with miniature three-tiered wedding cakes, beautifully embossed in roses and valley lilies.

Mrs. Smelser presented Miss Thompson with a gift of silver.

The guests were limited to Miss Thompson's bridal attendants.

Mr. and Mrs. Bridger Thornhill are enjoying a week-end visit at the Roosevelt hotel in New Orleans. They were privileged to attend the Russian ballet Friday night and the Tulane football game on Saturday.

MUNICIPAL RAILWAY DELAYS EXPLAINED

A written statement in which he asked the public "to bear with us a while longer" was issued yesterday by W. B. Mangham, superintendent of the street railway division of the department of finances and public utilities of the city, in connection with complaints concerning street car service in recent days.

Declaring that the division hoped to make some changes in the near future to improve the service, Mr. Mangham attributed the numerous delays in the schedule of cars in the southern end of the city to trolley breaks resulting from worn out wires.

Mr. Mangham's statement in full follows: "We are having numerous delays and complaints on our street car line due to trolley breaks. Our trolley wire is practically worn out. We were in hopes of replacing the old street cars with up-to-date buses and not having to buy a new trolley wire which would cost as much as a new bus and hope in the near future to make some changes whereby our patrons and people of the south end will not have to be delayed by trolley breaks.

"We are going to ask you to bear with us a while longer until we can arrange to give you better service which we hope will be in the near future."

250 STUDENTS RETURN FROM HAMMOND GAME

Two hundred and fifty students of Northeast Center of Louisiana State university who left Monroe Friday morning on a special train on the Illinois Central railroad for Hammond, where they witnessed the football game between their team and that of Southeastern Louisiana college, returned here yesterday morning.

Accompanied by Dr. C. C. Colvert, dean of Northeast Center, and 12 members of the faculty of the school, they were joined at Baton Rouge, on the way to Hammond, by 50 members of the Northeast Center club at Louisiana State university. After witnessing the game, which resulted in a scoreless tie, these students made the trip back as far as Baton Rouge with the local students.

The special on the way to Hammond, reached the state capital shortly after noon Friday. Lunches provided by Louisiana State university were served at the train and later the students from the local college visited the L. S. U. campus, the state capitol and other points of interest in Baton Rouge.

The cheer leaders at Northeast Center were among the students who made the trip.

NEGRO ESCAPES

CHAPTER XIII

Cilly waited until after 9 o'clock on Tuesday morning to call Sergeant Dolan at police headquarters. He was not in, but she left her name. She stressed the fact that her message was important.

Then she went downstairs to Mr. Johnson's rooms in the basement. If any of the tenants had come from Utah, Mr. Johnson would remember it. Moving men have to see the superintendent before unloading their vans; and a truckload of furniture from the far west would arouse curiosity.

"Good morning, Mr. Johnson," Cilly met him coming up the stairs with some tools in his hand. He was surprised to see her.

"Oh, good morning, Miss Pierce. Good morning. Did you want to see me?"

"Yes I did, Mr. Johnson. Are you very busy? There is something I wanted to ask you about."

He stopped a minute. "Well, I tell you, Miss Pierce, I am in a bit of a hurry. Mrs. Downey up in 4-A called me. She's had some sort of an accident with the plumbing—a leak, she says—and I wanted to fix it up before any damage was done. . . . Are you in a hurry, Miss Pierce?"

"No, not at all, Mr. Johnson. May I wait until you're finished?"

"Sure, sure, Miss Pierce. Come right in."

Johnson turned and went down the few steps to his own rooms; he opened the door and led Cilly into his simple living room. "I'll be back in 10 minutes," he said, and left her alone.

Afterwards, Cilly wondered why she had suggested waiting for him. She might just as well have gone back to her own apartment and asked him to stop in on his way down. However, here she was. She settled herself to wait.

What a neat, well-arranged place it was, she thought, for a man's solitary quarters. She liked the comfortable leather chairs, the plain oak table with the red-and-white checkered cloth. She liked the pictures of the sea which decorated the wall.

A small book-shelf lined the wall across the room; looking at it, Cilly guessed that the books fulfilled his nautical taste—vivid and valiant sagas of the sea, they must be. She walked over and glanced at the titles. A man's character is revealed by the books he reads, Cilly thought.

Suddenly she wrinkled her brow as her eyes continued down the shelf. Mr. Johnson's literary tastes took a sudden, surprising turn. There beside the few adventurous tales of the sea were other books, startlingly different. So morbi dand erotic were these that Cilly looked twice, to be sure she read their titles correctly. . . . Dementia Praecox, Its Early Symptoms. . . . Insanity, the Scourge of Inheritance. . . . Adventures in Degeneracy. . . .

What strange literature this was for a simple, uneducated man like Mr. Johnson—a janitor, who made his living by tasks of carpentry and household repairs! The discovery suggested an entirely different insight into the man's quiet, kindly character. Cilly thought quite suddenly that she would never want to meet the superintendent alone on the roof at midnight. . . .

"Well, Miss Pierce?" She turned, startled by his voice, and dropped a book she was examining. She was surprised at the fierce, angry look in his eyes.

"Oh, Mr. Johnson! I didn't hear you come downstairs. . . . I've been glancing over your book-shelf here while I was waiting. . . ."

He stooped and picked up the book she had dropped, replaced it on the shelf.

"What a man wants to read," he said sharply, "is nobody's business. Now what can I do for you, Miss Pierce?"

Cilly never remembered hearing Mr. Johnson speak in such a curt, unfriendly tone. She walked over to the leather chair and sat down carefully, struggling for composure. She was unconscious of his mild blue eyes, now dark in anger, following her.

"I wanted to speak to you about the tenants, Mr. Johnson."

He waved his hand in annoyance. "The police have already done that. All day yesterday that fellow Martin checked up on the tenants. I know nothing of them."

"Did any of them come from the west?" Cilly persisted. "From Utah, particularly?"

"Utah. Let me see. . . . Mr. Johnson lit a match, puffing slowly on his pipe. "I think I remember something about Utah. . . . place there called Salt Lake City, isn't there?"

"Seems to me there was someone came from there—oh, a long time ago. But who it was—or what—I can't remember. Why?"

Cilly told him about the papers she had found wedged in the incinerator.

As he listened, the superintendent's manner began to thaw; in his interest at Cilly's story he forgot his sudden flash of annoyance.

"So, you see, Miss Kerr might have known someone in Utah. . . . someone who lived upstairs in this house. If I could just find out who threw away those Utah newspapers. . . ."

Cilly hesitated. She should have spoken to Sergeant Dolan first, but there could be no harm in asking Mr. Johnson. One thing was certain, the papers had not belonged to the superintendent. Whatever papers he had to burn he could very easily throw into the incinerator itself, next door to his own entrance. He would not have walked up two or three flights to get rid of them.

"Can't you remember, Mr. Johnson?" Cilly asked. "Can't you remember who it was that came from Salt Lake City?"

She wondered if he knew, and was merely trying to shield someone. He shook his head, dully.

"I can't be sure, Miss Pierce," he said, sincerely enough. "I've been here so long—almost 11 years—a lot of people have come and gone."

There was a short rap at the door, which still stood ajar. The postman looked in, held out a letter. "Something for you, Johnson," he called.

The superintendent walked over to the door and took it from him.

"Thank," he said absently, scrutinizing the envelope. For the moment, he seemed to have forgotten Cilly's presence.

She sat there, watching him. Did she imagine it, or did his hand tremble just a little as he tore open the envelope?

Eagerly he scanned the contents of the letter, his mouth silently forming the words as he read. Finally his expression relaxed, he grinned as he threw the letter on the table.

"Couldn't imagine who was writing to me," he said. "It was from Mrs. Elliott, upstairs of you. She's been away since Sunday. Visiting her daughter in Connecticut, and she wants me to make sure she shut the bedroom window. . . . Well, it was good she was away when it happened."

—By Ripley

She's an old lady. What a shock! Right outside her window, too. Honest, Miss Pierce, I never expected such a thing to happen in this house. When I heard that scream Sunday night and ran out there. . . .

He stopped, throwing out his hands in a gesture of futility.

Cilly rose. "You'll try to remember who it was, Mr. Johnson?" she asked again. "If we could just find out who threw away those papers. . . ."

Mr. Johnson nodded. He was himself again—the same, quiet, respectful person who listened to the complaints of tenants and attended to their needs. Somehow or other, though, Cilly felt that she would never be able to trust him as freely and absolutely as she had heretofore.

CITY OF MONROE PLEASES JAHNCKE

Ernest Lee Jahncke, executive of the Louisiana department of commerce and industry, was highly impressed with Monroe and West Monroe during his visit here October 25 to attend the banquet tendered him by the Missouri Pacific Boosters' club.

In a letter just received by Mayor Arnold Bernstein, Mr. Jahncke, who maintains headquarters in Baton Rouge, expressed his delight with the magnitude and scope of the cities of Monroe and West Monroe, their present development and the vast resources available for their expansion.

Mr. Jahncke pledged his full cooperation with the cities in their future development and invited the mayor to utilize the facilities offered by the state department of commerce and industry at Baton Rouge.

Here are two excerpts from Mr. Jahncke's letter to the mayor: "It was indeed a privilege and pleasure to visit you and that splendid city of yours."

"Everyone was so nice to me that I am looking forward to my next trip to Monroe."

WILL ENFORCE BAN ON SUNDAY LIQUOR SALES

Non-observance of the Sunday closing ordinance on the part of certain drug stores and saloons in the city, insofar as it pertains to the sale of liquor, yesterday resulted in orders being issued by Mayor Arnold Bernstein to Chief of Police Frank V. Reitzel instructing the Monroe police department to enforce this ordinance and to effect the arrest of saloon and drug store operators who violate the law.

The city ordinance forbids the sale of intoxicating liquors other than beer and wines from 12 o'clock midnight on Saturday until 6 o'clock the following Monday morning.

Chief Reitzel has instructed police officers to arrest all saloon and drug store operators who violate this ordinance, which was reported.

Highest Quota Set And General Motors To Push Drive For Objective

NEW YORK, Nov. 6.—(Special)—Officials of the General Motors corporation have elected to sponsor the Chevrolet division for 1938, to give special attention to the plans and programs of the largest unit of the corporation and to aid Chevrolet in every possible way during the coming year to attain its objective of new car and truck sales. "This year's quota is the highest sales quota ever undertaken by any division of General Motors."

A. P. Sloan, Jr., and W. S. Knudsen, chairman of the General Motors board, and president, respectively, have communicated with the more than 300,000 shareholders of the corporation, telling why General Motors is officially sponsoring Chevrolet for the new model

Clark Gable Uses Dodge on Hunting Trips

It's over the hills and far away for Clark Gable after finishing a major Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer picture in which he is starred. Clark goes off on hunting trips in the Dodge station wagon in which he is shown above. The Kaibab forest in Arizona and various places in the Santa Barbara mountains in California are his favorite hunting spots. The station wagon serves as a carry-all for his hunting trips between pictures. year that started this week with the opening of the New York Automobile show.

They complimented M. E. Coyle, Chevrolet general manager, and W. E. Holler, general sales manager, for the large growth of the company during the past four years, and pointed out that Chevrolet is now a million-carper-year company with sales of 1,015,000 for 1937 and 1,168,000 for 1936.

Both Sloan and Knudsen were enthusiastic concerning the advanced dealer-factory relationship that W. E. Holler has organized in the quality dealer program and the dealer planning committees.

"What Chevrolet does in any given year," said Sloan, "is of vital importance, not only to General Motors and the Chevrolet division, its dealers and retail salesmen, but also to business in general, for Chevrolet's operations are so large and extensive as to have a marked influence on the welfare and the lives of millions."

Knudsen stressed service to public through the Chevrolet dealers, as he commented upon the fact that the corporation is backing Chevrolet in 1938 with its power and ability.

"In its unique position as the leader in the low-priced field," he said, "I know that the Chevrolet division will accept the challenge that leadership brings, namely, maintaining its leadership in service to the public through the Chevrolet dealer organization."

AUTO INDUSTRY HELPS PROGRESS

Chrysler Tells Of Contributions Made To Economic Welfare Of Nation

In response to inquiries for a statement in connection with the National Automobile show, Walter P. Chrysler, chairman of the board of Chrysler corporation, has authorized the following:

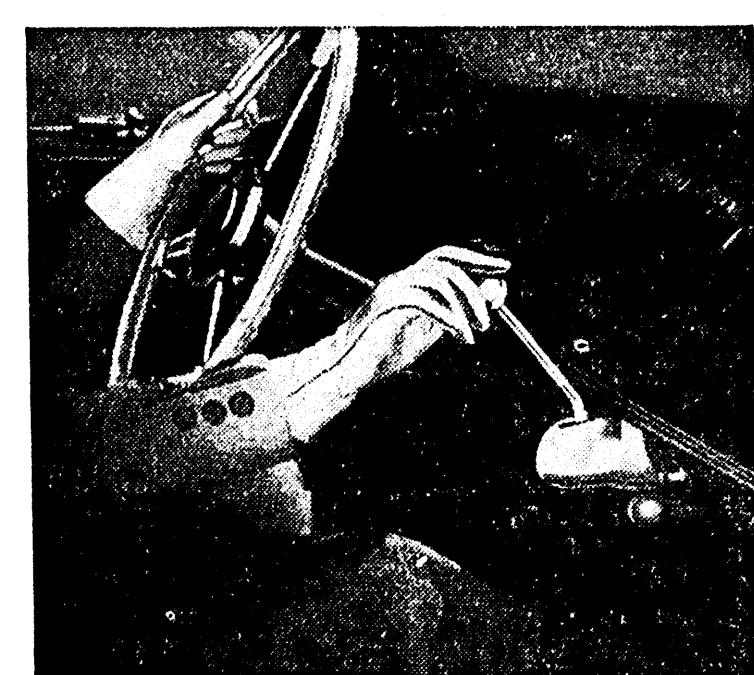

"Looked at from almost any angle, the contribution which the automotive industry has made and is making to the social and economic welfare of our country is nothing short of remarkable. Every year, through the National Automobile show, the industry gives renewed assurance of its extraordinary vitality, its constant search for improvement, no matter what conditions it has to meet.

"Some years ago, it will be recalled, there was a notion prevalent that the automobile industry was nearing, if it had not already reached, a so-called stationary state. Actual conditions were far away from it now than we were then. Recently there has been another notion equally unfounded, that the industry has passed its peak of spectacular advance and could be expected to settle down to the level of progress of older established industries. It was thought that automobile engineers had produced about as good a car or truck as could be built. Yet in the new models built for 1938, engineering improvement has again produced still higher standards of motor car value.

"Engineering and engineering research have always been the heart of Chrysler corporation's product development, as they must be in any progressive organization. Through its research activities, new ideas are infused each year into cars and trucks which are readily recognizable for their improvement over their predecessors. This has been the history of the corporation's engineering achievements ever since it began. It is a matter of considerable pride and satisfaction that these achievements have been recognized by adoption in some form or other by the rest of the industry, as well as by increased sales of the corporation's products to the public.

"I believe this industry is still a young industry. I believe also that notwithstanding its years, it will remain a young industry and that the public, which has been the beneficiary of automobile accomplishments, will continue to be benefited by the industry's search for automobile perfection and economy of operation as long as the spirit of competitive progress continues to inspire its engineers, its manufacturers, its dealers and salesmen, as it has always inspired them in the past."

A REAL FINGER-TIP SHIFT

Another Curative Use For Sulfanilamide Drug Found

Mexican Doctor Reports New Medicine Puts End To Stubborn Malaria

By Stephen J. McDonough (Associated Press Science Editor) WASHINGTON, Nov. 6.—(AP)—Another new curative use has been discovered for the ubiquitous drug sulfanilamide, counter-acting the unfavorable effects of the "elixir" of which has caused more than half a hundred deaths in recent weeks.

A Mexican physician has informed the Pan-American Sanitary bureau here that the drug has produced results just as favorable for patients with malaria as it has for those suffering from meningitis, childhood fever, blood poisoning, yellow fever, gonorrhea, and a host of other diseases.

Dr. Amonari Diaz de Leon of Cardenas, San Luis Potosi, Mexico, reported that he had successfully treated 15 cases of benign tertiary malaria, which is resistant to quinine therapy, with one of the forms of sulfanilamide.

The results were almost identical in each case. Dr. Diaz de Leon first identified the malaria germs in the blood of the patient, and made a diagnosis of malaria also from the condition of the person and the chills and fever experienced.

Reporting on one case as an illustration, Dr. Diaz de Leon said "He was given several tablets of sulfanilamide, with instructions to take six per day, two after each meal. Five days later he returned for consultation, feeling perfectly well, and having suffered no attacks of malaria during that period. He was advised to continue taking it, one tablet after each meal, until one bottle had been used, and to report the results, which were excellent."

In each of the 15 cases he made a second blood examination after the treatment and was unable to find any malarial germs. He said, "I am sure that sulfanilamide is an effective, specific drug for this form of the disease."

The Pan-American Sanitary bureau, which will soon publish a complete account of the Mexican physician's experiment, said it "is believed to be the first report on the use of sulfanilamide compounds in the treatment of malaria."

Meanwhile research workers at the National Institute of Health who have been experimenting with sulfanilamide and newer variations of it reiterated their belief that the recent deaths from the "elixir" were not caused by the drug itself.

Dr. Sanford Rosenthal, institute chemist who has been carrying on intensive work on the new compounds, said he was sure that the deaths were due to the solvent, diethylene glycol, which was used in an effort to make sulfanilamide more soluble in the "elixir."

Tests on animals using diethylene glycol as a solvent have proven that

"Well, Miss Pierce!"

She turned, startled by his voice, and dropped a book she was examining. She was surprised at the fierce, angry look in his eyes.

"Oh, Mr. Johnson! I didn't hear you come downstairs. . . . I've been glancing over your book-shelf here while I was waiting. . . ."

He stooped and picked up the book she had dropped, replaced it on the shelf.

"What a man wants to read," he said sharply, "is nobody's business. Now what can I do for you, Miss Pierce?"

Cilly never remembered hearing Mr. Johnson speak in such a curt, unfriendly tone. She walked over to the leather chair and sat down carefully, struggling for composure. She was unconscious of his mild blue eyes, now dark in anger, following her.

"I wanted to speak to you about the tenants, Mr. Johnson."

He waved his hand in annoyance. "The police have already done that. All day yesterday that fellow Martin checked up on the tenants. I know nothing of them."

"Did any of them come from the west?" Cilly persisted. "From Utah, particularly?"

"Utah. Let me see. . . ." Mr. Johnson lit a match, puffed slowly on his pipe. "I think I remember something about Utah. . . . place there called Salt Lake City, isn't there?"

"Seems to me there was someone came from there—oh, a long time ago. But who it was—or what—I can't remember. Why?"

Cilly told him about the papers she had found wedged in the incinerator.

"As he listened, the superintendent's manner began to thaw; in his interest at Cilly's story he forgot his sudden flash of annoyance."

"So, you see, Miss Kerr might have known someone in Utah. . . . someone who lived upstairs in this house. If I could just find out who threw away those Utah newspapers. . . ."

Cilly hesitated. She should have spoken to Sergeant Dolan first, but there could be no harm in asking Mr. Johnson. One thing was certain, the papers had not belonged to the superintendent. Whatever papers he had to burn he could very easily throw into the incinerator itself, next door to his own entrance. He would not have walked up two or three flights to get rid of them.

"Can't you remember, Mr. Johnson?" Cilly asked. "Can't you remember who it was that came from Salt Lake City?"

She wondered if he knew, and was merely trying to shield someone. He shook his head, dully.

"I can't be sure, Miss Pierce," he said, sincerely enough. "I've been here so long—almost 11 years—a lot of people have come and gone."

There was a short rap at the door, which still stood ajar. The postman looked in, held out a letter. "Something for you, Johnson," he called.

The superintendent walked over to the door and took it from him. "Thanks," he said absently, scrutinizing the envelope. For the moment, he seemed to have forgotten Cilly's presence.

She sat there, watching him. Did she imagine it, or did his hand tremble just a little as he tore open the envelope?

Eagerly he scanned the contents of the letter, his mouth silently forming the words as he read. Finally his expression relaxed, he grinned as he turned the letter on the table.

"Couldn't imagine who was writing to me," he said. "It was from Mrs. Elliot, upstairs of you. She's been away since Sunday, visiting her daughter in Connecticut, and she wants me to make sure she shut the bedroom window. . . . Well, it was good she was away when it happened."

—By Ripley

She's an old lady. What a shock! Right outside her window, too. Honest, Miss Pierce, I never expected such a thing to happen in this house. When I heard that scream Sunday night and ran out there. . . .

He stopped, throwing out his hands in a gesture of futility.

Cilly rose. "You'll try to remember who it was, Mr. Johnson?" she asked again. "If we could just find out who threw away those papers. . . ."

Mr. Johnson nodded. He was himself again—the same, quiet, respectful person who listened to the complaints of tenants and attended to their needs. Somehow or other, though, Cilly felt that she would never be able to trust him as freely and absolutely as she had heretofore.

CITY OF MONROE PLEASES JAHNCKE

Ernest Lee Jahncke, executive of the Louisiana department of commerce and industry, was highly impressed with Monroe and West Monroe during his visit here October 25 to attend the banquet tendered him by the Missouri Pacific Boosters' club.

In a letter just received by Mayor Arnold Bernstein, Mr. Jahncke, who maintains headquarters in Baton Rouge, expressed his delight with the magnitude and scope of the cities of Monroe and West Monroe, their present development and the vast resources available for their expansion.

Mr. Jahncke pledged his full cooperation with the cities in their future development and invited the mayor to utilize the facilities offered by the state department of commerce and industry at Baton Rouge.

Here are two excerpts from Mr. Jahncke's letter to the mayor:

"It was indeed a privilege and pleasure to visit you and that splendid city of yours."

"Everyone was so nice to me that I am looking forward to my next trip to Monroe."

WILL ENFORCE BAN ON SUNDAY LIQUOR SALES

Non-observance of the Sunday closing ordinance on the part of certain drug stores and saloons in the city insofar as it pertains to the sale of liquor, yesterday resulted in orders being issued by Mayor Arnold Bernstein to Chief of Police Frank V. Reitzel instructing the Monroe police department to enforce this ordinance and to effect the arrest of saloon and drug store operators who violate the law.

The city ordinance forbids the sale of intoxicating liquors other than beer and wines from 12 o'clock midnight on Saturday until 6 o'clock the following Monday morning.

Chief Reitzel has instructed police officers to arrest all saloon and drug store operators who violate this ordinance, it was reported.

Highest Quota Set And General Motors To Push Drive For Objective

NEW YORK, Nov. 6.—(Special)—Officials of the General Motors corporation have elected to sponsor the Chevrolet division for 1938, to give special attention to the plans and programs of the largest unit of the corporation and to aid Chevrolet in every possible way during the coming year to attain its objective of new car and truck sales. "This year's quota is the highest sales quota ever undertaken by any division of General Motors."

A. P. Sloan, Jr., and W. S. Knudsen, chairman of the General Motors board, and president, respectively, have communicated with the more than 300,000 shareholders of the corporation, telling why General Motors is officially sponsoring Chevrolet for the new model

Chrysler Tells Of Contributions Made To Economic Welfare Of Nation

In response to inquiries for a statement in connection with the National Automobile show, Walter P. Chrysler, chairman of the board of Chrysler corporation, has authorized the following:

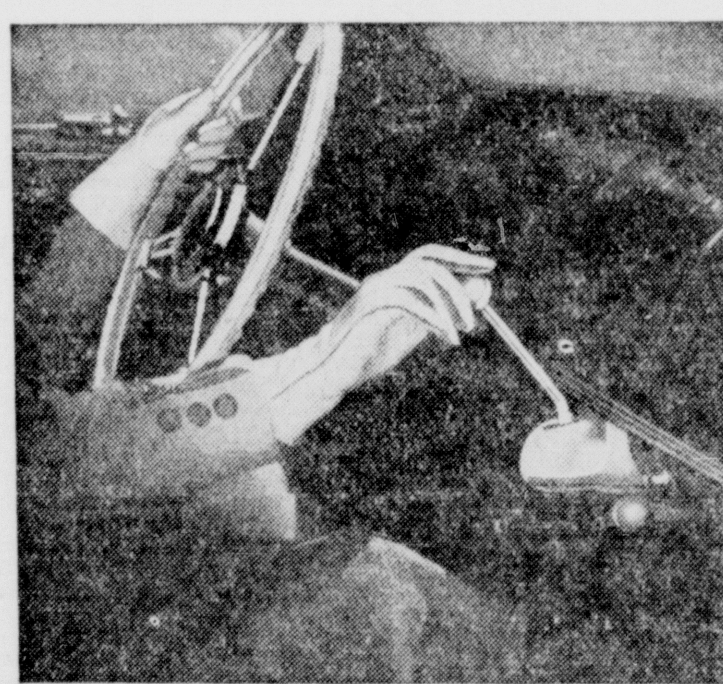

"Looked at from almost any angle, the contribution which the automotive industry has made and is making to the social and economic welfare of our country is nothing short of remarkable. Every year, through the National Automobile show, the industry gives renewed assurance of its extraordinary vitality, its constant search for improvement, no matter what conditions it has to meet."

"Some years ago, it will be recalled, there was a notion prevalent that the automobile industry was nearing, if it had not already reached, a so-called saturation point. Actually we were far from that. It was then that we were then. Recently there has been another notion equally unfounded, that the industry has passed its peak of spectacular advance and could be expected to settle down to the level of progress of older established industries. It was thought that automobile engineers had produced about as good a car or truck as could be built. Yet in the new models built for 1938, engineering improvement has again produced still higher standards of motor car value."

"Engineering and engineering research have always been the heart of Chrysler corporation's product development, as they must be in any progressive organization. Through its research activities, new ideas are infused each year into cars and trucks which are readily recognizable for their improvement over their predecessors. This has been the history of the corporation's engineering achievements ever since it began. It is a matter of considerable pride and satisfaction that these achievements have been recognized by adoption in some form or other by the rest of the industry, as well as by increased sales of the corporation's products to the public."

"I believe this industry is still a young industry. I believe also that notwithstanding its years, it will remain a young industry and that the public, which has been the beneficiary of automobile accomplishments, will continue to profit by the industry's search for automobile perfection and economy of operation as long as the spirit of competitive progress continues to inspire its engineers, its manufacturers, its dealers and salesmen, as it has always inspired them in the past."

A REAL FINGER-TIP SHIFT

Another Curative Use For Sulfanilamide Drug Found

Mexican Doctor Reports New Medicine Puts End To Stubborn Malaria

By Stephen J. McDonough
(Associated Press Science Editor)

WASHINGTON, Nov. 6.—(AP)—Another new curative use has been discovered for the ubiquitous drug sulfanilamide, counter-acting the unfavorable effects of the "elixir" of it which has caused more than half a hundred deaths in recent weeks.

A Mexican physician has informed the Pan-American Sanitary bureau here that the drug has produced results just as favorable for patients with malaria as it has for those suffering from meningitis, childhood fever, blood poisoning, yellow fever, gonorrhea, and a host of other diseases.

Dr. Amador Diaz de Leon of Cadiz, San Luis Potosi, Mexico, reported that he had successfully treated 15 cases of benign tertiary malaria, which is resistant to quinine therapy, with one of the forms of sulfanilamide.

The results were almost identical in each case. Dr. Diaz de Leon first identified the malaria germs in the blood of the patient, and made a diagnosis of malaria also from the condition of the person and the chills and fever experienced.

Reporting on one case as an illustration, Dr. Diaz de Leon said "he was given several tablets of sulfanilamide, with instructions to take six per day, two after each meal. Five days later he returned for consultation, feeling perfectly well, and having suffered no attacks of malaria during that period. He was advised to continue taking it, one tablet after each meal, until one bottle had been used, and to report the results, which were excellent."

In each of the 15 cases he made a second blood examination after the treatment and was unable to find any malaria germs. He said, "I am sure that sulfanilamide is an effective, specific drug for this form of the disease."

The Pan-American Sanitary bureau, which will soon publish a complete account of the Mexican physician's experiment, said it "is believed to be the first report on the use of sulfanilamide compounds in the treatment of malaria."

Meanwhile research workers at the National Institute of Health who have been experimenting with sulfanilamide and newer variations of it reiterated their belief that the recent deaths from the "elixir" were not caused by the drug itself.

Tests on animals using diethylene glycol as a solvent have proven that it is "highly toxic," he added, while large doses of sulfanilamide itself have been used on human patients with no more harmful effects than some skin discoloration and minor upsets.

COURT TO RECESS

The fourth judicial district criminal court which opened its fall term last week will recess this week, reconvening Monday, November 15, and remaining in session until its docket is cleared. Yesterday's session was a brief one with the case of E. P. Mathis, charged with uttering a forged check, ordered nolle prossed by the court for lack of evidence. This action was taken after a jury had been chosen to try Mathis.

'Life Of Emile Zola' Playing At Paramount Today Only

Muni Scores Another Hit In New Film

Dramatic Story Of Life Of Famous Frenchman Makes Outstanding Picture

ONE of the greatest claims to fame possessed by the Republic of France is that it was the birthplace and the homeland of Emile Zola, the immortal novelist. His name is to France what Shakespeare's is to England.

And now, for the first time, Zola reaches the films. With Paul Muni in the name part, "The Life of Emile Zola" is an immense production by Warner Bros. comes to the screen of the Paramount theater today.

There is a strong temptation, of course, to compare this epic drama with the one that gained for Muni, last year, the Motion Picture academy's award for the best performance by an actor in 1936—"The Story of Louis Pasteur."

There's the same star, the same director (William Dieterle), and the same lavish type of picture-making. Possibly this may mean another gold statuette for Paul from the academy. At all events, "The Life of Emile Zola" is a truly great picture, and many observers believe it to be even greater than "Pasteur."

It runs through the entire career of Zola. First he is seen as a struggling young writer, sometimes obliged to pawn even his shirt for bread. Then he meets the girl of the streets, "Nana" (played by Erin O'Brien-Moore) whose life he depicts in a novel that earns him enormous sums and lifts him to international fame.

But most of the story has to do with Zola's courageous defense of Captain Alfred Dreyfus, the army officer who was framed on a false charge of selling secrets to Germany, and who was sent to the horrors of Devil's Island. The picture shows Zola writing his bitter attack on the army clique called "L'Accuse," which was printed in the newspaper of Georges Clemenceau, who later was to become the "Tiger of France" in the World War. And this resulted finally—as those who know their history are aware—in the restoration of Dreyfus to his old post. No more exalted deed than Zola's can be imagined. At the time he takes up his mighty pen in defense of Dreyfus, he is well into middle age, reaping his rewards from a life of struggle, work and hard-won battles. All of France honors him. Yet he faces the new and most difficult battle of his life without flinching. After his famous attack is published he is tried for libel in one of the most unjust trials of history. Condemned to prison, he is forced to flee to England from which place he continues his attacks on the army.

Paul Muni's portrayal of Emile Zola is a magnificent piece of work—better if possible than his characterization of Louis Pasteur the scientist.

Captain Dreyfus is splendidly played by Joseph Schildkraut, who was, incidentally, a boyhood chum of Muni's in their native Vienna.

Others of note in the cast are Gale Sondergaard as Mme. Zola, Henry O'Neill, Louis Calhern, Vladimir Sokoloff, Morris Carnovsky and Donald Crisp. "The Life of Emile Zola" is a thrilling, absorbing story, beautifully directed by Dieterle and produced with rites planned armistice day

Special Services Honoring Memory Of War Dead
Scheduled At Temple

Armistice day will be observed in Monroe November 11 in a non-militaristic manner. It will be marked by exercises devoted principally to honoring the memory of members of the American military forces who gave their lives for their country during the World war.

Arranged by the Ouachita Parish Veterans' council, with the cooperation of Barkdull Faulk, post of the American Legion, Rodney J. Hobbs, post of Veterans of Foreign Wars, the local chapter of Disabled American veterans and Thompson Wood Lee camp of United Spanish War veterans, the exercises will start at 10:30 a.m. They will be held at Temple B'Nai Israel.

The exercises will be featured by a sermon, to be delivered by Rev. W. C. Scott, pastor of the First Methodist church. Four other Monroe ministers will participate in the program. Rabbi F. K. Hirsch of Temple B'Nai Israel will offer the opening prayer; Rev. Crayton S. Brooks, pastor of the First Christian church, will give a Scripture reading; Rev. Ernest Duncan Holloway, pastor of the First Presbyterian church and chaplain of the Louisiana department of the American Legion, will give a responsive reading; and Rev. E. F. Hayward, rector of Grace Episcopal church, will offer the benediction concluding the exercises.

MULE HIDE SHINGLES

Home Industry and Home Trade is one continual business leave in Monroe. Mule Hide shingles are of a first class quality, so far as composition shingles go, and are guaranteed by the LET-TON COMPANY of Chicago, Ill. I would like to have the public view them—bite them, giving a full test in any way you choose—Take a couple of shingles home and let your wife pass judgment. You can't beat the quality of these shingles in Monroe—and for sale delivered $4.30 per square, F. O. B. cash two per cent off. (Will shade any price made on shingles.) Roofs that satisfy, Tile, Tin, Asbestos Shingles, built-up flat surface roofing. —Petroleum asphalt used at $19.50 per ton or Trinidad Anchor brand at $34.00 a ton.

I have more years of practical roofing experience than the entire rookery of half baked, one-gallus wholesale grocery stores and lumber yards in Monroe. If you want to get skinned good and proper, let me have the job, and replace with MULE HIDE SHINGLES. In the past thirty-seven years since pitching my wigwag in Monroe I have rocked to sleep seven 2x4 tin shops and taken the measure of the Dixie Roofing Co., who came to Monroe and advertised, "Roofing Monroe for the last time." The Dixie is on the wrong side of my ledger to the amount of $88.00.

Sounds cocky for a McGuffey's Fourth Reader graduated, 76 years old and still going good—Why, bless your soul, common, ordinary, good, rich or poor people, believe it or not, I am chewing gum and rubber boots while cutting my third set of teeth. I don't care as much for a dollar as some of my neighbors cherish a token. Dollars are like poker chips, just medium of exchange. There are more crazy people about money on the outside of the insane asylums than on the inside. See me about all kinds of Roofing and Sheet Metal Work. 410 Walnut St., Monroe, La. Phone 132. Wire or write at my expense. Big Electric SHORT PENCIL SIGN—you can't miss it. Dixie Lunch Shop opposite my shop. Clamp the brakes on your car when you see picture of a big MULE'S HEAD—my treat, beer, coffee, cigars on tap ALWAYS.

J. G. (Short Pencil) BELL,
All the Same Tinner,

P. S.—Jim Toler is not my representative any more. Jim is a good boy when he keeps his nose clean.

HATS OFF—THE KING IS PASSING BY!

offer the benediction concluding the exercises.

To be opened with the singing of "America the Beautiful," the exercises will be interspersed with several songs, the last of which will be "America." At 11 a.m., the hour the armistice ending the World war was signed 19 years ago, the assemblage will observe a minute of silence, followed by the sounding of taps by a bugler.

Ushers for the exercises will be provided by all of the veterans' organizations cooperating with the veterans' council.

The night of November 11, Barkdull Faulk post will give a dance on the Cherokee terrace of Hotel Frances. The proceeds derived from the entertainment will go towards purchasing and equipping a new emergency truck to replace the old one now in service.

All business houses and industrial establishments have been requested to close between the hours of 10 a.m. and noon Armistice day to allow their employees to attend exercises at Temple B'Nai Israel.

WAR VETS' CHIEF TO DELIVER RADIO TALK

A radio address on "Peace for America, a Better America and for Those Who Have Died," sponsored by Rodney J. Hobbs, post, Monroe unit of Veterans of Foreign Wars, will be delivered, through the facilities of KMLB, local broadcasting station, at 12:30 p.m. today by E. H. Miller, commander of the veterans' chapter.

The subject of the address incorporates three of the five objectives of the national V. F. W. organization. The other two are jobs and pensions for veterans and more liberal provision for widows and orphans of soldiers and sailors of V. F. W. Members of Rodney J. Hobbs post consider the talk as particularly timely, in view of the situation in Spain and China and the rearmament race throughout the world. It is the first of a series of radio addresses to be sponsored by the post. The second, "Unmaking Communism," will be given over the facilities of KMLB within the near future, Commander Miller said.

constipation. My stomach became disordered and almost all foods I ate caused indigestion, gas and bloating. Later neuritis settled in my body and the stabbing pains I endured were unbearable. I was terribly run-down, lost my strength and energy and was worn-out continually. Then I began hearing so much praise for this new Gly-Cas—so I too finally decided to test it in my case.

"From the first few doses of Gly-Cas I realized I had found the one medicine for which I had been searching so many years," continued Mrs. Austin. "My bowels were regulated and that dreadful constipation corrected almost immediately. The poisons were eliminated from my system in a most natural way and within a week I began to eat and enjoy foods I had been denied for years before. I began to get the real sleep and rest I needed, too. Those dreadful neuritis pains have disappeared entirely and it is almost miraculous in the way this new remedy, Gly-Cas, took hold of my stubborn case. I am enjoying the best health I have had in years."

Gly-Cas is sold by Phoenix Drug company, 348 DeSiard street, this city, and by all the leading drug stores in surrounding towns—Adv.

The program for today will be as follows: Sunday school at 9:45 a.m.; Communion of the Lord's Supper will be observed at 11 o'clock; the two Epworth Leagues will render programs at 6:45; the evening worship service begins at 7:30; the pastor bringing an evangelistic message on the subject, "The Danger of Neglect." Fourteen new members assumed the church views last Sunday evening, and others will be received next Sunday. We cordially invite one and all to come and worship with us. All the new members are expected to be present and take the Communion for the first time with us.

NAZARENE CHURCH

Thomas and Richmond Streets
G. M. Akin, Ina L. Akin, Pastors

Sunday school will open at 9:45. S. P. Quigley in charge. Morning worship at 11 o'clock. Evening service, 7:30. Nazarene Young People's society will meet at 6:30. O. L. Hoskins, president. Woman's Missionary society meets Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock. Mid-week prayer meeting, Wednesday evening, 7:30. The services today will be held at Lida Benton school. Other services will be held in the home of R. H. Thornhill, Lee avenue.

FIRST BAPTIST CHURCH

Corner St. John and Grammont Streets
L. T. Hastings, Pastor

"Merrily We Go To Hell" will be the pastor's subject for the morning sermon in which he will show that "The High Cost of Sinning" is a bigger problem than "The High Cost of Living." At the evening hour he will make a plea for "A New Puritanism." "Come ye out from among them, and be ye separate, saith the Lord." Sunday school convenes at 9:45; B. T. U. and Brotherhood at 6:15; baptismal service at the close of the evening service. A cordial welcome is given to visitors and strangers.

TRINITY LUTHERAN CHURCH

D'Arbonne and Harrison Streets
Vernon C. Grosse, Pastor

Sunday school and Bible class at 9:45 a.m. Church service at 10:45 a.m. All are invited to worship with us. The regular meeting of the Ladies' Aid society will be held on Tuesday.

FIRST CHURCH OF CHRIST,

SCIENTIST
Corner Auburn and North Second

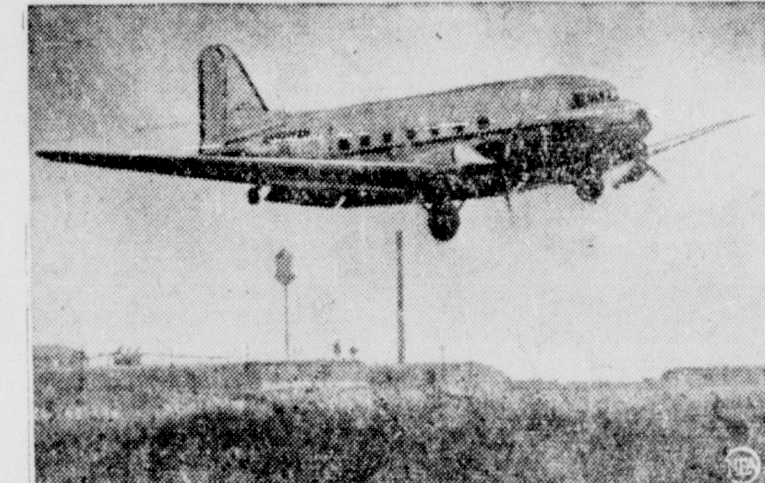

Sunday services, 11 a.m.; Sunday school, 9:30 a.m.; Wednesday evening testimony meetings 8 o'clock. Reading room, 709 Ouachita National bank building, open daily, except Sunday and holidays, 11:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. The public is welcome to all services and the use of the reading room. "Adam and Fallen Man" is the subject of the lesson-sermon in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, Sunday, November 7, 1937. Among the citations which comprise the lesson-sermon is the following from the Bible: "And the Lord God formed man of the dust of the ground, and breathed into his nostrils the breath of life; and man became a living soul." (Gen. 2). The lesson-sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "Adam, represented in the Scriptures as formed from dust, is an object-lesson for the human mind." (p. 214).

FIRST CHRISTIAN CHURCH

Oak and St. John Streets
Clayton S. Brooks, Minister

Our church school begins at 9:45 and runs an hour. There is music, singing, praying, teaching, learning. Criminals do not come from the Sunday school. Every member of the church and the whole family should be in the Sunday school. And they should attend church at 10:50 and hear the sermon on the question, "How May We Stir Up the Fires of Religion?" A carnival will not do it. Such a carnival as we had in Monroe recently stirs up other fires. Alcohol stimulates other fires. The young folks will enjoy the Christian Endeavor at 6:30. At 7:30 the preacher will discuss "Christ Our Great Exemplar." Jesus, the greatest teacher of the ages. His practical example in living is His most powerful teaching. How did He resist temptation to lead a perfect life? Was He careful in small matters? In what are we to follow Him? Come and hear.

MAKING PERILOUS LANDING

While hundreds on the ground at Newark, N. J., airport looked on, horrified by the possibility of catastrophe, Pilot B. C. "Dinty" Moore circled the big airliner and vainly tried to lose the landing gear. Police, firemen and ambulances gathered. Unable to lower the jammed left wheel, seen partly protruding from the wing at right above, Moore in desperation made a "belly landing" so deft that the seven passengers hardly felt a jar.

PENIEL BAPTIST CHURCH

Jonesboro Road Between Brownville and Bawcomville
W. E. James, Pastor

The beautiful day we had last Sunday was enhanced by the fine spirit and attendance at all services of the day. W. D. Combs, superintendent of the Sunday school, expects the same spirit and attendance to continue throughout the month. He calls attention to the meeting time of 10 o'clock, and asks that everyone try to be on time. Mrs. C. W. Krumm, director of the B. T. U., is greatly enthused over the fine enrollment and increasing interest, but feels that only a small part of the ones possible have been enlisted, and for that reason, she tiful Vale," as his subject. The W. M. S. meets at 2:30 each Tuesday, the Brotherhood at 7 p.m. each Wednesday, and prayer meeting at 7 o'clock Friday evenings, at which time a round table discussion of the Epistle to the Corinthians will be continued. The public is cordially invited to attend all services of our church.

FIRST METHODIST CHURCH

Jackson at Wood Street
Walter C. Scott, Minister

Only three more Sundays in this conference year. Let every member make the most of the time that is left by attending church at least once each Sunday. Conference will meet in Shreveport on November 24, having been postponed one week on account of illness of the bishop, and the place of meeting having been changed from Bogalusa as previously announced. The communion service will be held this morning at 11 o'clock, and the regular evening service with preaching by the pastor at 7:30. The children's division of the church school meets at 9:30 a.m., and all others at 9:45. On Tuesday the Women's Missionary society will meet in circles. The annual week of prayer will be observed in the circles, as well as on Wednesday and Thursday of this week. The monthly meeting of the local church board of Christian education will be held Wednesday night at 7:30 o'clock.

TARZAN THE BEAST

TARZAN THRILLED TO THE DESPERATE BATTLE AS HE FOUGHT BESIDE HIS HAIRY COMPANION.

DEFEAT, HOWEVER, WAS CERTAIN, SO HE CALLED TO TALIG TO FLEE; BUT THE BLOOD-MAD APE WAS DEAF TO PERSUASION.

THEN TARZAN'S JUNGLE LORE CAME TO HIS AID. HE KNEW THE APES' INSTINCT FOR IMITATION.

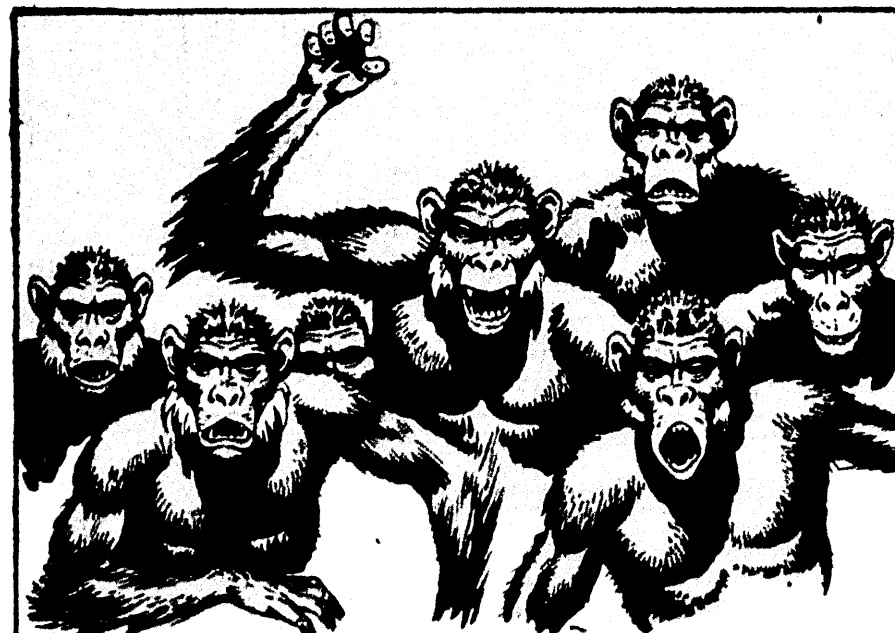

SO HE SEIZED ONE OF HIS ADVERSARIES AND LEAPED TREEWARD. TALIG COPIED HIS ACTIONS.

THEN THEY DASHED AWAY THROUGH THE TREES EACH BEARING A CAPTIVE TO THE APE-TRIBE.

TARZAN WAS GREETED WITH HOARSE ACCLAIM, BUT HE IN TURN VOICED PRAISE FOR TALIG AS A MIGHTY FIGHTER.

NOW THE EXCITED APES CLAMORED FOR A DUM-DUM, THAT GHASTLY RITE WHICH WAS A PRELUDE TO SLAUGHTERING CAPTIVES.

PRESENTLY THE BOOM OF THE EARTHDUM RESOUNDED THROUGH THE JUNGLE, WEIRD AND TERRIBLE.

THEN THE APES BEGAN TO DANCE IN A MAD, INTOXICATING REVEL. SOMETHING STIRRED IN THE BLOOD OF TARZAN.

OFTEN AS A BOY, WHEN HE LIVED THE LIFE OF THE APES, HE HAD SHARED IN THESE CARNIVALS OF DEATH.

AND NOW THESE MAGIC DRUMBEATS CARRIED HIM BACK THROUGH THE YEARS. HE WAS A BEAST AGAIN!

HOGARTH

AND SO WITH A BLOOD-CLUTTLING CRY, TARZAN JOINED THE WILD LEAPING HORDE—AS SAVAGE AS ANY APE!
NEXT WEEK: A MYSTERIOUS MESSENGER

A black and white photograph of a child's alphabet blocks scattered on a dark surface. The blocks are arranged in a way that suggests the words "DANCE" and "LAYS" are being formed. In the background, a wooden structure with the number "11-7-37" is visible. The image is a high-contrast, grainy photograph, likely from a mid-20th-century publication. The blocks are scattered across the frame, with some showing letters like 'D', 'C', 'N', 'T', 'E', 'B', 'E', 'A', 'V', 'P', 'F', 'C', 'E', 'L', 'V', 'N', 'E', 'F', 'D', 'L', 'A', 'Y', 'S', 'T', 'N'. The wooden structure in the background has the number "11-7-37" printed on it. The overall composition is a close-up shot of the blocks and the wooden structure.

MAX BAER DROPPED IN TODAY FOR A VISIT AND ASKED US TO GIVE A WORD OF ADVICE TO YOU FELLOWS. HE SUGGESTS THAT WE SHOW YOU HIS BREATHING EXERCISE, WHICH IS REALLY SWELL.

INSTEAD OF TAKING ONE BREATH --- INHALE A FAIR AMOUNT AND INSTEAD OF EXHALING-- INHALE AGAIN BEFORE YOU EXHALE. IT'S THE BEST BREATHING EXERCISE I'VE COME ACROSS AND IS GREAT FOR STRENGTHENING LUNGS AND CHEST.

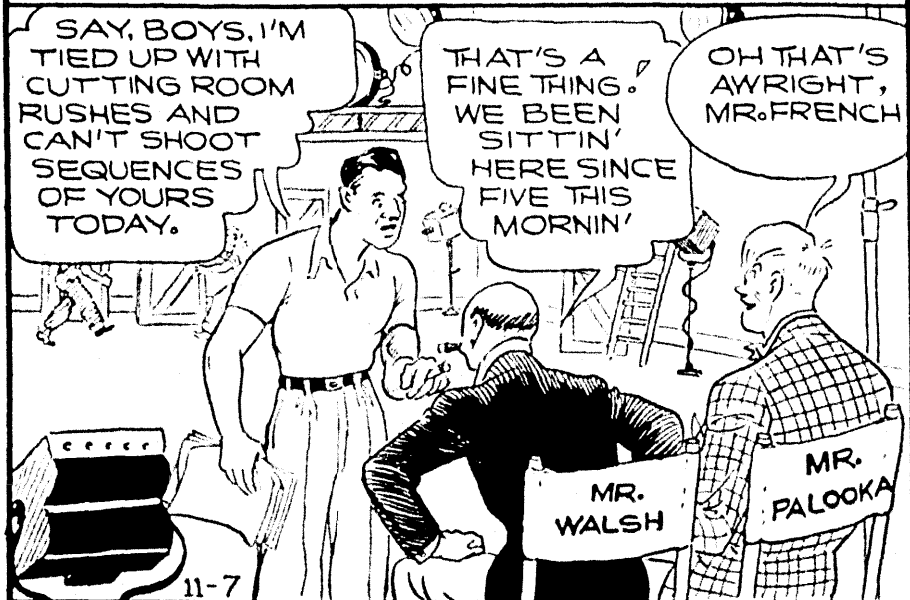

MAX SUGGESTS THIS EXERCISE FOR STRENGTHENING THE STOMACH MUSCLES. PLACE A MEDICINE BALL OR EVEN A FOOT REST ON THE FLOOR AND ROLL ON IT AS JOE IS DOING IN PICTURE. THEN LIE ON YOUR BACK AND SWING YOUR LEGS OVER YOUR HEAD TO FLOOR.

PLUSHIE, MY DEAR- I WAS AT "YE BONNIE BONNET SHOPPE" AND I FOUND JUST THE VERY FALL HAT I WANTED TO-DAY.

WELL, I AM GLAD OF THAT, EMMA. I CERTAINLY COULDN'T AFFORD TO BUY YOU ONE.

OH, YOU MAKE ME SICK- JUST BECAUSE YOU ALWAYS THINK YOU NEVER NEED A NEW HAT YOU THINK THAT—

THAT YOU ALWAYS THINK YOU NEED ONE!

BUT, MY DEAR, THIS HAT IS SIMPLY STUNNING! WHY, AT THIS VERY MOMENT TWELVE OR FIFTEEN MEN ARE STANDING OUTSIDE OF THIS TELEPHONE BOOTH ADMIRING IT.

AW-WE AIN'T ADMIRING YOUR BONNET, MADAM!

WELL, YOU BUTTINSKYS HAS A LOT OF CRUST, I'LL SAY, SNOOPING AROUND EAVESDROPPING ON MY AND MY HUSBAND'S CONVERSATION.

WELL, MY STARS! I THOUGHT I WAS JEST TALKING TO YOU AT HOME.

YOU WERE- AND THEN I COULD HEAR YOU HOLLERING AND YELLING AT SOMEBODY SO I HAD THE CALL TRACED AND CAME AS QUICK AS I COULD IN A TAXI TO FIND OUT WHAT THE TROUBLE WAS, EMMA.

OF ALL THE EXTRAVAGANT IMBECILES! TAKING A TAXI! AND YET YOU SQUAWK ABOUT ME SQUANDERING A FEW DOLLARS.

MY WORD! OUCH!

WHAT'S THAT? WHAT WAS YOU MUMBLING?

I SAID "YOU HAVE SOMETHING ON YOUR HAT".

THAT, LORD PLUSHBOTTOM, IS VERY SMART THIS YEAR ON LADIES' HATS

IT'S OATS! A BIRD FLYING WITH OATS!

HALP!

HE PULLED A KNIFE ON ME, OFFICER!

I WASN'T GOING TO HARM HER, OFFICER- HOWEVER, IF SHE STICKS THOSE OATS IN MY EYE OR EAR AGAIN, SIR, THERE IS GOING TO BE A HARVEST!

ADVENTURE STAMPS

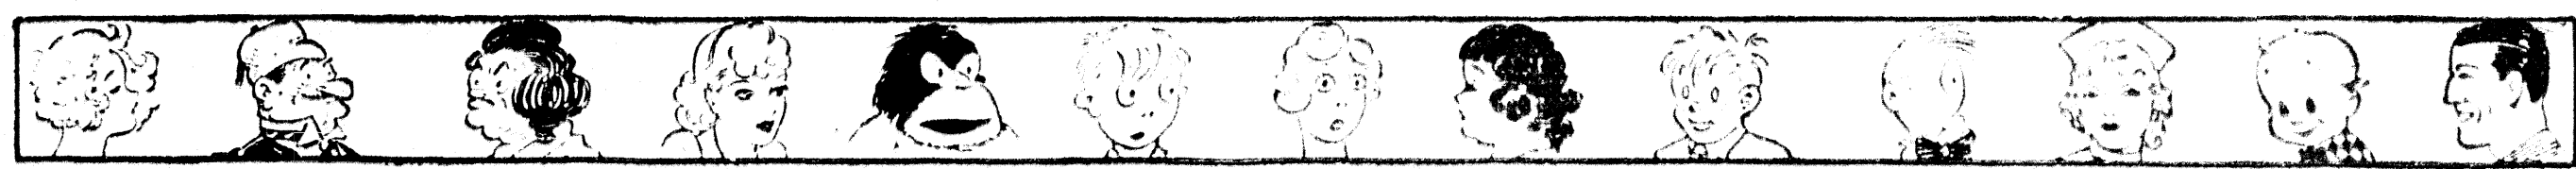

They JOINED THE ATLANTIC AND THE PACIFIC

THE dream of linking the Atlantic and the Pacific had occupied men's minds four centuries. Balboa first broached the idea of a canal across the Isthmus of Panama to the Emperor of Spain in the early days of the 16th century. Surveys were made in succeeding years but all failed of development. Came the Mexican War in 1848, and the subsequent cession of Texas and California to the United States. The Pacific coast of the nation had been created. Henceforth interest in the canal project became a national fever. But America did little except to look on; France was already at work. She had begun in the 80's. And by 1890 she had failed!

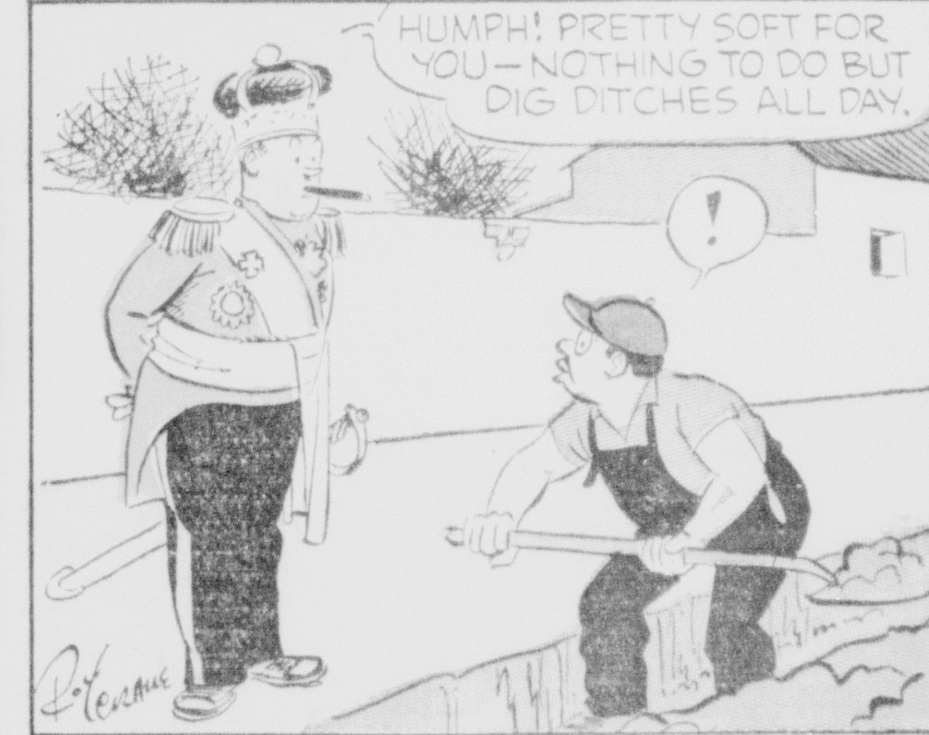

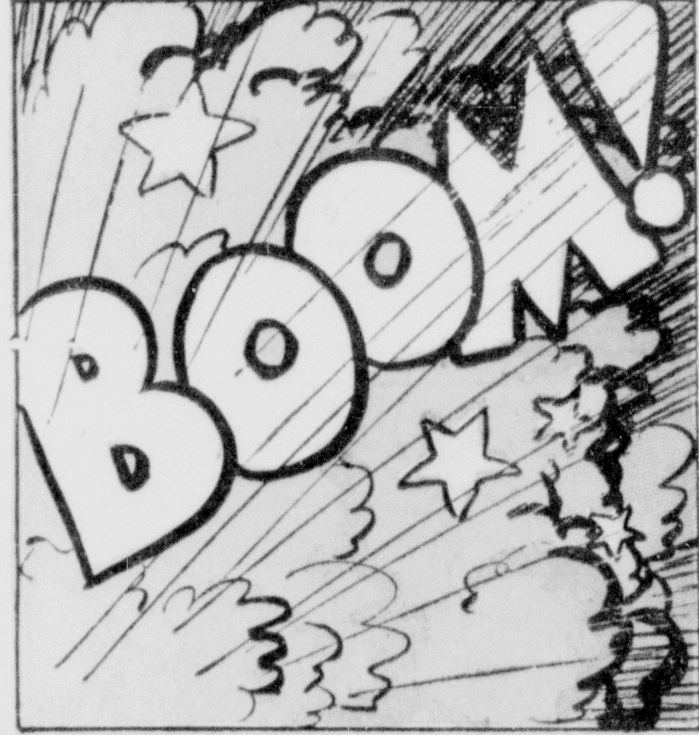

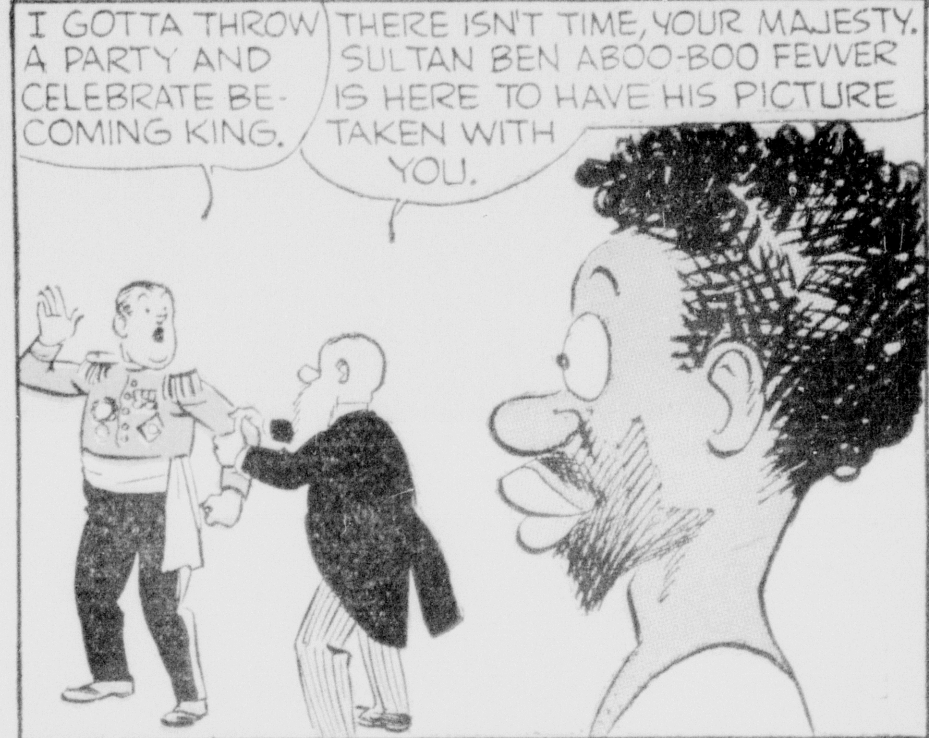

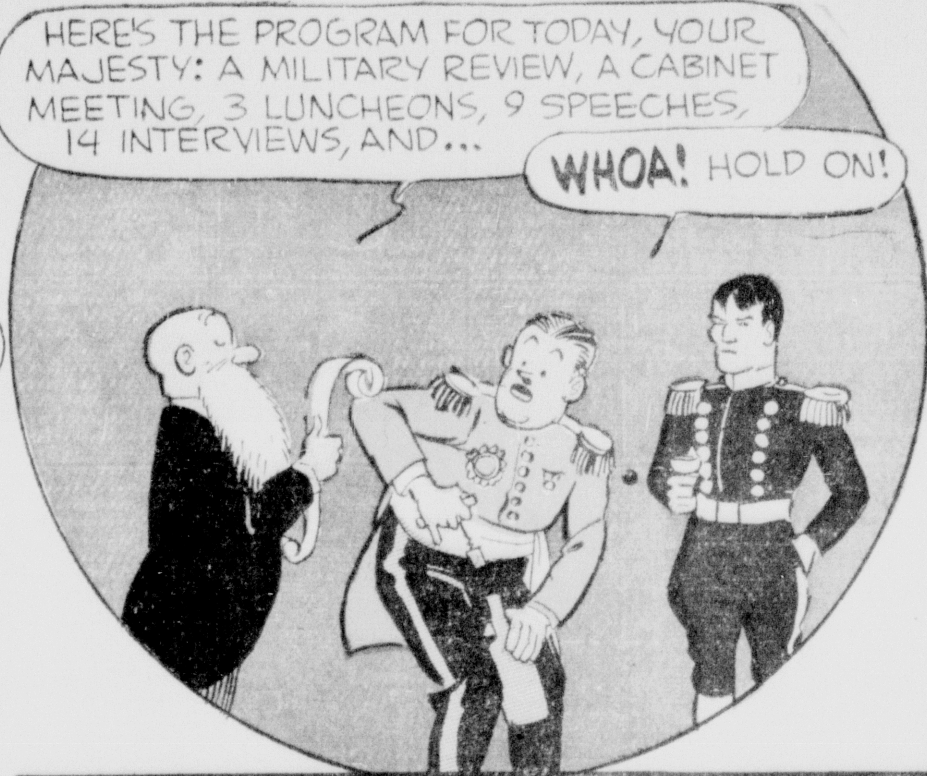

The United States stepped in then in earnest, bought out the French, proceeded to rid the Isthmus of the plague, yellow fever and malaria in one of the most sweeping sanitation campaigns the world has ever known. In June, 1904, canal construction operations began. Less than 10 years later, Jan. 7, 1914, the first boat navigated the great canal. This was a crane boat. Commercial traffic was inaugurated on Aug. 15, by the passage of the government steamship Ancon carrying the secretary of war and 200 guests. Thus, at a cost of $375,000,000, the United States had finally linked the Atlantic and the Pacific oceans. The Isthmus is shown on a 1905 Panama map stamp.
